SQUARE BUDGET, IS BEER HEARING PLEA OF MILLS

Sales Tax Favored; Expect Early Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Mills today brought the house ways and means committee beer hearings to a spectacular close with a vehement plea for nonpartisan action to guarantee a balanced national budget during 1934.

SECRETARY MILLS.

The Mills recommendation climaxed a stormy session at which the red faced, chunky and dynamic cabinet member battled verbally and loudly with Democratic leaders who questioned his veracity and baited him with charges that the treasury estimates of last year had been so inaccurate as to be useless to the committee.

Under constant prodding the angry secretary taunted the Democrats on their tardiness in initiating a budget balancing program, questioned their "stomach" for such distasteful tasks as balancing a budget with new taxes and vigorously reminded the victors of the last election that with the campaign over it was now time for the redemption of campaign pledges.

Makes Beer Tax Estimate.

Although the secretary appeared before the committee to talk about beer virtually his whole statement was taken up with an administration program for balancing the budget. He recommended approval of the Hoover economies, the voting of a manufacturers' excise sales tax and the continuation of the gasoline tax, all to raise at least 307 millions of additional revenue. Secretary Mills said that as a revenue measure the treasury would be glad to have the money a beer tax would bring in, a sum he estimated at between 125 and 150 millions for the first year.

In making his plea for a balanced budget Mr. Mills said that if recommendations were carried out the Democrats would be able to reduce taxes prior to the 1936 elections and possibly before the congressional elections in 1934. He said, however, that apparently his suggestions for a balanced budget had embarrassed the committee. He warned that failure to balance the budget could not but have an adverse effect on the government.

Questioned by Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], Mr. Mills declined to commit either President Hoover or the treasury on the advisability of beer legislation. He stated that he could not answer a question as to whether the President would sign such a bill. As the treasury head did not oppose the measure, his appearance convinced many members that rather than see the budget go unbalanced the administration would accept a beer bill. It was Representative Rainey's impression following the hearing that the President would rather not have a bill submitted to him.

Drys Get In Last Word.

At the conclusion of the Mills testimony a score of professional dry leaders headed by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, demanded that the committee return a decisive "no" to the nation-wide mandate of the recent election for immediate passage of beer legislation. Their testimony concluded, the committee adjourned to take up consideration of the Collier beer bill in executive session tomorrow.

Majority Leader Rainey said tonight that the committee would brush aside the plea of the drys and report out a beer bill, probably Saturday and not later than Monday. A vote, he said, could be expected by Tuesday or Wednesday. The measure is expected to legalize the manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer by weight or 4 per cent beer by volume. A federal tax of at least $5 a barrel of 31 gallons will be voted, according to present indications, on the understanding this would raise at least 200 millions of revenue.

Budget Plea Applauded.

Spectators at the morning session, many of them drys awaiting a chance to attack the beer bill, applauded warmly when Secretary Mills urged the committee to drop partisanship

Council Backs Mayor in War on Speakeasies

Voting almost unanimously in support of Mayor Cermak's campaign to purge Chicago of beer flats in expectation of the legalization of beer, the city council late yesterday boosted the fees for retail beverage licenses and limited their issuance to applicants of good character. The vote was 45 to 2. The mayor and other public officials hailed the measure as a potential weapon in the fight to drive hoodlums out of the city.

While the council was in session police continued making raids and warning speakeasy owners to close. Some twenty-five owners who refused to heed earlier warnings had been raided up to midnight last night.

Raise License Fee to $300.

The matter before the city council was an amendment to the license ordinance and was introduced by Ald. John S. Clark [30th]. As passed, it establishes a fee of $150 for licenses for the handling of malt and vinous nonintoxicating beverages, the licenses to be good for a six month period starting Jan. 1, 1933. This is at the rate of $300 for a full year. The present fee, which will be in effect until the first of the year, is $100 for a full year.

The new ordinance also affects restaurants which heretofore have not been required to buy beverage licenses to sell near beer and similar drinks. After Jan. 1 all restaurants whose food dispensing licenses cost less than $300 must purchase separate beverage certificates if they desire to sell malt beverages.

No Licenses for Dwellings.

The licensing measure provides that no beverage license will be issued for a dwelling, flat, or apartment building. This, it is hoped, will wreck the so-called second floor beer flat against which the mayor's drive is now directed. Every alderman voting, including the two who voted against the amendment, agreed on that clause. The two who cast negative votes were Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady and O. E. Northrup. They objected technically to the fee boost.

Mayor Cermak pointed out that with all beverage dispensing places recorded in the license lists, better supervision to prevent violations will be easier.

Capt. Charles McGurn of the Chicago avenue station issued an order last night to three patrol sergeants and ten detectives to make written explanations of why they failed to observe operations in the United International Sales company offices at 413 West Division street. This place was raided by downtown detail Tuesday and several alleged hoodlums were arrested. Alcohol, cutting equipment, and labels were found.

R. E. BURNS, FUGITIVE FROM CHAIN GANG, IS CAPTURED IN NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Robert E. Burns, former Chicago magazine editor, known for two escapes from a Georgia chain gang, was captured in Broad street tonight. He was walking along the sidewalk serenely unconscious of two detectives trailing behind.

Burns was taken to a cell and questioned by Chief James A. McRell. At midnight he was booked on a charge of being a fugitive from justice and ordered to appear in District 1 court tomorrow. Burns engaged Attorney Charles Handler to fight his removal to Georgia.

Known as the author of "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," which is now being shown on the screen throughout the country, Burns has spent his fugitive time in writing against the southern convict system. He spent many years in Chicago.

ZERO WAVE GRIPS CITY; PREDICT WARMER FRIDAY

A new cold wave from the northwest dropped the temperature slightly below zero at 3 o'clock this morning, according to unofficial records.

Thermometers near the loop registered slightly below the zero mark and at the Chicago airport showed 1.2 degrees below. A brisk wind added to the cold. The sub-zero readings broke a no-zero record for Chicago of nearly two years. The last zero reading here was on Jan. 23, 1930.

The cold wave, as predicted earlier in the day by the weather bureau, arrived toward evening and the mercury lowered gradually. The highest reading of the day was 22 degrees above. At 9 o'clock last night the temperature was 13 above and at midnight 6 above. The forecast for today is about 10 above maximum, with slowly rising temperature tomorrow.

CONGRESS, ANGRY AT DEBT EVASIONS, MAY FORBID ALL PRIVATE CREDITS

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 14.—After its biggest night out in history France today woke up to face the "morning after."

As an immediate and direct consequence of last night's epochal debate in the chamber of deputies, which ended by that body overthrowing Premier Herriot's government and ordering default of the $19,261,432 war debt payment due America tomorrow, the country found itself in the midst of what promises to be one of the worst internal political crises it has ever seen.

With the budget for 1933 stalled for more than a month, with the treasury near the low water mark and a world-wide offensive against the franc going on, the country sees no chance of finding a stable government before many days or weeks.

Predict Eventual Dictatorship.

The traditional political consultations, held all day at Elysee palace, have so far failed to make the slightest progress toward finding a successor to Herriot. Political mathematicians are dizzy from trying to figure out any possible parliamentary combination which would insure a majority. Herriot's magistral speech last night, though it had no influence, is calculated to render hopeless the task of any premier who might be picked to succeed him.

In political quarters the frequent prediction was heard today that within less than three months the mess would be so bad there would be no way out but to constitute a government with dictatorial powers to govern by decree.

Now it is discovered that while the debt problem theoretically was disposed of by the chamber's vote, it is bound to become a sort of ghost which is going to haunt the sleep of any French government for a long time to come.

Herriot Breaks News to U. S.

Pending the formation of a new government the task fell to Herriot today to break the news formally to Washington that France will not pay tomorrow. Herriot decided against making any formal announcement, contenting himself with forwarding to Washington an informal explanation that, since his resignation had been accepted by President Albert Lebrun, he had no constitutional authority to make the payment which is due.

There is a strong desire in parliamentary circles to avoid any formal gesture of refusal or repudiation. It is pointed out that the resolution which the chamber adopted this morning, which is now a formal statement of French policy, expressly states that France does not wish to repudiate its signature and that it is merely "deferring" tomorrow's payment pending acceptance by America of the principle of holding a debt conference.

Berenger Is Optimistic.

In some quarters there is a tendency towards an optimistic view that nothing is broken which cannot be patched up and that future negotiations will settle the difficulty amicably. In the words of Henry Berenger, negotiator of the famous debt accord with the then Secretary of Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, "the chamber simply decided by its vote that until France and America can get together on an arrangement better suited to present conditions, France will defer payment. Naturally the Americans will not get their 19 millions tomorrow, but that will not kill them."

As far as the majority of politicians here are concerned, debt negotiations with Washington are not broken off. They are simply suspended.

As far as England is concerned, the press is insisting with just a little too much emphasis that nothing is changed and that Franco-British collaboration remains as close as ever.

Franc Takes a Nose Dive.

As was to be expected, the franc did not react with any enthusiasm to last night's business, while government bonds sagged on the market again. Most European currencies advanced in relation to the franc, indicating that heavy selling of French currency is going on.

The countries which had announced they would honor payment—Italy and Czechoslovakia—reaped the benefit of increased credit represented by the strong showing of their currencies, while among the defaulting countries only Belgian currency held up. The dollar did not advance farther, but

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—John Bull will live up to his traditional reputation for honesty tomorrow. He will transfer $95,550,000 in gold to the United States on account of the principal and interest on the war debt.

This announcement was made by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, during a heated debate in the house of commons tonight. The chancellor declared that for Great Britain to repudiate its signature was "unthinkable."

At the same time Chamberlain declared that the government would continue to press for a revision of the debt funding agreement with the United States. Britain's arguments, he said, "might not appeal to the middle west, but they would appeal to the more responsible and informed section of opinion in the United States."

Hopeful of U. S. Attitude.

"I do not think we need to be too dissatisfied with the progress of the negotiations and conversations with the government of the United States," he said. "We have raised no obstacle to friendly conversation upon the whole subject of debts by a refusal of payment, to which the United States government attaches so much importance."

The chancellor declined to take a gloomy view of the future, and he also refused to assume that the United States would take an attitude which would be, to Britain's thinking, altogether unreasonable. Everything pointed to the contrary, he said. As far as could be judged, he declared, the next President of the United States is not disposed to take an unreasonable or one-sided view of the implications of a very serious world problem.

The government came in for severe criticism during the debate, not for its decision to pay tomorrow's installment but for the method it has followed in seeking a revision, and particularly for lining up in a united front with France.

Lloyd George a Chief Actor.

The proceedings at times developed into heated discussions and interruptions, with tempers rising high amid noisy wrangles. The chief actors were David Lloyd George, Britain's wartime Liberal premier, and Sir Robert Horne, who was chancellor of the exchequer in Lloyd George's coalition government, which sent him to America in 1922 to settle the debt on the lines of the Balfour note.

Lloyd George disagreed with Sir Robert's version of what occurred at cabinet discussions before the Balfour note was issued, and a heated argument took place between them. Sir

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The French government's decision to default payment tomorrow of the 19 million dollars interest on the French war debt to the United States created a sensation in official Washington.

The almost unanimous judgment was that the deliberate repudiation of an obligation France is well able to discharge is an event ushering in a long period of impaired relations between the French and American peoples.

Retaliatory Measures Urged.

While the White House and the state department maintained silence on the development, Capitol hill was vibrant with condemnation of France. Senators and representatives deplored the action of the French government as a blunder which will prove embarrassing and costly to the French. Tourist and trade boycotts of France were suggested.

Many leaders in congress were of the opinion that one of the first measures adopted by this country will be a prohibition of loans by Americans to the governments or nationals of countries defaulting payments on debts due the United States. It was such action that impelled the debtors to begin paying the debts in the first place.

Not till the Harding administration put the lid on American private loans to debtor countries that had not made debt settlements did the debtors come to terms.

Bill Barring Loans Offered.

The first move to invoke such measures against defaulting debtors was made in the house today when Representative Harold Knutson [Rep., Minn.] introduced the following bill:

"Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled that the bringing into the United States of government securities of foreign countries which have defaulted in their contract obligations to the United States is hereby forbidden, and such importations and attempts to make such importations are made subject to the provisions of section 237 of the criminal code.

"Section 2. The advertisement for sale anywhere in the United States of such securities and the carrying of them through the mails is hereby forbidden. The provisions of section 5 of chapter 163 of the act of March 3, 1913, as amended shall apply to such advertisements and their publication or attempted publication and to the sending of such advertisements through the mails; provided, however, that nothing in this section shall apply to newspapers published in foreign countries when mailed to this country.

"Section 3. This act shall be and become in effect on the 13th day after it shall become a law."

The United States treasury holds no collateral or other security for the war loans, which total 11 billion 500 millions of dollars. For the original borrowings the borrowers gave simple promises to pay in gold.

When the funding settlements were made the debtors issued and delivered to the United States gold bonds in the principal amount of the debts.

In the case of France there falls due each year a bond in the amount of the principal payment fixed for that year. The French payment due tomorrow is wholly interest, but a bond in the principal amount of $21,477,135 will fall due June 15 next.

Congress during the war authorized the secretary of the treasury to make loans to the allied nations and to accept their obligations therefor "containing such terms and conditions as he may from time to time prescribe." It has been held that William G. McAdoo, then secretary of the treasury, could have exacted collateral or other security at the time, but he did not do so.

Urges Sale of French Bonds.

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], majority leader of the house, suggested that the French war debt bonds be sold on the French market.

"I remember," he said, "that at one time the United States owed France a large amount of money and we paid every cent with interest. I remember also that we have on deposit in the treasury the amount of her debt to us in bonds in French language redeemable in French money.

"Our agreement with France in the Liberty loan act is that we can put these bonds on her market at any time provided we can sell them for par and accrued interest. If the depression in France lifts as a result of her default so that her bonds reach par we will sell them.

"Subsequently France agreed to take up a portion of the bonds every year for 62 years. She has failed to do this, but the agreement to sell these bonds whenever we wish still stands. So France has not made anything by refusing to pay us. It is just too bad, that's all."

Britten Charges Enmity.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] said:

"The refusal of France to pay her honorable debts to the United States at a time when her ability to pay is unquestioned can only be regarded as the expression of French hatred for the United States and the things that we stand for. The American public will now realize that the secret Anglo-French agreement to destroy our cruiser equality with England and the subsequent raid upon our gold reserves were deliberate attempts at the destruction of our world position.

"France has now aligned herself with soviet Russia as an irresponsible nation and as such should be treated accordingly.

"There are comparatively few officially unemployed adults in France. Her factories are teeming with business and her gold supply is the largest in the history of the French republic. If this latest French trick does not immediately arouse a strong spirit of nationalism in this country then there must be something radically wrong with the American backbone."

Views of Other Leaders.

Other expressions follow:

Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], Republican leader of the senate —"France has been a lone wolf among the European nations and her treatment of us has been most inexcusable and indefensible. I thought she would uphold her national honor and integrity on a debt of so small an amount. If it had not been for the United States there would not be any France today. She has been guilty of the basest ingratitude and national dishonor."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], senate minority leader—"France is amply able to pay her debt, and her default is very regrettable."

Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.]—"The action of France is what had been expected. France has lost prestige in this country by her action."

Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.]—"France is going to lose more money than she will gain by repudiation of her debt agreement in the loss of tourist trade and the resentment of Americans against buying French goods. The resolution of Representative Knutson is wholly unnecessary. There is no danger that Americans will buy French bonds or French products. If they buy French bonds they deserve to lose what money they have."

Repudiation of War Debt Called "Unthinkable."

Robert was sharply challenged by Lloyd George for asserting that he was sent to Washington "with full discretion to arrange a settlement."

"That is absolutely untrue," broke in Lloyd George, who had the minutes of those cabinet meetings in front of him. "I say that the discretion was to settle in accordance with the Balfour note."

"I don't dispute that," Sir Robert retorted.

A storm of denials and counterdenials arose when Lloyd George demanded that the full minutes of the 1922 cabinet be published and asserted that Sir Robert was one of two dissenters from the policy of the Balfour note.

Austen Chamberlain Enters Row.

At this point Sir Austen Chamberlain dramatically interposed with the remark that "I was the other. What we dissented from was not the policy of the Balfour note but the policy of writing that note and addressing a note to European powers which was really directed against the policy of the United States."

An angry discussion followed, with interruptions from all parts of the house. Lloyd George demanded a hearing, declaring it was more incumbent than ever that the cabinet minutes be published. Sir Robert said he had no objection to their publication. Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council and lord privy seal, said that personally he was quite willing for the minutes to be published, and added that he would prefer to publish the whole discussions on the American debt at the same time.

Lloyd George contended that if the Baldwin settlement of 1923 had been made on the same terms as those negotiated by France with America, Britain would already have overpaid in installments to America and no other payment from Britain would be necessary before 1940.

Viciously Attacks Government.

Lloyd George made a violent attack on the government for ignoring parliament in connection with the decision to pay the present installment. He contrasted the British policy with that of the French, where the parliament had the last say.

"It is a remarkable fact that this is the only parliament where the views of the members are not allowed expression," he declared. "Others can have an opportunity for discussion, but the poor old mother of parliaments can gibber in her corner while £20,000,000 of her gold is taken away."

The French, he declared, were absolutely right in saying to America, "You must parley before we pay." Lloyd George declared he is against repudiation now, but he insisted that Britain should have followed the French example. It was not repudiation, he insisted, to say: "If we cannot collect our debts, we cannot pay our debtors."

Says U. S. Repudiated Versailles.

The payment to be made tomorrow should have been earmarked in any case as merely a payment into court, he said. He urged Britain to take a bold line and say, "This has got to stop."

One of the few cheers Lloyd George received was when he asserted that by repudiating its signature to the Versailles treaty, America was largely responsible for all that has happened since.

Earlier Winston Churchill had attacked the government's handling of the whole debt question, and especially the Lausanne agreement. He assailed a policy which excused France from payment of her debt to Britain while advising her to pay America and he denounced the Lausanne agreement as "migratory and illusory."

"We have prejudiced our own case in the United States by linking it up so much with France," he said. "The efficacy of the Lausanne settlement was destroyed from the moment it was realized that it was only contingent upon settlement with the United States."

The British government, he said, was right to pay America, but wrong to urge France to pay at Britain's expense.

"Happily, good news has come from France," Churchill said, alluding to the defeat of Premier Herriot's ministry, which he hailed as "a deliverance for the British government from the worst consequences of their own actions."

Churchill declared that until a new government is in power and responsible, writing notes to the United States is "like writing notes to the Atlantic ocean." The new men, who would shortly take power in the United States were animated, he believed, by warm sentiments toward Britain.

Gives British View of Debt.

In opening the debate Chamberlain gave a detailed history of the British war debt to America. Every cent of these debts, he said, was incurred after the United States entered the war. The British expenditures in the United States, he said, amounted to £1,444,000,000 (at $5 to the pound), of which Britain found £258,000,000 from its own resources.

Britain was to be reimbursed by the allies for expenditures in their behalf, and the remainder, £813,000,000, was financed by loans from the United States. He emphasized that every penny of this was spent for war purposes and goods purchased in the United States — munitions, food, and clothing—and he declined to recognize any difference between munitions blown to pieces and clothes worn to rags or food consumed. There was no addition to the wealth of Britain and no distinction between the various war services, he said.

Describes Funding Agreement.

Chamberlain then described the funding agreement, by which Baldwin secured a reduction of 15 per cent of the British debt to the United States. Britain in turn carried out funding agreements with the European allies under the terms of the Balfour note, by which she forgave France 62 per cent and Italy 86 per cent of their debts. He said Britain had forgiven £2,550,000,000 due from her debtors under this policy.

Chamberlain then traced the development of the international economic crisis, which, he said, made it increasingly difficult to pay, leading to the Hoover moratorium last year. He declared President Hoover, by implication, recognized a connection between war debts and reparations.

Outlining recent efforts by Europe to get an extension of this moratorium, Chamberlain referred to the conversations at Washington between Hoover and Premier Laval of France.

He said that at that time the British ambassador in Washington was informed that if the European powers devised a reasonable settlement of reparations, that it would be the best approach to the United States for a revision of war debts.

Why Britain Decided to Pay.

A remarkable passage in Chamberlain's speech referred to considerations making it imperative for Britain to stick to its bond.

"Three courses were open to us," he said. "We could have declined to pay on the ground that payment would still further aggravate the serious situation of the world. We could have invited the United States to waive the right to ninety days' notice and requested postponement of the principal while paying the interest. Third, we could pay in full.

"If we had adopted the first course, by whatever motive alleged, it would have been default, for we could not truthfully say we were unable to pay. Such a default would have resounded around the world and might have been taken as justification for other defaults in other circumstances.

"Further, such default would have administered a shock to the moral sense of our people which might have had the most profound effect on our whole conception of the meaning of obligations, public or private, and the consequences can only be guessed. We therefore rejected the first course.

"After our plea on wide considerations was refused, we could not put forward the second. To make a plea in forma pauperis to be let off on part of the payment would not have been a dignified proceeding. We therefore decided on the third course."

Chamberlain then explained the reasons for the British attempt to obtain the consent of the United States to reservations with the payment and recited the effects of the Lausanne agreement on reparations. If, however, the Lausanne agreement is finally not ratified, he said, the legal position of before Lausanne would be restored and Britain would go back to the Balfour note demanding only from her debtors what she herself had to pay her creditor.

Denies Deal with France.

"There never was any entanglement," he said. "We have never been bound to a united front with France. We have made it clear from the very beginning that, while we ought and must as signatories to the Lausanne agreement communicate with one another from time to time information as to what we are doing, we would not attempt to make any joint representations to the United States and each one of us must hold ourselves absolutely free to make what arrangement we thought desirable and feasible with the United States government."

STIMSON DINNER TO CLAUDEL NOT LIKELY TO DISCUSS DEBTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—One society item which is sure to be read with more than usual interest tomorrow will tell of the dinner given tonight for Secretary of State Stimson by M. Paul Claudel, the French ambassador to the United States. Just what the two officials will talk about is certain to become a matter of considerable speculation in view of the announcement by France today that she plans to default her $19,000,000 war debt payment to this country tomorrow.

State department officials explained tonight that the dinner engagement had been made several weeks ago and was a part of the regular formal dinner series given each winter. Secretary and Mrs. Stimson, together with thirty guests, attended.

In view of the resentment stirred up in congressional circles by the French debt action, it would not be surprising if the Claudel dinner figures in the senate or house discussion tomorrow. One official said tonight that it was very likely that one subject which the secretary and the ambassador would not discuss would be debts.

BELGIAN PREMIER WHO REPUDIATED U. S. DEBT RECALLED TO POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 14.—A new ministry much the same as the old may be formed to follow the cabinet which resigned yesterday after announcing Belgium's default of its $2,125,000 war debt installment due the United States tomorrow.

King Albert has asked the resigned premier, Count Charles de Broqueville, to form a new government and the most likely result is a coalition similar to the one which began in October. The count interviewed political leaders today, but had no progress to report tonight.

In repudiating its debt installment, Belgium pleaded that the agreement of 1925 was based on the nation's capacity to pay, and in present circumstances it cannot do so.

BRITAIN TO PAY WITH 200 TONS OF GOLD IN BARS

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Scorning the chance to save $3,000,000 by tendering treasury bonds in the usual way, the British government arranged today to meet tomorrow's $95,550,000 war debt installment by the payment of nearly 200 tons of gold bars.

This spectacular and unprecedented means of making the payment, selected, in the opinion of the financial community, to lend emphasis to Great Britain's contention that the remittance does not imply resumption of the old scale of payments, but is in a separate category, was arranged by coöperation between the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the Bank of England. In connection with the transaction the reserve bank issued the following announcement:

"At the request of the Bank of England the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has arranged to place at the disposal of the Bank of England on Dec. 15 gold to the value of $95,550,000 against an equivalent amount of gold earmarked for the account of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in London pending shipment to New York."

Merely Bookkeeping Today.

The entire operation will involve a series of transactions most of which will involve merely bookkeeping entries on the books of the federal reserve bank. First the reserve bank will set aside the $95,550,000 gold in a separate part of its vaults, tagged to indicate that the metal belongs to the Bank of England. Simultaneously the Bank of England will set aside an equal amount tagged with the name of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Then, acting on instructions from the British bank of issue, the federal reserve bank will transfer the gold from the account of the Bank of England to the account of the United States treasury, notifying the treasury that it has done so. This will complete payment, the treasury, however, has no immediate need for the gold, but it will need several hundred million dollars of cash today for use in connection with payment of interest on the national debt and the redemption of maturing government securities.

Gold to Be Sold Back.

Accordingly the treasury will at once sell the gold back to the federal reserve bank in return for a deposit credit with the bank. The deposits so created will be paid out during the day in meeting the treasury's requirements. The federal reserve will be left at the end of the day with just as much gold as it had at the start, but in addition it will own $95,550,000 gold set aside for it in London.

This gold the reserve bank will at once order shipped to New York as rapidly as ocean transportation is available. On the basis of past expedience it will probably take about six weeks to bring the gold here. The shipping charges will, of course, be paid by the Bank of England. Otherwise no charges for interest or services will enter into the deal.

IF REPUDIATION RULES, BRITAIN WILL LOSE MOST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Great Britain stands to lose more than any other country if a general epidemic of repudiation or default on debts follows the French, Belgian, Hungarian, and Greek refusals to pay on their American debts. Britain is still the world's largest creditor country and her foreign claims, either public or private, far exceed her external obligations.

Figures estimating the total private British holdings abroad necessarily are subject to considerable error, not only because some of the inverstments are disguised, but for other reasons, one of the chief of which is the fact that the most reliable indicator—income tax returns—does not show in these days of crisis the fundamental value of many investments.

Stake Put Over 26 Billions.

The best opinion in England, however, gathered by the country's leading economists and the governmental board of trade, place the entire British stake abroad, both governmental and private, somewhere around 26 billion, 655 million dollars [at par]. The total is even now subject to considerable reduction because some perils of repudiation have already been realized by the British treasury.

This gigantic figure chiefly consists of private ventures of capital outside the country. Most of these have been used to back private commercial and industrial development, notably railways. Present day calculations, considering depreciated values, estimate private holdings abroad at around 15 billion dollars.

Two years ago these loans and investments were worth another 5 billion dollars, but price declines lopped off a quarter of their value. Interest and dividends on these advances at one time were valued at 1,400 million dollars annually, but an estimate of their income values last year by an outstanding British economist was 750 million dollars.

Big Loss from Repudiation.

Among the assets carried on the books of the British government are advances to the dominions and colonies, the former allies, and to countries as relief loans. These were figured last March at 5 billion 743 million dollars.

The British exchequer's books carry the total of dominion and foreign governmental debts as assets to a nominal value of 11 billion 655 millions. There is, however, a gigantic item included in unfunded debts which shows what a heavy loser Britain has been in the past through repudiation. This is the unfunded claim against Russia, reaching the expansive total of 5 billion 332 millions. There is another capital sum claimed against Armenia, totaling $7,225,000, so that nearly half the governmental assets already have been arbitrarily erased by repudiations of debtors.

Britain's dominions and colonies owe her $571,473,000. By far the biggest debtor in this group is Australia, whose debt of $398,620,000 to Britain is more than three times that of any other British possession.

France Is Leading Debtor.

Among the former allies indebted to Britain, France is by far the leader so that Britain had a keen interest in the repudiation vote in the chamber of deputies this morning. Before the Lausanne reparations agreement suspended intra-European debt payments, Britain's bill in France totaled 3 billion 779 million dollars. Next comes Italy, owing 1 billion 264 million dollars.

The other former allies who have funded debts are Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Portugal and Greece, owing between 100 and 150 millions each. The total allied debt is just over 5 billion 575 million dollars.

Relief loans include 45 million dollars to Belgium, 44 millions to Austria, 20 millions to Poland, 10½ millions to Rumania and nearly 10 millions to Jugo-Slavia. The entire relief loan bill amounts in roun' figures to $148,475,000. Other debts owed by Latvia, Estonia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Greece and Rumania aggregate the relatively small amount of $16,500,000.

Holds Diverse Assets.

Among the British government's miscellaneous assets are listed Suez canal shares valued at $264,738,000 and —another taste of a violently disrupted contract—Anglo-Persian oil shares listed at $26,000,000.

British private investments within the empire total approximately 9 billion 590 million dollars. The chief recipients of these funds were Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and India. In Canada investments in commercial stocks and bonds amount to 1 billion 50 million dollars and in governmental and corporation loans, $510,000,000.

Commercial stocks and bonds in Australia and New Zealand total only $255,000,000, but governmental and corporation loans are far higher because of government ownership there of railroads and other utilities. This type of security is valued at 2 billion 600 million dollars.

Commercial enterprises in India and Ceylon have been backed by the British investor by $675,000,000 and government finances by 1 billion 95 million dollars. The total imperial commercial investments in stocks and bonds are 4 billion 365 millions. Private loans to imperial governments aggregate 5 billion 225 million dollars.

17 Billions Outside Empire.

Outside the empire British capital is sunk in enterprises and governments to the extent of 16 billion 955 million. The biggest part of this is in commercial investments totaling 9 billion 995 million dollars and the chief sharers in these funds are Argentina and other Latin-American countries. Argentina is the scene of investments now worth around 1 billion 460 million dollars. Other South and Central American countries have used British money for the development of holdings now estimated at 1 billion 600 million dollars.

British commercial investments in Europe total $845,000,000 and in the rest of the world $795,000,000. Private purchases and corporation loans outside the empire reach $745,000,000 in the western hemisphere, distributed chiefly among the South American countries, $565,000,000 in Europe, and $465,000,000 in the rest of the world.

ITALY ANNOUNCES "PAYMENT IS MADE"; AVOIDS DISPUTES

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

ROME, Dec. 14. — Continuing its policy of avoiding any polemics, either internally or externally, regarding the war debt installment, the Italian government today issued a brief communique announcing that payment to the United States of the Dec. 15 interest had been completed.

Italy has no payment on principal account due now. The communique reads:

"In conformity with the deliberations of the grand council of Fascism on last Dec. 5, the Italian government deposited today as payment to the government of the United States the sum of $1,245,437 as the total of the installment on the Italian war debt to the United States."

POLAND BACKS FRANCE; WILL NOT MAKE PAYMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 14.—The American reply to Poland's second debt note was received tonight, but it was learned from official sources that Poland will not pay the $4,427,980 installment due Dec. 15 and an official announcement to that effect is expected tomorrow.

The Warsaw foreign office held telephonic conversations with the French foreign office through most of the day, with the result that Poland has agreed to support the French attitude on the debt question. A report was also received at Warsaw that Estonia had officially declined to pay her debt, but that Latvia has decided to pay. Polish influence in Estonia is comparable to French influence in Warsaw.

Poland's official excuse for failing to meet her obligations is said to be difficulties in balancing the budget.

FRANCE STANDS TO LOSE LITTLE IN DEBT DEFAULTS

Most of Loans Protected by Political Conditions.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 14.—One of the arguments against debt default which the French chamber of deputies heard but did not listen to last night was the threat that if repudiation became general the French treasury and French banks would be unable to collect millions of dollars loaned throughout Europe.

In the first place, besides the lump sum liquidating reparations payments, which Germany so far has only paid over in the form of three year bonds, France still has outstanding debts from her three wartime allies—Rumania, Greece, and Jugo-Slavia.

$450,000,000 Loaned Since War.

Rumania owes France $105,000,000 and is due to pay $600,000 this year. Greece owes nearly $4,000,000, of which a little over $400,000 is due this year. Jugo-Slavia owes $107,000,000 and pays out of the Young plan reparations, which are now canceled.

Since the war France has loaned more than $450,000,000 to different European governments or government backed enterprises. This, divided up, is as follows:

Direct treasury loans to governments, $44,000,000.

Loans by the Bank of France to foreign banks of issue, $88,000,000.

Loans by French banks to foreign governments with the backing of the French government, $335,000,000.

No accurate statistics exist on the full extent of private loans abroad.

French Have Little to Fear.

While France theoretically thus stands to lose more than half a billion dollars if the example of the French chamber is followed by other governments, an analysis of the loans shows they have actually little to fear.

In the first place, with the exception of the Bank of France loans to the Reichsbank, the Bank of Spain, and the Bank of England, which could not very well be repudiated, virtually all French loans were granted to allied powers who depend on France for their very existence.

These loans are tied up with military, political, and economic counterparts which will repay France sufficiently whether the money is ever reimbursed or not. Most of the treasury loans, especially those to Austria, Hungary, and Greece, were counted as a dead loss financially from the start and were granted solely for political reasons.

Buys Allies With Loans.

Loans to the central European vassals—Jugo-Slavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania—cannot very well be repudiated by those powers, because French support is necessary for their very existence. On the other hand, they give France a return for her money by maintaining her political and military hegemony in Europe. At present none of these countries is able to meet its debt payments, but they have not formally defaulted and there is no expectation they will do so, except possibly on war loans, which are not important.

There is another category of debts held by France, such as Turkish bonds and other pre-war loans, all of which have been defaulted.

In general, France does not worry on this score, because the vast majority of debts are either secured by something more than a mere signature or are uncollectable in any event.

Turks to Pay Interest.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Representatives of the Turkish government today reached an agreement in principle with holders of the old Ottoman debt whereby Turkey will resume payment of interest on that part of the Ottoman debt for which Turkey resumed responsibility after the fall of the Ottoman empire. The capital of about 900,000,000 French francs (currently about $36,000,000) will take the form of new Turkish bonds bearing 7½ per cent interest.

FRENCH POLICE GUARD AMERICAN ENVOY AT UNVEILING CEREMONY

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Police precautions were taken today at the laying of the cornerstone of a new students' building of the Dupont de Nemours foundation. French authorities insisted on putting policemen in the automobile of Theodore Marriner, counselor of the American embassy, who represented Ambassador Walter E. Edge, during the drive from the embassy to the scene of the ceremony.

There was no untoward incident, however. A small, orderly crowd was present. In a speech, Mr. Marriner, declared that the foundation inaugurates another facility for carrying on and strengthening cultural relations between France and America.

The foundation was established in connection with the French Welcome society, of which Mme. Boas de Jouvenel was the founder. The purpose of the foundation is to encourage the exchange of students between the Universities of Paris and Delaware. The building now being erected is in the memory of Pierre Samuel Dupont de Nemours, ancestor of the Delaware family.

FRENCH DEFAULT FELT BY CENTRAL EUROPE STATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—The fall of Premier Herriot's cabinet as a result of the French debt default had its reaction here. The French franc dropped and all eastern European currencies were quoted lower.

Rumania today pleaded inability to pay interest and amortization on eastern reparations due tomorrow. Reports from Bucharest tonight said that an extension of three months has been granted her. Jugo-Slavia also asked for an extension. The parliament in addition resolved to give the government power to take special measures to preserve the stability of the currency.

Austria is in danger of losing a $40,000,000 loan through the French crisis. It was agreed at Lausanne that Austria would receive this loan in exchange for an agreement to refrain until 1943 from any attempt at a customs union with Germany. If France fails to ratify the Lausanne agreement before January, Austria will be free for customs union activities.

MEXICO TO QUIT LEAGUE; FINDS COSTS TOO MUCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Dec. 14.—Much gloom was spread here today when Mexico served notice that after six months' membership it finds the league of nations club too expensive. This comes while memories still are fresh of the rejoicing with which Mexico was received into the league, which excluded her at the outset.

Spain, which in her rôle as spiritual mentor to Spanish America labored to get Mexico in, is terribly embarrassed by her protégé's desertion.

But league rules require two years' notice to quit and, although it was given today, Mexico will have to go on paying her $100,000 a year dues over this period.

FRANCE IS SHOWN IN TRUE COLORS! GERMANY CRIES

'Bleeding' of Reparations for Years Recalled.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—While responsible business leaders are alarmed by the Franco-American conflict over the war debt, the German "man in the street" and the bulk of the press share a slight satisfaction.

"France's refusal to pay a few paltry millions, while at the same time she is hoarding the world's greatest gold reserve per capita, will show the true French colors to America," one commentator said.

"As long as France could squeeze a cent out of Germany in reparations —payment of which was a violation of the armistice agreement—France was a Shylock who claimed and received his pound of flesh. When it comes to paying a small sum on the huge amount which she received from America, France claims that international agreements are not binding."

Proposes World Reprisals.

The Deutsche Zeitung, a nationalist organ which has never sympathized with the United States, said: "It is time for the American sheriff to collect part of the debts France owes to America. It is the small investors in America who will suffer the most from the French failure to pay, although she is wallowing in gold. Are there no international sanctions against French breaches of contract?"

"Belgium says she cannot pay her debt to America, but a few days ago she was rich enough to order 60,000,000 francs [about $2,400,000] worth of machine gun stands," says the organ of the Young German Order.

Holds France in Scorn.

The Tag says: "Rich France refuses to pay part of her debt on goods delivered to her years ago, although the sum involved is smaller than what the powers made Germany agree to pay on top of all her reparations in the final Lausanne agreement. Rich France cannot pay $19,000,000 in debts after her threats of blackmail forced Germany to mortgage everything she owned to pay France billions in gold, goods and property."

Only the Social Democrats side with France. The Vorwaerts says:

"The French decision will prove a necessary lesson in America. The American war profiteers are the only ones who made money on the four years of carnage.

Threatens European Front.

"They consider all problems from a money angle and constantly extend haughty advice to the world, while they, themselves, think only of their financial and imperialistic interests. They must be taught that Europe is not a machine which exists only to pay interest."

The Vorwaerts threatens that "if America drives Europe too hard, the European front will rise. It will teach a lesson to New York business moguls and also to the entire American population. The American financial yoke must be overthrown if the world is to surmount the present depression."

BIG CRISIS FACES FRANCE; PREDICT A DICTATORSHIP

Another thing that contributed to that brown taste was an instantaneous reaction from Berlin indicating that the Germans are going to intensify their onslaught on the Versailles treaty. The German foreign office, it was revealed in humorless semi-official dispatches, hailed the French action in dishonoring the debt contract as meaning that France had abandoned insistence on treaties, and considers that there should now be less opposition to scrapping the treaty of Versailles.

For Herriot the day was a quiet one. Immediately after leaving the chamber he went with the entire cabinet to Elysee palace, according to French political ritual, and handed his resignation to President Lebrun. Then he returned to Quai d'Orsay and went to bed, sleeping until late this afternoon.

Lebrun Calls in Leaders.

Virtually all political leaders were consulted by President Lebrun today. They expressed the opinion that Herriot's personal prestige is undiminished, and there is a strong movement to draft him again. It is virtually certain that Lebrun will call him in tomorrow night and invite him to reform the government. It is equally certain that he will refuse.

It is too early to prognosticate who will get the tough assignment of trying to form a government. War Minister Joseph Paul Boncour is prominently mentioned, as are also Joseph Caillaux and Henry Berenger, both of Herriot's left cartel, and Edouard Daladier.

In any event, the political formula prevailing hitherto seems to be broken up by the breach between the Socialists and radicals. There are indications that the eventual solution of the crisis may be a revival of a concentration of the center and left center, somewhat like the last Poincare cabinet, but that is still a long way off.

Chamber Lost Its Head.

There is no question but that the chamber lost its head last night. Not entirely over debts, but also by giving way to an irresponsible desire to throw out the Herriot government because of opposition to some internal policies. Debts merely provided the pretext.

One incident of last night's street riots came to light today, when it was learned that Francis Withey, 20 year old son of Howard F. Withey, American consul, got mixed up in the crowd near the chamber and was arrested and mauled by the police. He suffered a black eye and other injuries before his identity was discovered.

VON SCHLEICHER TO PUSH 'PEACE, WORK AND BREAD'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—"Peace, work and bread" will be the slogan of the new government program which Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher will expound to Germany Thursday night. The program, formulated at a meeting of the cabinet, calls for $400,000,000 to finance work for the idle.

The money will be obtained from the fund previously set aside for rewards to employers for the employment of new workmen and by means of a loan from the Reichsbank. A system by which "tax certificates" will be issued in lieu of payments in cash will also be used.

A decree issued tonight fulfilled the demand of the reichstag to cancel the section of the decree promulgated on Sept. 5 under which employers were permitted to cut wages in proportion to increases in the number of employés.

ORAN, Algeria, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Unfavorable weather forced Amy Johnson Mollison, flying from Cape Town to England, to land today at Benlounif, Morocco. She planned to resume her flight across the Atlas mountains to Oran as soon as possible.

MEXICO APPROVES DECISION GIVING ISLE TO FRANCE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Mexican senate, by a vote of 29 to 12, today approved reports of its foreign relations committee recommending compliance with a decision of the king of Italy giving Clipperton island to France.

The island, a lonely, gull inhabited rock about 1,400 miles west of Costa Rica in the Pacific, is only about a mile square. The Italian king was named arbiter between France and Mexico in the dispute.

The opposition in the senate enunciated a doctrine analogous to that expressed in the Monroe Doctrine.

The dispute over Clipperton developed from the fact that the rock was "rediscovered" by half a dozen nations over a period of several centuries. At one time the American flag was flown there.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Three directors of state departments today told the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures that the budgets for the next biennium for the work handled by them called for a reduction of $1,383,445.

The directors who revealed the slash in their budget requests, which will be made at the next general assembly, and the amount of such reduction under that appropriated for the last two years were:

Stuart E. Pierson, director of the department of agriculture, $945,573.

M. F. Walsh, director of the department of education and registration, $347,872.

Dr. Andy Hall, director of the department of public health, $90,000.

ELY, NOTED YALE FOOTBALL STAR, FALLS TO DEATH

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Morris Upham Ely, whose feats as Yale quarter back in 1898 are still remembered, jumped or fell today from the tenth floor of the Yale club.

His body struck in the midst of heavy traffic and narrowly missed a sedan occupied by two women.

Police identified him from business cards and initialed cuff links. He was a lawyer and lived at 1185 Park avenue.

Dispatches from Reno, Nev., last August reported his wife, Mrs. Ethel Adams Ely was there seeking a divorce. They were married Nov. 21, 1911, and had two daughters, Eleanor and Barbara.

Mr. Ely graduated from Yale in 1898 and played baseball and football throughout his course. The '98 game with Princeton was a football classic. Ely played at quarter back throughout despite a fractured collar bone and two broken ribs.

Earlier today another man fell or jumped from the New York Athletic club building. He was identified as William J. Coghlan, 52, of Travers Island.

$3 worth of protection for $1 if you use Pepsodent Antiseptic

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

IT DIDN'T take the public long to figure out the difference between Pepsodent Antiseptic and other leading kinds. Common sense said, "Here's the difference between one dollar and three dollars . . . the difference between positively killing germs and being fooled by diluting old-style antiseptics."

Two kinds of antiseptics

Most mouth antiseptics kill germs only when used full strength. But Pepsodent Antiseptic is powerful enough even when diluted with 2 parts of water to kill germs in 10 seconds! Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. It goes 3 times as far —gives you 3 times as much for your money—and gives you greater protection against sore throat colds.

Use Pepsodent for safety

Millions who once diluted ordinary antiseptics now discover their mistake. Be sure you choose the antiseptic that, even when mixed with water, kills germs. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—be sure! Be safe . . . and save your money!

IMPURE BREATH
(Halitosis)
The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

RESTRAIN "IGGY" AS STATE ASKS DEATH PENALTY

Rages at Prosecutor; To Hear Sentence Today.

The murder case against James [Iggy] Varecha, 17 years old, was taken under advisement yesterday afternoon by Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court. The judge announced that he would fix the punishment at 2 p. m. tomorrow. His ruling came after he had heard the closing arguments in which Prosecutor Walker Butler demanded death in the electric chair for the youthful killer.

Varecha will be sentenced on his plea of guilty to the slaying of Frank F. Jordan during a robbery Nov. 16. On the same night, he admitted, he robbed another motorist and raped a woman. His confession included admissions of 25 robberies, six shootings and the rape of a second woman robbery victim.

State Demands Electrocution.

Declaring the court's responsibility in fixing the death penalty was shared by the state's attorney, Prosecutor Walker urged that Varecha be electrocuted.

"This defendant is guilty not only of the crime charged, but of many others that he has confessed," said the prosecutor. "These crimes are acts of delinquency and not those of a mental defective. I call your attention to the answer of the defendant when asked by Chief Schoemaker how he managed to get into the home for mental defectives in Dixon. Varecha said: 'All you've got to do is act a little nutty.'"

At this point Varecha leaped to his feet, shouting "You're a liar" at the prosecutor. Three bailiffs restrained the killer. He was invited to take the witness stand by Judge Prystalski, but he refused and the prosecutor continued.

Calls Reform Hopeless.

"Even the court's own witness has said this defendant is responsible for his own delinquency," said Butler. "You have not a first offender here, but a constant offender. He has a record as long as your honor's arm. He has shown no iota of repentance, sorrow or contrition. I never saw a defendant as belligerent and unrepenting as Varecha. I ask you to do what no jury would fail to do. The attitude of lawlessness of this defendant cries out his refusal to be a part of society.

"I demand the extreme penalty. Imprisonment is to reform and make a criminal fit to come back to society. This defendant will never be reformed. Any prison sentence he might get would be a futile and useless gesture. It might be said that you could lock the defendant up forever and conserve the interests of society. You cannot guarantee this to the people, no matter what sentence you impose."

Calls "Chair" Only Cure.

He told the court that any sentence less than death would be a moral victory for Varecha, a "cool, calculating and deliberating criminal." The argument that Varecha came of a poor family was scorned by the prosecutor, who pointed out that many citizens had failed to use such an origin as an excuse for crime. He closed with a plea that the electric chair was the "only cure" for Varecha.

Defense Attorney Nosek urged that the evidence had showed Varecha to be of defective intelligence.

"He was once sent to Dixon and, through poor facilities, escaped," Attorney Nosek said. "The police should have added to this confession one of their own for their failure to apprehend Varecha after the escape. All of the crimes mentioned by the prosecutor were committed after that escape. In the name of Almighty God, I ask you to spare the life of this defendant."

Herbert E. Bradley, the explorer, was elected president of the club for the next year, succeeding John B. Drake. Other new officers are: Frederick S. Colburn, vice president; John C. Nevins, secretary, and Tappan Gregory, treasurer. The guests included Edmund Heller, superintendent of the Milwaukee zoo; Dr. Wilfred H. Osgood, curator of zoology at the Field museum, and C. J. Albrecht, who recently completed mounting a water hole group at the museum.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 53; recovered, 32; stripped, 15 (from police records for the twenty-four hour period ending at midnight Tuesday).

Automobile defendants: James Roston, sentenced to thirty days for stealing an auto battery. Jesus Lafelder, Steve Aiello, William Workman, Dennie Ariollo and Matt Cieswelewicz held to the grand jury for auto larceny. Anton Schullo held to the grand jury for the larceny of an auto radio. All cases before Judge H. P. O'Connell.

As an aid to police in combating automobile thefts, Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] submitted an ordinance to the city council yesterday which would prohibit the sale in Chicago of master keys for automobiles. The ordinance was referred to the judiciary committee.

Ald. Hodes exhibited a circular put out by a Cleveland firm advertising for sale a set of 12 master keys for $3 that will "open any automobile door."

"There must be a drastic reduction in the insurance rates on automobiles, but this can only be accomplished if fewer automobiles are stolen in our city," Mr. Hodes added.

Police reports for Tuesday showed the lowest number of automobile thefts and strippings recorded for any one day in Chicago in the last eighteen months, Lieut. Maurice Wall of the stolen auto detail said last night.

"The cold weather naturally has reduced thefts," said the lieutenant. "However, the improvement is becoming general. Frequently now we recover more stolen cars in one day than there are new cars stolen."

THOUSANDS SEE BATTLE AGAINST LAKE FRONT FIRE

Thousands of office workers on Michigan avenue were given a demonstration of modern fire fighting yesterday when the inner structure of an abandoned warehouse near the mouth of the river was destroyed with a loss of $30,000. The four story brick building was enveloped in flames that rose high in the air and great billows of smoke rolled out over the lake.

A 4-11 alarm was signalled by Fire Commissioner Daniel Carmody, and 42 pieces of equipment, including the fire boats Graeme Stewart and Illinois, responded. Shortly after 12:01 p. m., when the first alarm was received, 40,000 gallons of water a minute was being poured upon the warehouse and this continued until the alarm was struck out at 1:44 p. m.

Commissioner Carmody estimated that more than 3,000,000 gallons of water was drawn from the river, the lake and the fire hydrants, and it swept back into the lake in cascades from a pool around the building in which firemen stood knee deep.

Incendiaries Are Suspected.

The warehouse, formerly occupied by the Western Cold Storage company, is situated on the south side of the river about one block west of the lake front. The fire started on the first floor in the center of the building, which is divided into three sections. Commissioner Carmody said the water streaming from the building bore traces of oil and Fire Attorney Thomas Sheehan was instructed to make an investigation on the theory that incendiaries started the blaze.

While the firemen were fighting the blaze there was danger that the walls would crumple in the terrific heat and fall upon some of the 300 firemen, Commissioner Carmody said, but the walls were saved. The roof and floors of the central part of the building crashed to the ground.

4-11 Alarm Is Sounded.

After Joseph Mackey, first division marshal, sounded a 3-11 alarm, bringing Commissioner Carmody and Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan, a 4-11 was sounded and the following apparatus appeared on the scene: Two fire boats, seventeen engines, five trucks, three high pressure wagons, two water towers, three squad trucks, one rescue company, one ambulance, one insurance patrol, the commissioner's car, the marshal's car, the division marshal's car, and four battalion chiefs' cars.

Ice was broken in the lake, and four hose lines, 3½ inches in diameter, attached to each of the three high pressure wagons began shooting a total of 7,200 gallons of water a minute through the six turret pipes.

The water towers, their nozzles 85 feet in the air, poured a total of 7,200 gallons of water a minute upon the burning building from three 3 inch pipes on each tower.

The fireboats, fed from the river and supplying most of the water for the high pressure apparatus, added 2,000 gallons a minute each. The 17 engines added another 1,000 gallons a minute each.

Commissioner Carmody said an investigator for the board of fire underwriters had inspected all the warehouses at the mouth of the river yesterday morning and had been in the abandoned structure only a few minutes before the fire started. This convinced the commissioner that an incendiary was responsible. Four fires have occurred in the vicinity in the last week. Officials of the Nickel Plate railroad, who turned in the alarm, said a youth of about 16 had been seen at all the fires.

BOY HELD IN $50,000 BONDS.

Nicholas Anselmo, 17 years old, 929 Cambridge avenue, was held to the grand jury in bonds totaling $50,000 yesterday by Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell after he had been identified by victims of six robberies.

"MOIST THROAT" AIDS COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that awful cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

FALSE TEETH Can Not Embarrass

Most wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their teeth dropped or slipped at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little Fasteeth on your plates. Make false teeth stay in place and feel comfortable. Sweetens breath. Get Fasteeth at Walgreen's or any other good drug store.

REVOLT AGAINST ECONOMY PLAN IN CITY COUNCIL

Aldermen Assail Sargent Committee Proposal.

Members of the city council revolted yesterday against the proposal of the Sargent committee on public expenditures that they pass a resolution binding themselves to limit the city's 1933 tax levies, other than bond and interest requirements to $50,000,000. The committee economy measure already had been indorsed by Mayor Cermak.

ALD. CLARK.

There was no vote on the resolution submitted by Mayor Cermak, but the proposal was subjected to vigorous attacks by aldermen, led by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], who as chairman of the finance committee has a powerful role in shaping the city budget.

Refer Resolution to Committee.

The resolution, with the letter of the Sargent committee setting forth its proposals, was referred to the finance committee. That body will meet to discuss it today, and it was indicated that Chicago banks will be asked to send representatives to the meeting to explain plans for avoiding a default on city and school board bonds and for paying public employés.

Following the council meeting, Ald. Clark instructed John E. Richert, head of the finance committee staff, to request Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens' committee, to attend the finance committee session this afternoon, and to bring with him any one he wished to assist in explaining the stand of the citizens' committee. The latter committee's letter, which will be before the aldermen, has promised half a month's pay for employés of all local governments which agree to limit their levies to the figures set by the Sargent group.

County Board Hostile.

The school board and sanitary trustees have already passed their resolutions, but the county commissioners exhibited some hostility to the proposal at a meeting Tuesday.

Ald. Clark took the floor as soon as Mayor Cermak had presented the Sargent committee letter and the resolution which the letter asked the council to pass.

"This $50,000,000 is an entirely arbitrary figure," said Ald. Clark. "Budget making must be more scientific than that. I object to the way this thing has been brought here, and I object to the citizens' committee trying to dictate to a governmental body. If this request were concurred in they might try to go further.

"Going Too Far."

"I object also, in the name of 22,000 municipal employés, when this commission says that unless you do this there will be no pay day before Christmas. It is going too far. The city budget already has been reduced $12,000,000, and to take off $10,000,000 more would make a total of $22,000,000.

"There are some items that we cannot legally cut, such as pensions. I will never vote to eliminate the working cash fund. The principle involved there is that in a period of some eight years the city will be able to do business on a cash basis. As long as banks and unelected citizens can dictate to us the situation is dangerous.

"The banks' bids for city deposits averaged in the past 2½ per cent interest. Last year they were 1½ per cent. Bids came in today offering one-half of one per cent. They are recommending economy in everything except interest. St. Louis sold $10,000,000 in bonds a few days ago at 4 per cent, and above par. New York, until a few months ago, was selling at an average of 2½ per cent interest."

"Promises are being made to the purchasers of the refunding bonds that the city will live within its revenue," said Mayor Cermak. "I have information also that the limit for the city levies will be increased to $51,600,000."

"It isn't safe to fix any figure," asserted Ald. Clark. "If all but the five major activities of the city—fire, police, health, gas and electricity, and street cleaning—were eliminated, the saving would amount to no more than $4,500,000."

"What are you going to do if you haven't got the money?" inquired Mayor Cermak. "Even if we have to lean over backward, we must meet the views of these men who are selling our bonds."

"We are told that unless this council goes on record for a definite figure they won't attempt to assist the city," said Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. "The bankers are not only unbusinesslike, but they are unpatriotic. Rees [John O. Rees, technical adviser to the Sargent committee] is guessing, and no man can guess what taxes will be collected on the new personal property assessments.

"To ask the council to accept a definite figure is the worst kind of efficiency. I understand that the bankers' proposal is to give refunding bonds bearing 6 per cent for bonds now bearing 4 per cent interest."

"That's right," said Ald. Clark.

"Could you get any one to buy bonds if the interest were 8 per cent?" asked Mayor Cermak. "Two years ago there were 228 banks in Cook county, and when bonds were sold they were allocated to all of them. Now many of them are closed and those remaining have only half of their former deposits. They can't take up all of these bonds.

"It was on the theory that we would gradually reduce the cost of government that they got the New York banks to help. If you appropriate $56,000,000 or more for 1933, I'll veto the budget. I'll veto any budget on which I think we won't be able to collect enough taxes to pay out.

If Bonds Are Defaulted.

"We'll be in a terrible fix if these bonds are defaulted. We can't even sell them at 6 per cent."

"I think the bankers could make a better deal for the city," said Ald. Nelson. "We should have a session with them first."

"We and the city employés gave the city $6,000,000 to help out in this depression," said Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th]. "I don't want employés' pay cut more than the present 21 per cent."

"Will you vote to cut the taxpayers' bills?" asked Mayor Cermak.

"I always have," said Ald. O'Grady. "And I never heard of a bank which went broke because it had tax warrants in its vaults."

Further details of the refunding bonds which the banks will seek to exchange with bondholders for the city bonds due Jan. 1 became available yesterday. The refunding bonds, it is proposed, will bear 6 per cent interest, will run for five years, and cannot be called before that date.

However, the refunding plan provides that all taxes collected on the city bond and interest levies for 1928, 1929, and 1930 after Jan. 1 shall be placed in a special fund, in the custody of a trust company instead of the city's aggregate of funds, and that the fund shall be used for buying the refunding bonds at par in the open market.

Reason for Crisis.

It is estimated that the city has some $16,000,000 in delinquent taxes coming on its bond and interest levies for the years 1928 to 1930. It is the failure to collect these levies, combined with the fact that 1931 taxes have not yet been placed in collection, which led to the present danger of default. As a further protection in case these delinquent taxes are never collected the refunding plan proposes deficiency levies in future tax levies.

WINS JOB BACK

(TRIBUNE Photo.)

Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. in Circuit court issued a writ of mandamus yesterday ordering the school board of Evergreen Park to restore Miss Nellie Vaughn, 7539 South Wabash avenue, principal of the grade school in the suburb for the last 18 years, to her position from which she was ousted in October. He also ordered the board to pay her salary for the two months.

Miss Vaughn, who was accompanied to court by nearly 100 parents of her former pupils, testified that Frank Gengenback, a cement contractor who was recently elected president of the school board, and Edward Phillippi, an Evergreen Park policeman and school trustee, summoned her to a conference last October.

Gengenback, she testified, boasted to her that he was "going to run the school board as it had never been run before." He asked her to resign, Miss Vaugn said, and she did so as the result of threats made by Gengenback and Phillippi. In her place the board appointed one Walter Meyer, who, Miss Vaughn testified, did not even have a certificate to teach.

Gengenback, questioned by Judge Taylor, admitted the truth of Miss Vaughn's charges.

"What does a cement finisher know about schools and the education of children?" Judge Taylor demanded of him. Gengenback did not reply and the writ was issued.

TEACHERS CLASH WITH BOARD ON TAX LEVY PARING

Principal Attacks Limit Set by Citizens' Group.

The citizens' committee on public expenditures was attacked in a heated debate between school trustees and representatives of teaching and labor groups at a meeting of the school board yesterday. The board, however, stuck by its decision to stay within the 1933 tax levies recommended by the committee.

Several trustees have said that to keep its levies within the 48 millions allocated, exclusive of the bond redemption levy, it will be necessary for the board to cut the salaries of teachers and other employés.

Raps Citizens' Committee.

Mr. Stillman had declared that the board should not be bound by "the guess of a voluntary extralegal group whose narrow special interests in the matter lie in a reduction of tax bills for themselves and their corporations."

"Fred Sargent and Ernest Graham of the citizens' committee," said Lewis E. Myers, president of the board, "tell me that this sum is all we can expect to collect in taxes for next year."

Mr. Stillman then asserted that the smaller property owners had paid their taxes and the larger interests had not.

"Taxes have not been paid," he declared, "because of a deliberate conspiracy on the part of people who think they can drive down the tax bills."

Trustee Taylor Replies.

When he had concluded Mr. Taylor arose.

"This last remark, added to other indictments made by this school principal," said Mr. Taylor, "should be a matter for investigation if not correctly the subject for discipline.

"Members of the citizens' committee are the highest type of men in the city, and they are fighting to bring the schools and other city bodies out of their desperate financial straits. Absence of proof of the charges made by this man makes him liable to disciplinary action."

Mr. Stillman replied that he based his contentions on what he and other school employés believed. "I don't think my statements are actionable" he added and threw a copy of his speech on Mr. Taylor's desk.

After the meeting Mr. Taylor said that, although he took exception to the remarks, he would not press the matter further.

Miss Haley Under Fire.

Earlier in the meeting another leader of the teachers drew the fire of President Myers. This was Margaret Haley, veteran business agent of the teachers' federation, who asked Mr. Myers for permission to speak.

"I want you to understand," said Mr. Myers, "that it takes the unanimous consent of every trustee of this board to let you speak and you'll never get my vote while I'm a member. You have never come in here with a constructive suggestion."

Mr. Myers declared that had it not been for litigation started by Miss Haley a year ago the teachers' scrip, issued in lieu of cash, would have retained a value of 100 cents on the dollar. The price of the scrip dropped after Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan ruled it illegal.

The board members voted to pay creditors in 1932 tax anticipation warrants. Such bills owed by the board total nearly $3,000,000.

Action on the proposal to pay teachers and other school employés their past due salaries for this year in tax warrants was postponed at the suggestion of Trustee John A. English.

"If the warrants are issued," Mr. English explained, "the banks won't be so enthusiastic about getting us cash for a Christmas pay day."

COUNTY BOARD ASKS 47 JUDGES TO DECIDE ON A 7% SALARY CUT

Each of the 47 judges of the Circuit and Superior courts will receive a letter this morning calling upon him to decide whether he will accept a pay cut. The letters, mailed yesterday by the finance committee of the county board, give the judges five days to reach a decision.

In requesting the judges to accept a reduction, the letters say the county must live within an income of $12,000,000 in 1933. The proposed cut would be 15 per cent of the $7,000 a year paid by the county to each judge. Each judge also receives $5,000 annually from the state. Thus, it was pointed out, the actual reduction for the judges would be 7 per cent of their total salaries, whereas a 15 per cent cut is planned for all other county employés.

Under the statutes the county board has no right to cut the pay of an elected official. However, a majority of the elected county officials, with the judges excepted, signified their willingness to accept the pay cut imposed on other employés at a special meeting of the board Tuesday. Not a judge appeared at the meeting, although all of them had been invited to attend.

The cut of judicial salaries would save the county approximately $50,000. The county must make 1933 budget reductions of $1,300,000 to live within the figure set by the citizens' committee on public expenditures. The letters to the judges were the work of County Commissioner Peter Kelly.

Idle Men in Shelters to Get Day's Work a Week

Idle men housed in the shelters throughout the city are to be put to work for the city bureau of streets, it was announced yesterday by Robert W. Beasley, director of the clearing house for men. They will do cleaning work other than that on streets and alleys. When assigned to this work each man will get one day's employment a week at the rate of $4 a day. He will be expected to support himself on that sum, and will be discharged from the shelters.

T. W. ALLINSON, CITY'S WELFARE JOB CHIEF, FIRED

Thomas W. Allinson, superintendent of employment for the city bureau of public welfare since 1923, was discharged yesterday by the civil service commission, it was announced by Richard Collins, chairman.

Among the six charges against Allinson were allegations that he had used laborers paid from the "make work" fund of the Emergency Relief commission on the construction of a sun parlor and patio at his Ravinia home.

Allinson also was charged with failure to account for a $200 petty cash fund and with failure to account for junked machinery and equipment removed from the old Criminal Courts building on the near north side.

How to Escape FLU and Grippe

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this relieves the soreness and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

SEEK RECEIVERS TO COLLECT TAX FROM BUILDINGS

The tax department of the state's attorney's office will ask County Judge Jarecki to appoint receivers for all income bearing properties on which taxes are delinquent, to collect the income and apply it to taxes, Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell, head of the department, informed Judge Jarecki yesterday.

The statement was an incident in a hearing on objections to the 1928 and 1929 taxes on the 219 Lake Shore Driva apartment building, stockholders of which recently repudiated the leadership of James E. Bistor, head of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers and a director of the building corporation, in making a part payment on the building's delinquent taxes.

Court's Authority Made Clear.

When Bistor expressed doubt as to the extent of the powers of the County court in tax matters, Judge Jarecki read to him from the constitution the section which gives the court original jurisdiction in the collection of taxes and special assessments.

"The court has the sole and unlimited right to collect taxes," agreed Mr. Bell. "That means not only the County court may order the forfeiture and sale of property for unpaid taxes but also that when it is shown that the property owner is using income to pay off bonds or other debts, rather than taxes, the court may appoint a receiver to take the income and pay taxes ahead of any other expense."

Promises Tax Suit Saving.

The tax department, as reorganized by State's Attorney Courtney, will ask Judge Jarecki to avail himself of this power, Mr. Bell said. This will eliminate need for the services of Henry M. Winston, who as special attorney for the county has been suing receivers for collection of taxes in the Circuit and Superior courts, and will materially cut down the cost of tax collections, Mr. Bell said.

Bistor presented a long letter to Judge Jarecki, defending his actions in connection with withholding tax payments on the 219 Lake Shore Drive building. He stated that the building had accumulated a reserve of $56,000 toward the payment of overdue tax bills totaling $92,000.

Of this sum, $23,000 was paid to the First National bank on Dec. 1 to meet principal and interest requirements on bonds on the building, over his objections, he asserted, and at the insistence of Dr. Franklin H. Martin and Secor Cunningham, stockholders in the building. It was Dr. Martin and Mr. Cunningham who successfully demanded that Bistor pay $22,800 out of the reserve to apply on 1929 and 1930 taxes.

Bistor asked a hearing on his charges that the 1930 assessment against the building was fraudulent and excessive, and Judge Jarecki set it for today. Bistor admitted that he had appraised the building at $1,200,000 in 1928, and it was pointed out to the court by Chief Deputy Assessor Harry S. Cutmore that the full valuation for assessment purposes in 1928, which assessment also applies to 1930 taxes, was less than Bistor's own valuation by $21,942.

YOUTH SET FREE ON PROBATION IS SHOT TO DEATH

August Didomenico, 17 years old, of 3929 Congress street, was shot and fatally wounded under mysterious circumstances last night in a third floor flat at 3403 Jackson boulevard. The shooting occurred within ten hours after he had been freed on probation on a minor charge.

Didomenico rented the flat last Sunday. Last night he returned there in company with another youth, according to Mrs. Margaret Mugridge, the landlady. Twenty minutes later Mrs. Mugridge heard a shot, followed by the sounds of some one running down the stairs. Police were notified. They found Didomenico sitting in a chair, shot in the head. Ten feet away lay a revolver. Didomenico was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where he died.

Earlier in the day Didomenico and Julius Simon, 17 years old, of 1501 South Kedvale avenue, a friend, were arraigned before Judge H. P. O'Connell in the Boys' court on a charge of disorderly conduct. They were put on probation for three months. They had been arrested on Tuesday night by Policeman William Maher for creating a disturbance at the Marbro theater, 4142 Madison street. Simon was arrested later and gave the police the names of two other boys, George Jurgens, 16 years old, 709 South St. Louis avenue, and Tony Ciccone, also 16, of 3543 Flournoy street, who, he said, were in the flat. They were arrested and told the police the shooting was accidental. Jurgens said he was "fooling with the gun" when it was accidentally discharged and the bullet struck Didomenico. Then all fled.

200 Attend

Nearly 200 pupils of Tilden Technical High school, 47th street and Union avenue, attended the annual "achievement breakfast" yesterday in the school lunchroom. Only boys who have earned a certain number of honor points by high scholarship, perfect attendance, and service to the school were invited to the breakfast. Albert V. Evans, the principal, spoke briefly.

CHIEF OF POLICE KIDNAPED AND ROBBED BY GANG

Chief of Police Ernest Pierard of Coal City, 27 miles west of Joliet in Grundy county, was kidnaped by three gangsters last night, robbed of $42, and held a prisoner for several hours. He was released by the kidnapers in Joliet.

Pierard was seized by the trio in the home of Thomas Wharrie, the Coal City postmaster. The men had summoned Wharrie to his front door, covered him with their pistols, and forced him into the living room of the house, where they questioned him about prospective mail shipments of money to the local bank. Meanwhile Mrs. Wharrie, in another part of the home, called Pierard and asked him to help.

Her message was incoherent and the chief went alone to find out what was the matter. One of the gangsters, with drawn pistol, met him at the front door. Pierard said that the men, who let him keep his automobile, told him they were from Chicago Heights.

GIRL LOSES CASH FOR TAX; COUNTY OFFICIAL PAYS IT

Anna Katz, 16 years old, of 1631 South Fairfield avenue, thinks pretty well of public officials. So does her father, Charles, a driver who earns about $12 a week. The father sent Anna downtown yesterday with $25, $19 of which was to be used to pay his taxes.

When Anna reached the treasurer's office she discovered she had lost the money. She wept. She was noticed by County Treasurer Joseph McDonough and his assistant, Harry Perry. She told them her story and they made up the lost amount out of their own pockets. Last night Anna's father went personally to the homes of the two officials and thanked them.

NEW YORK GIANTS BASEBALL CLUB PHYSICIAN SHOT

Seriously Wounded; His Assailant Slain.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Dr. William J. Walsh, physician of the New York Giants Baseball club and an honorary police surgeon, was shot three times and critically wounded tonight in his office, 676 Riverside drive.

His assailant, who had got in by posing as a patient, was killed in a pistol fight with two policemen and a friend of Dr. Walsh who pursued him through three blocks of crowded streets.

Dr. Walsh had expressed a premonition of impending disaster to the friend, George Murphy, when his caller, who said he was John William Wilson, arrived at the office. Explaining that the man had telephoned the night before, Dr. Walsh told Mr. Murphy that he felt nervous about seeing him.

Had Premonition.

Murphy tried to learn the basis for Dr. Walsh's nervousness, but the physician disclosed only that Wilson had telephoned for an appointment.

Murphy and Miss Mary Connery, the office nurse, went into the X-ray room adjoining Dr. Walsh's office when the patient was admitted. Murphy took up the manuscript of a story which Dr. Walsh had just completed, narrating some of his experiences with John J. McGraw, who retired last year as manager of the Giants.

A moment later Murphy heard three shots and ran into the office to find his friend on the floor. All three bullets had struck the physician in the stomach. Wresting the doctor's pistol from its holster, Murphy ran after his assailant.

Pursued and Slain.

The fugitive ran east through 145th street to Broadway. At the corner Patrolmen Ritchie Hinds and Thomas Rossiter, on duty in a radio car, were telephoning from a police booth when the chase passed them. Murphy halted long enough to call them to his aid. Their quarry ran south along the crowded sidewalk of Broadway, and at the corner of 144th street jumped into a taxicab, whose panic stricken driver promptly fled. But the fugitive did not attempt to start the cab. Instead he jumped out and fired several shots at his pursuers, who returned the fire.

Turning east again the chase continued through 144th street until Wilson realized that he could not outdistance Murphy and the two policemen. He halted and blazed away at them while they fired back. He fell, shot five times in the head and body, and died almost immediately.

BRITTEN OFFERS NEW REPEAL AMENDMENT; PROTECTS DRY AREAS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], today introduced a resolution calling for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but providing that dry states wishing to remain dry be protected by federal legislation.

His resolution, said Mr. Britten, "will meet the desires of the fiat repeal advocates opposed to the eighteenth amendment and at the same time satisfy those 'lame ducks' in the house who voted against the Garner repeal resolution because it did not afford protection to those states which are declared to be dry."

"Article 18 of the amendments to this constitution is hereby repealed. The transportation of intoxicating liquors into state, territory, district, or possession of the United States in which the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating liquors are prohibited by law is hereby prohibited."

SQUARE BUDGET, IS BEER HEARING PLEA OF MILLS

Sales Tax Is Advocated; Early Bill Expected.

and take legislative steps which would make certain of a balanced budget in 1934 even if the European nations defaulted on the 327 millions of dollars of war debt payments due next year.

The first dramatic clash came when Representative Rainey charged that the treasury estimates of probable tax receipts and deficit for the 1933 current fiscal year were so inaccurate the committee had to get an outsider Barney Baruch, to set the treasury right.

Rainey charged that the treasury had left the committee in the dark on the size of the deficit. When Secretary Mills denied this charge, and asserted the committee had been warned that the first estimates might be off, Rainey warned Mills to "be truthful," saying that "even a secretary of the treasury should be truthful." Mr. Rainey followed this with the declaration that the Mills estimates had been so inaccurate as to be of no use to the committee last year.

Lack "Stomach," He Says.

During the exchange of compliments Secretary Mills paced angrily back and forth in front of the semi-circular bench on which committee members sat. On one occasion, in reply to a question as to whether he thought the committee really wanted to balance the budget, he blurted out:

"O, I believe they do in theory, but some haven't the stomach for that sort of distasteful fight on the floor."

At the close of the hearing Chairman James W. Collier [Dem., Miss.] smiled and said:

"I thank you for coming, Mr. Secretary."

Terms Beer Tax Practicable.

Discussing beer in his formal statement to the committee Mr. Mills said:

"The department believes that the administration of the proposed beer tax ($5 a barrel) would be practicable. There is a relationship between tax rates and consumption of beer, and consumption is affected by economic conditions. Taking both of these into consideration and giving due weight to an increase in population it was estimated that the consumption in 1934 might amount to 33 million barrels or 42 million barrels, depending upon the number of states in which the sale of the new beverage will be legal.

"It should be remembered," he added, "that the industry, at least so far as legitimate production and distribution is concerned, is not now established and that home brew and bootleg beer are apparently manufactured on a very considerable scale."

Sale Possible in 26 States.

The secretary estimated that beer could be sold in at least sixteen and possibly twenty-three states the first year. He urged that the tax be not placed too high, not above $5 or $6 a barrel, until the industry was established.

Discussing the whole government financial situation Secretary Mills said that the time had "come to bring the federal budget into balance in the sense that there will be no further increase in the public debt."

"Insofar as balancing current expenditures with current receipts is concerned," he said, "the goal is definitely in sight. We have but to reach out and grasp it. There is no more valuable contribution that can be made by government to the economic welfare of the nation.

"Most Important Task."

"It is beyond question the most important task to which the congress should address itself at this session. Both parties unequivocally pledged themselves to this accomplishment. I know of no conceivable excuse for failure to keep this promise and act now."

Secretary Mills said a deficit this year was inevitable. He said basic expenditures in 1934 would be 3 billion 440 millions, or 3 billion 256 million dollars if President Hoover's economies were approved. He said that if 329 millions of foreign payments were forthcoming the budget would be balanced with 307 million dollars, not counting debt retirement.

The beer bill, the secretary said, would not alone balance the budget.

Sees Beneficial Effect.

"But," he said, "if the committee should favor its adoption it could in combination with those other proposals [gas and manufacturers' excise taxes] be made to furnish a base of taxation sufficiently broad to give adequate assurance of a balanced budget. The adoption of a general manufacturers' excise tax would have an enormous effect psychologically on the public mind. The necessities of the situation clearly call for some such program."

With the budget balanced the government, Secretary Mills said, could much more confidently begin funding oprations involving many billions during the next few years. "Such an operation involving a part of the seven billion dollars of Liberty bonds callable in the next six years would have, in my judgment, a most favorable effect on the long term money market and vitalize the whole credit structure."

Asked About Hoover's Stand.

The evident good feeling that marked the entrance of the secretary was abruptly dissipated immediately the cabinet member had completed his plea for a balanced budget and his statement that beer would prove an aid in the balancing of receipts and expenditures.

"Mr. Secretary," said Majority Leader Rainey, "will President Hoover sign this bill if it is approved by congress and submitted to him?"

"O, Mr. Rainey," sang back the cabinet member with a deprecating laugh, "you know that I cannot quote the President of the United States. Of course, I cannot tell what he will do. All I can say is that approval of this bill and the levying of a tax of $5 or $6 a barrel will bring in funds which would aid in balancing the budget. I cannot go into the social and constitutional questions involved."

Estimates Are Attacked.

At this point Mr. Rainey roused the ire of Secretary Mills by criticizing the treasury estimates for the 1933 budget submitted to the house ways and means committee a year ago. Rainey asserted that the estimtes had been several hundred million dollars off and that the treasury had never realized that they were off until the committee had sent a man of its own to the treasury with the information.

"I want to set the record straight," Secretary Mills interrupted as Rainey continued his denunciation. "The record will show that I told the committee when I first appeared before it last December that the estimates were based on September figures, were tentative, and would be followed up later with more accurate data. I also want to say that Mr. Baruch, the man the committee sent, was no help to the treasury. He gave us no figures. We were working on the revised estimates when he came into the picture. You would have got them when they were needed."

"Let's Be Truthful."

"Now," purred Rainey, his voice pitched low. "Let's be truthful. Even the secretary of the treasury ought to be truthful."

Mills snapped to quick attention at the word truthful. His face flaming, he shouted:

"So long as my veracity has been challenged, let's get the record. That will show who's telling the truth."

"It is true that Barney Baruch, your man, came to me last winter," shot back Mills. "He said that our estimates of probable revenue for the 1933 year were too high. I told him that, of course, they were. He told me nothing new. We were working on new estimates then."

Recommendations "No Good."

"Well, your recommendations were no good," retorted the majority leader. "You have never been of any help to this committee."

"You never followed recommendations," the secretary shot back.

Democratic committee members then quarreled with the cabinet member for some minutes whether he had ever recommended a sales tax last year. Mills exploded when a committee member questioned the treasury's present position on the sales tax.

"I unqualifiedly recommend a manufacturers' sales tax to this congress," Mr. Mills shouted. "If you cannot understand my statement to mean a treasury endorsement of a sales tax, then I'll make my recommendation as plain as any man can."

"Duty" to Pass Sales Tax.

"It's your duty now to pass a manufacturers' sales tax and balance the budget. There should be no politics now in balancing the budget. Both parties are pledged to that up to the hilt. There should be a nonpartisan move at once to balance the budget. The parties should redeem their pledges."

Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.], rushed to the cabinet member's defense. He said that the trouble was that the committee and Mr. Mills misunderstood each other.

"I think the trouble," Secretary Mills remarked sarcastically, "is that I made the embarrassing suggestion that the committee balance the budget at this session of congress. If I hain't mentioned it I would have had a very pleasant time."

NO PAY YET FOR 800 AMERICANS SLAIN IN MEXICO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The recent introduction of a bill to pay $30,000 to the Mexican government for the account of the families of Emilio Cortes Rubio, cousin of the former president of Mexico, and of Manuel Gomez, has called congressional attention to the hundreds of unsettled claims for Americans killed as the result of revolutions and outrages in Mexico.

Young Rubio and Gomez were shot and killed by deputy sheriffs near Ardmore, Okla., in June, 1931, as they were driving home to Mexico after attending an American school.

The bill to make restitution of $15,000 for each death was introduced by Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, at the request of the state department.

Mistaken for Holdup Men.

Investigation of the shooting, according to the records, showed that Rubio and Gomez were driving with revolvers and ammunition in their car at a time when the section near Ardmore was stirred by recent holdups. It was shown that they displayed their pistols when approached by the deputy sheriffs. The officers were tried and acquitted of the killing.

The state department bill recommends that recompense be made "as an act of grace and without reference to the question of legal liability of the United States."

"Acts of grace," are, by contrast, not a part of the consideration given to claims filed against Mexico for the 800 American lives taken in Mexico. Most of the killings were committed in the revolutionary period following the fall of the Diaz government.

25 Claims Settled.

To date, only some twenty-five claims for the deaths of American citizens have been settled, as the result of consideration by the joint claims commission set up by the United States and Mexico. None of these claims has as yet been paid, since, according to the convention under which the commission is acting, no payment will be made until all claims have been settled.

Actual recompense has been made for the killing of only one American—John B. McManus, who was killed March 11, 1915, in Mexico City, when he was trying to defend his house against the attack of a group of Zapatistas. Secretary of State Bryan made an issue of the McManus case and forced payment. The sum of 120,000 pesos, or approximately $20,000, was given McManus' widow.

In all some 5,000 claims have been filed against the Mexican government. Only a hundred or so, including the twenty-five on account of deaths, have been settled. Awards have been made—but not paid—totaling $3,599,164.

$34,180,070 FEDERAL BUILDING PROGRAM UNDER WAY IN STATE

Virtually all of the current $34,180,070 federal building program in Illinois has been completed or is under contract, according to a treasury report made public yesterday in Washington. Projects costing $2,823,000 have been finished, according to the report, and others totaling $31,499,920 are under contract.

Listed as completed are the Chicago Marine hospital, costing $433,000, and the Woodstock postoffice, $90,000. Projects under contract include: Aurora postoffice, $895,000; Chicago Appraisers' stores, $1,500,000; Chicago Marine hospital addition, $310,000; United States postoffice in Chicago, $26,475,000; Harvey postoffice, $160,000; Highland postoffice, $70,000; Joliet postoffice, $185,000; Lake Forest postoffice, $150,000; Maywood postoffice, $160,000; Oak Park postoffice, $557,000; Waukegan postoffice, $311,180; Wheaton postoffice, $139,490.

URGES MONOPOLY PRIVILEGES FOR TAXI COMPANIES

The granting of monopoly privileges to taxicab companies, on the ground that their regulation by the city or state entitles them to consideration as public utilities, was advocated before the point council subcommittee on taxicabs yesterday by A. J. Frieberg, general counsel of the Cincinnati Taxicab company. The committee is considering revision of present Chicago taxicab regulations.

"Taxicabs are a public utility quite the same as the surface lines," asserted Mr. Frieberg. "If the city regulates any utility, and there is scarcely a city where taxicabs are not regulated, it must reasonably protect that utility from unfair competition. The public is entitled to as low a rate as can reasonably be given to insure a fair profit, plus a safe service and a fair wage to the driver. Virtually all cut rate companies in the United States, however, have failed within a year's time."

Mr. Frieberg said that a survey by the public utilities commission in Washington, D. C., showed that 1,000 cab drivers had an average income of 40 cents a day. A previous witness told the committee that many of these cab drivers were government employés who went to work as drivers after finishing a day on the federal pay roll.

The JOHN R. THOMPSON RESTAURANTS as they are today

The development of the Thompson Restaurants, over the long years intervening since the business was founded, has been so gradual that while today they occupy a position of unique importance in the restaurant industry, there are no doubt many Chicagoans who little realize the high standards and the breadth of service attained.

Operating 116 units in 36 cities throughout the United States, including within its personnel many of the foremost authorities in the science of food preparation and service, this institution is without question performing a function unequalled in its field.

At any John R. Thompson Restaurant today, you may have ample portions of most wholesome foods in wide variety, at prices below those which other restaurants find necessary to their existence.

In the very finest meaning of the word, the Thompson Restaurants are democratic institutions, in that they attract the patronage of alert and progressive individuals in almost every walk of life.

The person to whom economy is an important factor, and the person whose first considerations are not at all a matter of money saving, but wholly a matter of convenience, alike find the Thompson Restaurants suited to their needs.

Even as appreciation of the facilities of the telephone and other public utilities is limited to no one class of people, so the Thompson ideas of purveying foods are a direct response to a constant or occasional need of almost every individual active in affairs of any nature.

If perchance you have heretofore thought of the Thompson Restaurants only as supplying the requirements of those who seek a hasty sandwich and cup of coffee, you will be astonished to find how adequately every Thompson Restaurant supplies the essentials of a very substantial, complete and wholesome meal, at every hour of the day or night.

At this very moment, in the Thompson Restaurant nearest to you are all of the requirements of such a meal as will completely satisfy any person who does not at that particular time seek the superfluous and costly embellishments of restaurant service suited to an hour of leisure dissociated from regard for expense.

You are most cordially invited to participate, with the many hundreds of thousands of other Chicago patrons, in the convenience and other advantages of the Thompson Restaurants of today. Wherever you may be, in or near Chicago, you will find a Thompson Restaurant within convenient distance of you, and you will find the slight effort of its patronage fully compensated by a degree of satisfaction wholly out of proportion to the very modest cost.

EVANSTON YOUTH IS IDENTIFIED AS "L" RAPIST

Accuse Boy Once Arrested for Sex Crime.

A youth arrested a year ago for a sex crime was identified yesterday by Mrs. Julia Klein, 26 years old, 2416 Arthur avenue, as the supposed gunman who tore off her clothes and raped her in the Ridge avenue station of the Niles Center elevated branch Tuesday night.

Evanston detectives, assigned to investigate the rape case when they reported for duty yesterday, recalled that they had arrested Eugene Schoos, 17 years old, 1433 South boulevard, Evanston, for indecent exposure on Nov. 1, 1931. The youth was arrested and Mrs. Klein identified him.

A complaint against Schoos, charging him with rape and robbery, was signed by her last night. On it, however, she signed her name as Mrs. Helen Holstein instead of Mrs. Julia Klein. She gave no address. Police said they would continue to record her name as Mrs. Julia Klein until the court hearing. Schoos was released on $15,000 bonds and will appear before Magistrate H. H. Porter at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Brother Summons Police.

Mrs. Klein had been visiting her father, Charles E. Flannigan, a retired Chicago policeman, and a brother, Walter Flannigan, in their home at 1102 Brummel street, Evanston. She returned to the home, two blocks from the "L" station, after the attack Tuesday night and her brother summoned the Evanston police.

The detectives went to Schoos' home but he was not there. A brother, James, directed him to a fish market at 7303 North Damen avenue, where Eugene is employed. Mrs. Klein accompanied the police and when she saw Schoos, exclaimed:

"There he is! That's the man."

Later, at the Evanston police station, she picked him from a crowd and again positively identified him. Her brother recalled having seen the youth around the Ridge avenue station at various times and a complaint was signed. Schoos denied having been at the station and said he was at home when the attack occurred.

Carries Her Into Rest Room.

Mrs. Klein was not certain whether the man who attacked her carried a gun, but said he gave the impression that he was armed by pushing his hand forward in his coat picket. He seized her, she said, as she started to descend to the train platform, carried her into the women's rest room and tore off her clothes. Mrs. Klein's screams for help were not heard, for there are no attendants at the station.

Eugene Schoos was a minor at the time of his arrest for indecent exposure and no photograph was kept in the police records. But there was a photograph of a brother, Leo Schoos, who was arrested in January, 1931, on a charge of attempting to attack a girl. Police, upon seeing this picture, recalled the arrest of Eugene, and since he answered the description of the rapist they arrested him.

ACTRESS IS BRIDE

SIDNEY FOX.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Charles Beahan, 29 years old, playwright and motion picture executive, and Sidney Fox, young film actress, who gave her age as 23 years, were married at 4 a. m. today at Harrison, N. Y., by Justice of the Peace Winfred C. Allen at the town hall. The license was issued by William A. Wilding, town clerk of Harrison.

Beahan stated that it was his second marriage, while Miss Fox said it was her first. They told Mr. Wilding that they had driven to Greenwich, Conn., to be married, but upon being informed that they would have to wait several days, returned to Harrison.

The actress recently arrived in New York from Hollywood for a short vacation. She and Beahan have known each other for several years.

Beahan is at the present time employed as eastern scenario editor for Universal pictures, and formerly occupied that position with Fox films. He was co-author of the play, "Jarnegan," in which Richard Bennett was starred, and also of "Bucharoo," produced on Broadway.

SENATE VOTES TO FREE FILIPINOS, THEN HESITATES

Becomes Tangled Over Time and Methods.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—By 40 to 38, the senate today voted to free the Philippines in eight years, but then became so involved in a parliamentary tangle over a motion to reconsider that further action was postponed until tomorrow.

The decision gave approval to an amendment by Senator Broussard [Dem., La.] striking the heart out of the Hawes-Cutting bill, granting independence in eighteen years, and created such confusion that sponsors of independence now do not look for a final vote until the end of the week.

The Broussard amendment not only reduced the pre-independence probation by ten years but also struck out the five year application of export taxes in the islands to go toward paying their bonded indebtedness and the provision for an independence plebiscite at the end of the trial period.

Forces Adjournment.

Senator Bulow [Dem., S. D.] moved reconsideration, but Senator Long [Dem., La.] prevented another vote by holding the floor and forcing overnight adjournment.

Supporters of the Hawes-Cutting measure had reported a compromise reducing the transition period preceding full independence to 14 years, with progressively increasing export taxes and plebiscite provisions retained, but this never reached a vote.

Chairman Bingham of the territories committee said without the tax provision it would be impossible for the Islanders to pay their bonds, amounting to $116,000,000. Senator Pittman [Dem., Nev.], who voted against the Broussard amendment, told the nineteen Democrats who voted for it that "in your anxiety to carry out a platform pledge you are willing to give the Filipinos their freedom—and their death."

"Shell of Self-government."

Senator Tydings [Dem., Md.] said the amendment "only bestows a shell of self-government."

Before voting the Broussard amendment into the bill the senate rejected by a single vote—38 to 37—an amendment by Senator Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] to grant independence in five years.

Party lines split widely on the vote on the Broussard amendment. Twenty Republicans joined the nineteen Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead of Minnesota, for it, while twenty Democrats and eighteen Republicans voted against it.

Probate Court Has Profit of $52,299 for Fiscal Year

The Probate court made a net profit of $52,299 during the fiscal year 1932, according to a report made public yesterday by Mitchell C. Robin, clerk. The gross income of the court, which is a fee office, was $388,718. Current and final accounts rendered during the year numbered 12,047, and 9,251 estates were opened, the report showed.

SENATE DEMOCRATS BLOCK NOMINATIONS OF G. O. P. OFFICIALS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Senate Democrats carried out their threat today to block Republican nominations of appointive officials whose terms run past March 4.

By a vote of 37 to 44 the Republicans failed to carry a motion of Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], assistant Republican leader, calling for an executive session in order that pending nominations might be sent to committee for consideration.

Three of the radical bloc voted with the Democrats, Senators La Follette and Blaine of Wisconsin and Shipstead of Minnesota, the lone Farmer-Labor member.

Senator Robinson recalled that the Republicans had similarly blocked President Wilson's nominations in the short session of 1920-'21 and Senator Huey [Call Me Kingfish] Long of Louisiana reminded Senator McNary concerning the "pit that ye have digged."

Having assured the defeat of the McNary motion, Senator Robinson then moved the confirmation of Roy D. Chapin as secretary of commerce, and this was carried unopposed.

As the result of today's action virtually the last hope disappeared of confirming three Chicagoans who were given recess appointments—Federal Judge George E. Q. Johnson, District Attorney Dwight Green, and Morton Bodfish, member of the federal home loan bank board.

BOOK 3 IN QUIZ ON BEER FLAT POLICE SLAYING

Three men were booked by police last night on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with the murder of Policeman Albert Magoon in a beer flat at 2908 North Halsted street. Magoon, off duty, was shot to death Monday evening by an alcohol "muscler." The slayer's identity is known, according to police.

Those booked were Paul Gordon Halvorsen, alias Paul Cooper, 29 years old, of 3308 Le Moyne street; Howard Simpson, 35, of 2120 Seminary avenue, and Theodore Nelson, 31, of 910 Dakin street. All are members of a new liquor syndicate, police said, and were booked because they refused to tell of their activities. Halvorsen was arrested in the beer flat five hours after the killing when he called there to talk over business with Jerry Maas, the owner.

Various theories are held as to the killing of Policeman Magoon. Maas declared Magoon was a personal friend and was slain while interfering in a quarrel between two men. However, the killing has interested the federal government and for the last 24 hours A. E. Aman, of the prohibition offices here, has been working with police to solve the crime.

FARM LEADERS TELL RELIEF PLAN TO HOUSE GROUP

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Representatives of the country's major farm organizations appeared today before the house agricultural committee to advocate a farm relief plan based on curtailment of production by federal mandate and which would be financed by taxing the processing of the food and textile products involved.

The farm group scheme is a modification of the domestic allotment system embodied in the Jones bill, which is now before the committee.

Mr. Lee laid down three fundamental principles on which farm relief legislation should be based:

The plan should be administered by the department of agriculture; it should include cotton, wheat, tobacco, and hogs; it should restore these commodities to the same price parity with industrial goods which they enjoyed in the pre-war period, 1909-'14.

Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, attended the session and will later testify.

Teagle to Speak Today on Work Sharing Plan

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and national chairman of the share-the-work-movement, will speak tonight at a meeting of the Economic Club of Chicago at the Palmer house. His subject will be "What Will Sharing the Work Do for Business?" Mayor Cermak also will be on the program and will speak on "Reducing Taxes in Chicago."

HERE ARE THE DETAILS OF RATES, CIRCULATIONS, LINEAGE AND TRENDS WHICH ENABLE ADVERTISERS AND ADVERTISING

FACTS EVERY ADVERTISER WANTS TO KNOW

SELDOM is it possible to go into the market and buy the best merchandise or service at the lowest price. Chicago presents an opportunity to buy the leading newspaper, notable for its influence and the volume and quality of its circulation, at a cost substantially lower than the price of space in any other Chicago daily newspaper.

In these times when it is important to advertise to people with money and to enough of them to get profitable returns, the Chicago Tribune delivers full coverage of the able-to-buy families of Chicago and suburbs and is in addition the preferred metropolitan newspaper of the leading families in the principal cities and towns throughout the adjacent territory.

To demonstrate these truths the following points will be discussed and substantiated in this advertisement:

1. The Tribune has the lowest general daily milline rate of any Chicago newspaper.
2. The Tribune continues to deliver by far the greatest influence on and coverage of the able-to-buy segment of the Chicago market.
3. Because it has greater volume of circulation and greater coverage of all levels of purchasing power of interest to advertisers than is supplied by any other Chicago daily newspaper, the Tribune is steadily increasing its proportion of the price or mass type of advertising.
4. The Tribune is the first newspaper in Chicago. It is the oldest, most progressive and most influential of Chicago's newspapers. Constant growth of Tribune coverage while other Chicago newspapers have lost ground or barely kept pace with the expansion of this market illustrates the trend of readers. The Tribune now reaches 46% more families in Chicago and suburbs than is reached by any other daily newspaper.
5. Surveys made by retailers, manufacturers, advertising agencies or newspapers among the women of Chicago and suburbs of all income groups of interest to advertisers show the Tribune to be their favorite daily newspaper.
6. The great Chicago Loop department stores are now placing more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper. They are placing a larger proportion of their business in the Tribune than ever before. And the Tribune continues to maintain its leadership in women's clothing, men's clothing, shoes and drug store lineage.
7. Food product manufacturers are spending more money in Tribune advertising this year than in any other paper in the country and 70% more than in any other Chicago newspaper.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE HAS THE LOWEST GENERAL DAILY MILLINE RATE OF ANY CHICAGO NEWSPAPER . . . . . .

GENERAL DAILY MILLINE RATES

PAPER	RATES
Daily Tribune	$1.35*
Evening American	1.68
Daily Herald and Examiner	1.70
Daily News	1.75

*Bulk Contracts	Daily Tribune
2,440 lines	$1.42
12,500 lines	1.35
25,000 lines	1.29
50,000 lines	1.22

THE general daily milline rate of the Chicago Tribune, based on the six months' circulation average for the period ended September 30, 1932, is $1.35. This is 19.6% lower than the general daily milline rate of any other Chicago daily newspaper and one of the lowest general daily milline rates in the country.

Regardless of how limited the operations of an advertiser in the Chicago market may be, the Tribune delivers the lowest priced advertising space he can buy. Even if the line rate for total circulation were to be charged against city and suburban circulation only, the general daily milline rate of the Tribune then would be $1.73, which is 4.4% lower than the rate of any other Chicago daily newspaper figured on the same basis.

And, on this basis, not only does the Tribune deliver to the advertiser over 191,000 more daily city and suburban circulation at a lower milline cost than any other Chicago daily newspaper but in addition it has over 170,000 circulation among the leading families in the principal cities and towns beyond the city and suburban area.

Still further, the Tribune, the only Chicago daily newspaper to do so, has considered the problems of general advertisers and has taken decisive steps to help them meet the necessities of the times. As the result of the introduction of new general line rates the general daily milline rate of the Tribune is now from 4.1% to 21.6% lower than at this time last year.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE HAS HELD ITS QUALITY CIRCULATION WHILE TAKING LEADERSHIP IN MASS CIRCULATION AND COVERAGE . . . . . .

MILLINE rates are, of course, only a measure of quantity. Other important factors that must be considered are the quality of the circulation, the influence of the newspaper and the productivity of advertising appearing in its columns.

Checked against income tax returns, charge accounts, rentals, automobile registrations, or any other index of high income, distribution of Daily Tribune circulation shows that as, for instance, 1910 when the Tribune had only 188,000 circulation it is the newspaper read by the well-to-do and the leaders in Chicago.

In every better class residential neighborhood in Chicago more people read the Tribune than read any other daily newspaper. The Tribune is first in circulation in Rogers Park, in Austin, in Hyde Park. It is first on Lake Shore Drive and on Hyde Park Boulevard.

Chicago's above-average districts as a group have a population as large as Cleveland. In these districts — the primary market of advertisers—the coverage of the Daily Tribune is 81%—far more than that delivered by any other Chicago daily newspaper.

What is true in Chicago is true in the suburbs. In Evanston, Lake Forest, and Oak Park and in every other one of the suburban towns in which reside the families of better-than-average income the Tribune is first in volume of circulation. No other newspaper approaches the density of coverage and the intense reader interest delivered in these communities by the Tribune.

The daily circulation of the Tribune in Chicago's better grade districts and suburbs alone is practically as large as the total circulation of any other Chicago daily newspaper.

YEAR after year the Tribune has been the first newspaper on the lists of those specialty shops and department stores which cater to women in the upper bracket income class. Blum's, Saks Fifth Avenue, John T. Shayne, Kerman's, I. Miller, Spaulding-Gorham—practically every shop of this type has depended entirely upon, or placed the bulk of its lineage in the Daily Tribune. And do so now more than at any time before.

Marshall Field & Company, Carson Pirie Scott & Company, Mandel Brothers, Chas. A. Stevens & Bros. and Maurice L. Rothschild also make the same fine distinction when they place more of the lineage of their upstairs departments in the Daily Tribune than in all other papers combined.

The accounts shown to the left are only a partial list of those retailers who by giving more lineage to the Tribune than to any other Chicago newspaper demonstrate that the Tribune is the outstanding publication of Chicago to reach people with above-average incomes.

TRENDS POINT TO THE TRIBUNE AS THE NEWSPAPER BEST FITTED TO DO YOUR SELLING JOB IN THIS MARKET IN 1933 . . . . . .

SHREWD purchasers of stocks and bonds, real estate and other commodities are interested in trends as an indication of the value of their purchases. Analysis of past accomplishments is valuable as an indication of future performance.

The same holds true in the purchase of advertising. The advertising you are now planning will run in 1933. In order to make an intelligent selection of the newspaper to help you sell in the Chicago market a searching examination of trends —in circulation, editorial prestige, coverage of buying power, advertising lineage and results—is essential. These factors are barometers that show the present relative merits of newspapers and their continuing ability to get results for advertisers.

The radical changes in thinking, the dislocation of customs and practices, and the introduction of new modes of living, working and playing which came as a consequence of the World War imposed new obligations on newspapers. The public demanded a new type of editorial service, a new approach to the handling of news.

The Tribune met these demands fully and in the following fifteen years increased its daily circulation 103.5%—a gain 211.9% greater than the combined gains of the other Chicago daily newspapers published in 1917 and in existence today.

NOTE: Circulations are averages for six months' periods ended September 30, and for city and suburban only

THE significance of the increase in the daily circulation of the Tribune becomes plain when it is related to the growth in the population of Chicago and suburbs. Fifteen years ago the Tribune was third among daily newspapers in density of coverage of the families of metropolitan Chicago. Today it is first. In 1917 when the total number of families was 748,136 it reached 33% of them. Today when families number 1,157,677 the Tribune delivers 52% coverage (see chart to left).

Meanwhile every other daily paper, with the exception of one, lost in influence and density of coverage, or ceased publication. While attempts by some newspapers to increase their ranking in the community by merger or purchase of other newspapers have failed, Tribune circulation has been maintained with only the customary sales and promotion effort. To get and hold readers the Tribune depends chiefly upon its editorial and news service which it is continuously improving and enlarging. It has not attempted to save money at the expense of reader interest and confidence. It has not attempted to bolster circulation figures by buying other newspapers or by resorting to any unsound practices.

To help you sell your product through its advertising columns a newspaper first must be able to sell its own product in its own market. The Tribune today is the only daily newspaper which reaches every other family in Chicago and suburbs. Duplication considered, it reaches practically as many families in Chicago and suburbs as any two other daily newspapers combined.

This 52% of all the families in Chicago and suburbs represents the greatet segment of the market offered by any newspaper and under present economic conditions is large enough for any advertiser to shoot for. A real job in the top 52% of this market's million-plus families is more productive of results than trying to force sales among smaller groups of less or no real buying power.

LOOP DEPARTMENT STORE LINEAGE—FIRST 11 MONTHS 1932

MEDIA RECORDS, official statistical bureau which measures newspaper lineage, classifies Chicago's department stores into two major groups: those located within the Loop and those situated outside the Loop. The Tribune does not lead in lineage placed by the out-of-the-Loop stores. It does lead in the lineage placed by Loop stores which place 80% of the total lineage run by all Chicago department stores and which do over 70% of the department store business done by all Chicago department stores.

Evidence is valuable when its source is important. Wise advertisers analyze department store lineage in relation to the volumes of business, numbers of customers, merchandise handled, and the types and policies of the individual stores. The choice of a newspaper as an advertising medium by a store doing a large volume of business is more significant than that of one doing only half as much business and serving only half as many customers.

During the first eleven months of this year the Tribune carried more advertising from these State Street giants than any other Chicago newspaper.

Particularly significant is the lineage placed by Marshall Field & Company, Carson Pirie Scott & Company, Mandel Brothers and Chas. A. Stevens & Bros., which use more lineage in the Daily Tribune than in any other newspaper. These stores which, like the general advertiser, place emphasis in their advertising on quality, style, new use, health and other features of merchandise, have always considered the Tribune as their primary market.

And among the other State Street department stores there is a growing appreciation of the value of Tribune circulation. For instance, The Fair, one of the largest, is increasing its proportion of lineage in the Tribune and during November the Tribune carried more lineage from this store than was placed in any other Chicago newspaper.

This fall the Boston Store changed its great Netcher Day sale to Monday. The first fall sale was in October. The bulk of the advertising promoting the event ran in the Sunday Tribune. The store repeated the sale in December and again concentrated the advertising in the Sunday Tribune. Other stores of like character are also swinging to the Tribune.

During the first eleven months of this year seven out of the eight Loop department stores increased their percentage of lineage in the Tribune, but probably even more illustrative of the strong and increasing swing to the Tribune is the lineage placed from July 1, 1932 to December 12, 1932. While during the first eleven months of this year the Tribune received 33.7% of all the lineage placed by these stores, since July 1 it has received 38.5%.

THE TRIBUNE IS STEADILY INCREASING ITS LEAD IN LOOP DEPARTMENT STORE ADVERTISING . . . . . .

HOW Chicago's great Loop department stores are turning to the Tribune is brought out further by the 20% more lineage they placed in the Tribune than in any other newspaper during the month of November.

The Tribune carried last month more advertising from these great Loop stores than any two other newspapers combined.

The Tribune carried more business from five of the eight stores than did any other newspaper.

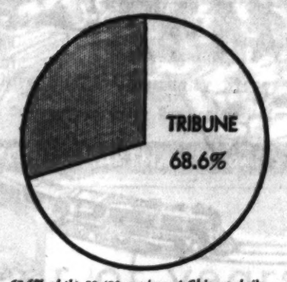
These stores are right on the ground and are by far the largest buyers of newspaper advertising in Chicago. Those who may be classed in the quality group are concentrating more heavily than ever in the Tribune and those in the popular field are increasing their lineage in the Tribune while reducing in the other papers.

SURVEYS OF READING HABITS OF WOMEN IN CHICAGO AND SUBURBS REVEAL THE TRIBUNE AS FIRST AMONG DAILY NEWSPAPERS . . . . . .

SURVEYS which the Tribune has made, and others which have been made by advertising agencies, manufacturers, retailers or other newspapers and which have come to the attention of the Tribune, show that the Tribune reaches more men and more women than any other Chicago daily newspaper.

During the past six years the Tribune, alone or in collaboration with advertisers, has conducted 45 investigations into the reading habits of the customers of retail stores, of owners of various kinds of merchandise, subscribers to telephones, voters, and other groups which contain practically every level of income, culture, social status and personal occupation of interest to advertisers.



68.6% of the 83,495 readers of Chicago daily newspapers interviewed during 45 surveys, stated they read the Daily Tribune regularly.

In advance of many of these investigations, because they were conducted among customers of stores chiefly using newspapers other than the Tribune, the assumption was that the Tribune would come off second best. The surveys proved otherwise and, as a result, the advertisers almost invariably swung over to the Tribune.

An amazing parallel exists in the findings of these investigations. The percentage of coverage of each of the various groups delivered by each Chicago daily newspaper was found to be practically the same. As to be expected, there were some variations in coverage from group to group but these variations were of a minor nature.

These 45 investigations involved over 83,000 interviews. The coverage supplied by the Daily Tribune was 68.6% which is approximately the coverage to be expected when the non-English reading, destitute and "floating" elements of the population of Chicago and suburbs are deducted from total population.

PROBABLY most interesting and conclusive of all surveys of reading habits made in this market was that conducted during July and August, 1931, among the customers of one of Chicago's largest department stores. During this investigation 35,191 customers of this store, of whom 25,801 were women, were interviewed by sales clerks while shopping in the store.

All interviews were supervised by the store management. No information regarding the interest of any newspaper in the results of the study was given out to clerks or customers. Questionnaires were tallied and checked by the store's own auditors.

The survey was the largest ever made in Chicago. It recorded the habits of a representative cross section of the men and women of Chicago and suburbs.

The tabulation of replies showed that 64% of the women customers read the Daily Tribune and 49% prefer it to all other Chicago daily newspapers—or nearly twice the preference for the next paper.

Before the survey was made it was customary for this store to consider the Tribune the second newspaper on its advertising schedules—giving it about 57% as much lineage as was placed in the newspaper of its first choice. However, in the period from July 1, 1932 to December 12, 1932 this store has placed more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago paper.

Not only has the Tribune's proportion of daily lineage increased while the proportion in every other daily newspaper of standard size has been reduced, but the Tribune from January 1, 1932 to December 12, 1932 shows a gain of 41,433 lines over the same period of last year while all other newspapers show substantial losses.

FOOD PRODUCT MANUFACTURERS SPEND MORE MONEY IN THE TRIBUNE THAN IN ANY OTHER NEWSPAPER IN THE UNITED STATES . . . . . .

INTERESTED in reaching those families who respond to appeals of quality and superior value, national food product manufacturers concentrate the bulk of their appropriations for Chicago in the Tribune. And not only do they spend nearly twice as much in the Tribune as in any other Chicago newspaper, but they invest in the Tribune more money than they spend in any other newspaper in the country.

Weighing carefully the character and distribution of each Chicago newspaper, these shrewd buyers of space have found the Tribune to be keyed closest to their own copy themes and to deliver the responsive able-to-buy families to whom they look for business.

For eighty-five years the Tribune has held to the ideal of public service. Its fifteen-year war against prohibition, its attack on governmental extravagance, its defense of the freedom of the press and of the principles of American liberty —these and other aggressive campaigns against public evil have won world-wide respect for the Tribune. Its unremitting fight against Thompsonism, its espousal of the Great Lakes-to-Gulf waterway, its fight to rid Chicago of crime—these and countless other services to its community have made the Tribune the voice of Chicago and the great Chicago territory.

How the people of this great market respond to the Tribune is seen in the hundreds of thousands who attend the Chicagoland Music Festival, the Golden Gloves Tournament, the School of Cookery, the Silver Skates Derby, the Water Carnival and other annual events sponsored and directed by the Tribune. The spectacular successes of these affairs spring from the unique ability of the Tribune to arouse, influence and convince. Advertisers who seek to win sales in this great market need cast about for no combination of media. One newspaper can do the job—the Chicago Tribune.

RAILROADS OFFER A NEW PLAN TO EXTEND PAY CUT

Warn That Negotiations May Break Down.

The railroad managers conceded an important point, but sought to gain an equally important one in a proposal submitted to railroad labor yesterday in the third session of the wage negotiations at the Palmer house. The negotiations involve $200,000,000 in wages yearly for 1,200,000 workers.

The managers offered to extend from next Feb. 1 to next July 31 the ten per cent pay deduction under which labor is now working and pledged themselves during that period to refrain from asking the railroad mediation board for the twenty per cent basic pay reduction which railroad capitalists hold necessary. Heretofore they had offered only an indefinite extension of the contract, terminable at will.

Make One Stipulation.

But they stipulated that on expiration of the extension in July, the ten per cent deduction shall continue in effect indefinitely—that is, during the many months they expect to be pleading for the twenty per cent basic cut before the mediation board. Thus they would prevent automatic restoration of the basic scale, involving $16,600,000 in added wages monthly.

Labor forces, headed by Alexander F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, were drafting a reply to the proposal last night for presentation to the managers' group, headed by W. F. Thiehoff, at 10 o'clock this morning. Indications were that the proposal would be rejected.

In a statement Tuesday in response to the managers' original proposal, which was for an indefinite extension of the present contract beginning immediately on its expiration on Feb. 1, Mr. Whitney maintained that agenda concerning the present negotiations contained no reference to an indeterminate extension and no provisions for altering the basic rates.

The managers accompanied their proposal with a four page statement. They, too, reviewed the agenda, but said they could discover nothing inconsistent with their proposal for an indefinite extension. They, too, expressed a disinclination to quibble. Finally they broached a vague threat that unless labor receded from is position the negotiations might break down.

Seek Meeting Ground.

"Your communication of Dec. 13 has received our careful consideration," the statement began. "We cannot agree with some of the interpretations you seem to place on certain previous correspondence. If some of the statements therein contained represent the final attitude of your organizations toward this negotiation, we feel there is little possibility of a common meeting ground."

The statement reviewed the correspondence wherein the managers, balked by a pledge to President Hoover against further wage cuts, wrote to the unions on Oct. 13, proposing extension of the ten per cent agreement. The statement quoted labor's answer on Oct. 14, agreeing to get authority from the various unions to negotiate such an extension in December.

"In the oral discussions which followed, you and your associates asserted that you could not give us assurances, but that you would, if requested by us, seek to negotiate concerning the extension of the agreement and the terms and conditions of the extension. The understanding was reduced to writing, wherein we asked you to seek to negotiate concerning the following:

"'That the present agreement providing for 10 per cent deduction from pay checks shall be extended from its present expiration date of Jan. 31, 1933, for such period and in such manner as may be agreed upon in said negotiation.'

Scope of Negotiations.

"We understand, and believe, that none who examines this correspondence can fail to understand that the words—'for such period and in such manner as may be agreed upon'—contemplated it to be within the scope of the negotiation for us to agree upon any period, definite or indefinite. Our use of the phrase—'in such manner as may be agreed upon'—would mean nothing at all if the sort of proposal we have heretofore made was said to be outside the scope of this negotiation."

Thus, on the interpretation of a phrase, the progress of the conference hung last night. The gossip around the labor conference rooms was that a counter proposal would be produced this morning suggesting an extension of the 10 per cent cut for one year with no strings attached concerning a further indefinite extension or changing the basic pay. With the basic rate due for automatic return next Feb. 1, unless an extension is negotiated, labor appeared still to hold the upper hand.

AUDIT AFFIRMS CHARGE OF COAL SUBSTITUTION

Company Bought Only Indiana Coal for Month.

An audit of the books of F. Bieschke & Sons, charity coal contractors, discloses that the company violated its contract with the Illinois Emergency Relief commission all during November, it was learned last night. The commission will be informed today of the results of the audit which was made by its own auditor.

The audit, it was reported, discloses that the Bieschke company bought only Indiana coal for delivery to families on the relief rolls last month. The contract between the Bieschke company and the commission calls for the delivery of Illinois coal from Franklin county or Williamson county. The Indiana coal is about 79 cents a ton cheaper than the Illinois fuel.

The audit corroborates a charge made last week by the Better Business bureau that the Bieschke company was guilty of substitution under its contract.

State's Attorney's Quiz Opens.

Yesterday Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse opened his investigation into the substitution charges. He received evidence of the substitution from Frank Lanser, director of the coal division of the business bureau; Kenneth Barnard, manager of the business bureau, and other investigators.

Mr. Rittenhouse said he would seek additional evidence. If it is forthcoming, he plans to ask the grand jury to return indictments charging officials of the Bieschke company with obtaining a signature under false pretenses, he said.

The prosecutor announced that he had invited Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman, Joseph M. Cudahy, vice chairman, and Charles Goodspeed, assistant to the chairman, all of the relief commission, to tell him what they are doing to end alleged widespread violations of the charity coal contracts.

Charge Other Violations.

Mr. Rittenhouse pointed out that the Capitol Coal and Coke company has been charged by the business bureau with dumping coal in the streets, instead of carrying it into the houses, as the contracts specify. Included in the price of $6.21 a ton which the Capitol company receives for the charity coal is a 75 cent charge per ton for carrying the coal into each house.

Mr. Goodspeed announced that if a preliminary investigation being conducted by the commission indicates substitution by any one of six other charity coal contractors, other audits will be ordered. He said lawyers retained by the commission are prepared to sue to recover the difference between the price of the substituted coal and the contract fuel. He said the commission is studying plans to effect greater savings on the charity coal bill.

DIVORCEE VENTS IRE ON HOME OF MOTHER-IN-LAW

Wilmette police were called to 1005 Chestnut street in the suburb last night. They found there—on the outside—an embattled ex-daughter-in-law and on the inside an irate ex-mother-in-law. The porch was strewn with bits of broken glass.

The principals were Mrs. Michelene Morgan, 28 years old, of the North Shore hotel, Evanston, the former daughter-in-law, and Mrs. F. W. Morgan, widow of a wealthy bicycle tire manufacturer, and mother of Michelene's former husband, Ernest, an artist. About two months ago Ernest divorced Michelene. A few days ago he became ill.

Michelene learned of his illness and called at the Morgan home to see him last night. Mrs. F. W. Morgan refused to admit her. Michelene, it is charged, proceeded to kick in several glass panels in the door, and it was then that police were called. The elder Mrs. Morgan later signed a complaint charging Michelene with disorderly conduct and the latter was transferred to the women's quarters at the Evanston police station in lieu of a bond. Magistrate E. A. Pettibone will hear the trouble in Wilmette on Saturday.

GIRL MOTHER WINS PROBATION IN HOLDUP CASE

Mrs. Rita Bennett of Hazel Crest, 19 years old, the mother of a 13 months old baby, was placed on probation for two years yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court on a charge of robbery. Mrs. Bennett carried her baby in her arms as she pleaded for leniency.

She was accused of entering a clothing store at 6222 South Halsted street with Frank Gilbert Weber, 27 years old, 822 West 55th street, and of holding a revolver while Weber tied the employés and robbed the place.

Mrs. Bennett told the court she married at 17, became a mother at 18, and was deserted a short time after the baby was born. She said that she was afraid to go home and joined Weber, who befriended her. Weber previously had been sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary.

SEIZE 'KID' WEIL AND $20,300 IN STOLEN BONDS

Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil and Fred Buckminster, swindlers who have grown gray in years of operations all over the country, were arrested in St. Louis yesterday at the request of Kansas City authorities, who found $20,300 bonds in their hotel room there. The bonds had all been taken in a robbery of the First Trust and Savings bank of Riverdale, a suburb south of Chicago, on May 28.

In the Riverdale robbery $5,000 and bonds valued at $41,000 were taken. Two bandits entered the institution early in the morning and terrorized four employés. They escaped in an automobile.

Weil and Buckminster, the latter known as the Deacon because of his benevolent appearance, were in Chicago a few weeks ago and were questioned in connection with a swindle, but convinced the police they were innocent at that time.

WOMAN HEAD OF COMPANY ROBBED BY BANDIT TRIO

Mrs. Catherine Busch, 64 years old, president of Arnold Busch & Sons, sausage manufacturers, 6151 Ravenswood avenue, was held prisoner for thirty minutes by three armed men last night. They tied her up and attempted to gag her.

She pleaded with them against the gagging, reminding them that a woman suffocated that way a few days ago. The bandits took $125 from her apartment, which adjoins the factory, and then entered the plant. They carted out a small safe which contained some money, bonds, and jewelry valued at about $3,000.

STATE'S UTILITY BOARD ANSWERS RATE CUT PLEA

Arguments in Telephone Case Near End.

The Illinois commerce commission issued a statement yesterday in response to a resolution of the Cook county board calling for a reduction of utility rates. The commission called attention to the showing made in behalf of the telephone users in the case in which final arguments are now being made before Federal Judges James H. Wilkerson, Evan A. Evans, and Will M. Sparks. The action involves a fight for a refund of $25,000,000 to the public and a reduction of $2,000,000 a year in certain telephone coin box rates.

B. F. GOLDSTEIN.

A reduction in fares on surface and elevated lines is not possible at this time, the commission said, because these transportation systems are involved in receiverships in the federal courts. There are 44 cases pending before the commission on rates for natural gas, and study is being made of the rates now in effect for electricity, the statement declared.

Argue in Telephone Case.

In the telephone case Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight argued in behalf of the city, which is opposing the petition of the Illinois Bell Telephone company for a permanent federal injunction to restrain the commerce commission from enforcing a reduction in rates ordered in 1923.

William Blackman, general counsel for the New York Bell Telephone company, and Charles M. Bracelen, general counsel for the American Telephone and Telegraph company, argued for the utility.

It is the contention of Attorneys Goldstein and Haight that the A. T. & T. is drawing too much money from its Illinois subsidiary, and that the Illinois Bell is setting aside too large a fund for depreciation. The utility attorneys contend that the financial policies of the telephone companies are justified by special conditions in the industry.

Income Tax Charge Discussed.

Judge Evans showed particular interest when Mr. Blackman began a reply to a charge by Mr. Goldstein that the A. T. & T. charged its income tax payments back to its subsidiary companies as an expense. Judge Evans asked Mr. Blackman why that was done. The attorney said that inasmuch as the subsidiaries, such as the Illinois Bell company, were responsible for the parent company's income, it was fair to tax it against them as an expense.

Attorney Goldstein also declared the parent company had charged the local company $10,000,000 in excess of a fair figure for services. He said it is now shown that on the basis of calculations made by the utilities as to what would be fair rentals on telephone instruments, the A. T. & T. company made 39 per cent on every dollar it invested in the telephone instruments which were rented to the Illinois Bell.

Another feature of Goldstein's argument concerned stock selling. He said the A. T. & T. spent $10,000,000 to sell its own stock so that it could buy the subsidiary companies, and charged 95 per cent of the $10,000,000 against the companies it purchased, which included the Illinois Bell. Employes of the local company sold stock for the holding company without charge to the A. T. & T., Goldstein said.

Attorney Haight argued that the telephone users contributed the funds for developing movietone and radio instruments and that, although the A. T. & T. made a profit of 100 million dollars on that business, no credit for any portion of the profit was given the individual telephone companies.

Counsel for the utility, on the subject of license contracts, said that 95 cents of every dollar spent by the A. T. & T. is for the benefit of all the subsidiary companies. It is seldom that the companies get a fair return on their investment, Mr. Blackman informed the court. He said that economies effected by the associated companies on the advice of the parent company ultimately go to the telephone subscriber. The A. T. & T. charges only enough to pay for its expense, he added.

The arguments will be concluded tomorrow.

GREEK ROYALISTS PLEDGE TO KEEP REPUBLICAN RULE

New Premier Tells Aims of His Government.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 14.—The question of monarchism has been definitely liquidated in Greece.

Premier Tsaldaris, head of the Popular or Royalist party and successor to Venizelos as head of the Greek government, announced this to THE TRIBUNE in an interview today. Greece, he said, is now committed to a Republican régime by all with the exception of a few reactionaries.

PREMIER TSALDARIS.

Tsaldaris' announcement that the Popular party has gone republican is regarded here as of great importance, in view of recent rumors about a possible monarchist restoration.

Eliminates Great Obstacle.

"In thus taking the initiative to liquidate the question I believe I have eliminated one of the great obstacles to the collaboration of all the parties," Tsaldaris said.

The Popular party comes after the Liberal party, headed by Venizelos, in point of voting strength in the chamber.

Tsaldaris contrasts in type and personality to Venizelos. He is a lawyer by profession. He has been in politics for the last 15 years. He was born near Corinth in 1868. He got his doctor's degree from the University of Athens and later studied in Berlin and Paris. He was elected deputy first in 1910, was minister of justice in the Gounaris cabinet, and after the execution of the latter during the revolution became chief of the Royalist party. Until recently the party maintained an uncompromising attitude in favor of a monarchy.

Explains War Debt Stand.

Greece recently failed to meet its payments on the war debt to the United States.

"Does your government propose to suspend execution of its payments on the foreign debt?" Tsaldaris was asked.

"No, that is inexact," he replied. "We will do our best to satisfy our creditors, but they also must take account of the economic and financial situation of the country and not demand payments which exceed our financial capacity to pay."

Discussing foreign policy, Tsaldaris said:

"It will be on all points the same as that of the preceding cabinet. It will attempt to tighten our relations and friendship with the big powers and all other countries. We shall seek a solution of our differences with Bulgaria. The differences between us now are mostly of an economic nature."

The premier then discussed the economic situation and the stern measures which must be imposed to confront it.

"We have always thought that a heavy reduction in budgetary expenses is the point of departure for our economic recovery and also, that our efforts in this direction will permit Greece to demonstrate to her creditors that she has taken every possible step to meet her obligations. My government considers that scrupulous respect for its commitments is the base of both international morality as well as to the interest of the country."

Wife's Suit Charges Mate Threatened Ocean Flight

EVANSTON MAN ENDS LIFE WITH AUTOMOBILE GAS

Max A. Gatter, superintendent of construction for the paving contracting concern of Albert Graff & Co., 30 North La Salle street, killed himself yesterday in the garage at the rear of his home, 846 Judson avenue, Evanston, by inhaling fumes from the exhaust pipe of his automobile through a garden hose.

He was found dead at the wheel of the car by his brother, Lincoln Gatter. The brothers lived together at the Judson avenue address. Lincoln summoned another brother, Fred, who lives next door. Neither could ascribe a motive for the suicide. Max Gatter had no financial or other worries, they said. He was divorced several years ago.

Lincoln Gatter said his brother had given a party at their home on Tuesday night and was happy when the guests left. Apparently he went to the garage some time before dawn, attached the hose to the exhaust pipe and started the motor.

THE FRENCH DEFAULT.

The French chamber of deputies has caused the overthrow of the Herriot cabinet on the issue of the debt and has allowed the December payment to go into default. The chamber adopted a resolution deferring further action by referring the question to the international economic conference. It is default, but not as yet repudiation, although the obvious temper of the deputies is for the latter. The amount involved in the defaulted payment is small and the consequences grave. Their precise nature will be revealed by subsequent events. A similar procedure taken with respect to other than a national debt would automatically impair or destroy the credit of the debtor. Although a decisive step has been taken, others remain in the future. The feeling is that France has made a serious mistake, whether proceeding from calculation or sentimentality.

MENDICANTS IN THE UNION.

Congressman Beck's description of the grotesque state of the Union will leave many citizens wondering what to do about it. The Pennsylvania congressman sees in the drift a possibility of disunion. Once the nation was told that it could not exist half slave, half free. The question is, Can it exist half beggar and half competent?

Fourteen states in the fiscal year of 1931 took more out of the federal treasury than they paid in internal revenue. What they contributed to the upkeep of the federal government was less than they insisted on taking back in subsidies. Mr. Beck presented other figures to reveal that Idaho, for instance, drew out five times more than it put in; North Dakota, six times more; New Mexico, seven times; Wyoming, six; South Carolina, three, etc. These are mendicant states. They are subsidized. Their electoral votes are up for the best bidder and the best promiser. Their members of congress are in Washington to take. The inference, and very likely the fact, is that they vote yes or no in general legislation as their palms are crossed by state subsidies.

The producing states, such as Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, etc., are taxed to support these subsidies given to supposedly sovereign states which theoretically are in the Union to maintain it in return for the general welfare and security inherent in the federalized scheme of organization. That theory has long been transcended. The states are in the Union for what they can get out of it in cash. The condition is intolerable, unsound, unethical, and uneconomic. The producing states cannot have their resources so dissipated in national alms. The general welfare clause of the constitution needs a reinterpretation in the terms of the states which can no longer meet the importunate demands of the beggar states. There may be no remedy in the United States senate, but proportionate representation exists in the house of representatives, and the members from the states which are being ruined to support other states which have thrust their responsibilities upon the government at Washington must throw their votes against the appropriation of all-year-round Christmas gifts to the mendicants.

SCANDAL SUITS.

Mr. Jay Darlington, a lawyer of Hammond, Ind., has drafted a measure to abolish certain civil causes of action, practices, and proceedings which are commonly used as means of extortion. He has dealt with the subject drastically, and the scope and details of his bill no doubt call for careful consideration lest justice in deserving cases be unduly restricted. But in the main the objectives of the bill are proper, and there can be no doubt that in the broad interest of public morals some such legislation to prevent and penalize blackmail and extortion is called for in every state.

The Darlington bill would abolish civil causes of action for alienation of affections, criminal conversation and seduction, and breach of promise, making it unlawful to file or to threaten to file such suits, and regulating pleadings, practice, and testimony in divorce suits involving alleged corespondents and persons charged with misconduct incidental to such causes.

The intent of the provisions of the bill is to prevent the use of the courts to extort money by the threat of exposure of scandalous charges. No one who reads the newspapers can fail to be impressed by the extent of this abuse and the need for its suppression. As THE TRIBUNE has said repeatedly, the breach of promise suit and the suit for alienation of affection do not benefit the persons whom it is public policy to protect or whom a sense of justice would have society protect. Such individuals seldom, if ever, resort to any legal action, since their injuries are not to be compensated in money and the publicity involved would more than offset any benefit which a court could provide. It is the individuals whom it is not public policy to benefit who bring such actions—the blackmailer, extortionist, and persons whom scandalous publicity does not shame or affect. These and the lawyers who are willing to assist them are not proper beneficiaries of the law.

So long as such cases are news the press is constrained to make them known as proceedings of the courts, and therein is the power used to extort, often from quite innocent victims. If the law recognizes them the press cannot ignore them. But the legislatures are in duty bound to take notice of the interest of the community in the practical results of laws and should suppress proceedings which are contrary to public morals and to private justice.

THE DEMONOLOGY OF BEER.

The opposition to modification of the Volstead act, this time specifically to permit the return of beer, showed up in Washington with the old faces and the old arguments, including the faces and doctrines of the W. C. T. U., which has been teaching the children of the country for fifty years or more that one glass of beer turned the human stomach into something like a cancerous Vesuvius and left the children wondering why papa did not look like a pink sunset through his clothes.

The advocates of more prohibition, more home brew, more needled beer, more west side moonshine, and more Al Capones repeated their prize audacity that beer was responsible for 90 per cent of pre-prohibition drunkenness. This is and always was a first class lie, known as such to every citizen who ever drank a glass of beer. But it is one of the big shells in the prohibition locker and it is bound to be fired every time the addicts of juvenile regulation for an adult democracy get a chance.

From a vision of Vesuvian stomachs and bacchanal beer topers the visionaries had to take only one step to see the riots of a Red revolution flowing out of the bung of a beer barrel. The prohibitionists are all very excited and very silly.

It cannot be said that it would be preposterous for the national legislature of a free people to affirm in legislation that people competent to form such a government are not old enough to be trusted with a mildly alcoholic malt beverage. That can't be said because the preposterous thing was done by just such an assemblage as now is asked to undo it. But it can be said that it is entirely too preposterous now to believe that the national legislature, having had experience with the consequences of its action, will continue in that stand, particularly after a general election which reveals such a general disgust with the whole scheme of which the prohibition of beer has been a part.

The prohibitionists have had their day. They had their arguments and their arguments prevailed. The United States has been a prize ass carrying this burden of fantastic ignorance and intolerance. It now seeks relief. The common sense thing for congress to do, having the authority for it in the decision made by the people, is to authorize the manufacture and sale of a beer which will be approximately that in general use before prohibition. Its alcoholic content by weight was generally under 4 per cent and the common use of it was as a beverage and not as an intoxicant. It was a part of the diet of many sober citizens whose daily lives will bear comparison with the lives of most of our misinformed and meddling social renovators.

A DEFENSE FOR TAXPAYERS.

One of four amendments to the Michigan state constitution just approved by its people fixes a limit on general property taxes for all purposes of $15 per $1,000 valuation. The amendment has significance throughout the nation. It is not only the people of Michigan who are in revolt against the piling up of taxation and propose to put a stop to remorseless exactions. Scrutator's article of Saturday lists many other efforts to restrict the tax eaters. But the people of Michigan evidently have seen enough of the resistance to economy, even in our present crisis, to provide a permanent barrier against unlimited expenditure. If politicians and official spenders are so unwilling to reduce expense as they have shown themselves to be when the federal government and many local governments are on the verge of bankruptcy and the demand for tax relief is heard throughout the country, we have a measure of the force which resists every public economy and a reminder that if we escape present conditions that force will soon be carrying us again into renewed expenditures regardless of ultimate consequences.

The Michigan amendment shows that the people of Michigan have read the lesson of the national disaster and look to the future. They do not propose to be defenseless against the exactions of parasite politics and the bottomless appetite of bureaucracy.

MONEY IN EXPLODING SHELLS.

A lyric note in the British explanatory covering of the debt issue revealed the money spent on bursting shells and being blown to pieces as surely and finally as the shells themselves. This is true. It is, however, true of all wars. It is true of all expenditures for wars. It is not a discovery of a principle applicable for the first time. A responsible nation does not blow its debts out of a cannon's mouth, although that is where the money goes. That was the fate of the southern war debts because the south lost and was required to repudiate its obligations. Exploding shells do not explode national credit.

Editorial of the Day

OLD TRADES.
[New York Sun.]

When Walter Smith died the other day at 83 he was described as the last of the town criers of Provincetown, Mass. A picturesque anachronism, he stayed on the job long enough to see the board walks of the town replaced by concrete. The concrete made his feet sore, so he quit. The big bell which he carried was placed in the town's historical museum.

A few town criers still survive in England. Several of them joined in a recent competition to decide which had the most powerful voice; a mechanical loud speaker can outroar all of them. Another odd calling ousted by the machine age is that of smoke watcher. Progressive British firms once made a practice of sending employes to the roofs of power stations and factories, there to sit with a piece of smoked glass or its equivalent in their hands. When they could see smoke through the dark glass they signaled to the boiler room and the fuel was cut down. Now an electric eye performs the same function.

A little man who sells rock salt for horses in the Marylebone road, London, also carries on an almost defunct trade. Most of the pedestrians and motorists who glance at the brownish lumps on his barrow seem to be puzzled by them. Yet men in middle life today can readily remember when it was the custom to put a piece of rock salt in a horse's manger for the horse to lick. Lumps were also placed in fields for the cattle.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WHAT! ON TWO SEVENTY-FIVE?

A Yale professor testifies before the congressional committee that he fed beer to Harvard students to find out what effect it would have on them. Wait! Before bursting out into that pathetic ballad, "Don't Send My Boy to Harvard, the Dying Mother Said," let us look into this matter. The Yale prof. said the Harvard students were visibly affected by a pint and three-quarters of the beverage containing 2.75 per cent of alcohol and that judging by the results of his experiment four pints of beer will make a man drunk.

But is that correct? Four pints of beer might intoxicate a Harvard student, but would it have any effect on a Yale undergraduate? And would the amount of beer it took to snozzle a Harvard man cause an undergrad of the University of Michigan or Illinois or Iowa to try and kiss the bartender good-night? That's the real test out here in the great west. Or could those Harvard students that drank the 2.75 per cent beer walk a chalk line? Or could they say "It's a bra' bricht moonlicht nicht"?

Before we accept the Yale professor's declaration that the Harvard students were pifflicated on 2.75 per cent beer we want to know on what tests he bases that belief. And if the Harvard students became intoxicated on a pint and three-quarters of beer what would they do if he gave them the same amount of buttermilk, sarsaparilla, or soda water? It is our firm belief that a Harvard undergraduate who could get snozzled on four glasses of 2.75 per cent beer, which is merely regarded as a stomach wash (to phrase the expression politely) in these parts, would become a fiend incarnate on five glasses of buttermilk or sarsaparilla.

Out here in the great midwest we don't believe that any man, be he a college student, a millionaire, or a cab driver, could get pie eyed on four pints of 2.75 per cent beer. But he'd get awful sore about it.

LEARNING.

Certain things are Hard to learn;
Pages stick and
Will not turn.

Words are words and
Not digested,
And the meanings
Must be wrested.

When at last the Mind can see
With cold logic
Easily,

Timid hands will
Pluck your sleeve
From the heart that Won't believe,

For it feeds on Sorry scraps,
Glimpsing hope through
Narrow gaps.

Stoutly does the Heart refuse
What alone it

FERET ADAMS.

ROOSEVELT RED! That's the name of the newest thing in colors. It comes from the fashion kings in Paris, who say they named it in honor of the President elect because when he was in Paris during the war as assistant secretary of the navy he was very fond of Tuscany wines, especially Chianti. And Roosevelt red is the exact color of Chianti. Which means nothing over here, because it's been years and years since we've seen or tasted real Chianti.

Oh, the Poor Fish!

Sir: I've been trying for a long time to settle this fish in the pond thing. You know, whether it is better to be a big fish in a little pond or a little fish in a big pond. Now, there's an interesting subject with many angles to it. Take, for instance, the fact that it takes a mighty big fish from one of the little ponds to even get over into the big pond. On the other hand, however, it doesn't take much of a fish from the big pond to be the big noise in the little pond. So there you are, and I could discuss it all night, but I have a date with Minnie Trout. Personally, I think all the fish ought to stay in their own ponds. Some of these little ponds are getting damn crowded since the depression. IRA TADPOLE.

AND THE HOUSE OF COMMONS forbids any more tabasco sauce in its restaurant, because it's made in Louisiana and not in England. We'll have to stop eating English mustard then, and if they don't watch out we'll stop speaking the English language.

Lest I reach out my hands and blindly follow
Through starlit roads that lead to everywhere.

WHY COLD FEET?

DRS. J. H. GIBBON and E. M. Landis report that when the blood vessels of the leg have good blood carrying powers putting the hands and forearms in warm water will cause a rise in the temperature of the skin of the toes. To prove this they had men sit quietly with their feet on stools in a room the air of which was carefully maintained at an even temperature. When the skin temperature of the toes, carefully taken, registered 77 or under, the arm and hand were submerged in water at 113. In a short while the general temperature of the body began to rise. This they thought was due to the blood being heated in the arm and then carrying the added load of heat to all parts of the body.

Presently the temperature of the skin of the toes began to rise. Starting at 77 or below, it rose to 89 or above. If the temperature of the toes did not rise above the 89 level it can be accepted that the blood vessels of the feet and lower legs have less than the normal carrying capacity. The test should make it possible to estimate the condition of the blood vessels of the lower legs in chronic diabetes. If the vessels are in good condition gangrene is improbable and greater liberties can be taken. If, on the other hand, the temperature of the toes does not rise the margin of safety is narrow. If the case is one of Buerger's disease or of Raynaud's the ability of the skin to react to heat and cold is well worth while knowing.

Perhaps some day this kind of research may tell us why some persons complain so much of cold feet. Now we say they are poor heat makers, but that is not very definite and does not mean very much. More knowledge as to what is underneath the symptom and the discomfort it causes may lead us to some methods of correction.

LOOK FOR THE CAUSE.

A. M. U. writes: What causes phlegm? Is there anything a person can do to prevent it? Sometimes I get it so bad I almost choke.

REPLY:

If you will change the accepted spelling of this simple word some grateful physician might be willing to reciprocate. Phlegm is a mixture of mucus and pus. The term is generally limited to such materials as form in the respiratory tract, though all tracts that are lined by a mucous membrane produce the same material. That which goes by the name may be produced by the bronchial tubes in the lungs, by the trachea, larynx, the upper throat, the nose, or the nasal sinuses. If it is coughed up it is generally called sputum, and if it runs out of the front of the nose it goes by still another name.

Since it generally results from infection, mild or severe, the infecting germ needs to be considered even more than a source. Before one can make any headway in curing phlegm he must first learn where it comes from. Next he must know what causes it and especially whether it is caused by the tubercle bacillus.

DANGER IS SLIGHT.

A mother writes: We have a teacher in our school who boards with and nurses a tuberculosis patient after school hours. Two doctors have said that she can carry the germs in her clothing to the school children and that a child is more likely to contract the disease than is an adult.

If the patient should leave will there be any danger of the teacher carrying germs if the house and all its contents are fumigated if she continues to stay there?

What is best to fumigate house and clothing?

REPLY.

There is small chance that this teacher will carry tuberculosis to her pupils. I am sure you are overanxious.

If you feel you must fumigate in order to have peace of mind use formaldehyde.

HEARING AND TONSILS.

S. P. writes: I am a woman 32 years old. I am gradually becoming hard of hearing. I have had bad tonsils since I was a child. Do you think removing my tonsils will overcome my trouble?

REPLY.

HUMIDITY.

J. T. writes: What should be the relative humidity in rooms at 68 degrees and at 30 degrees Fahrenheit?

REPLY.

The relative humidity should be around 40 at both temperatures; 70 is the theoretic best relative humidity, but it is not practicable.

UNPAID RENT.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An aged woman, who was my tenant for some time, owes me money for ten months' rent. I have a witness who heard her say that she has $500 due from her daughter (who is pretty well to do). When we told her to move she said she did not have any money. 1. Is her daughter responsible for the rent? The daughter knew all the while that the mother was not paying rent. 2. Is it possible for us to win the case if it is brought into court? J. A. C.

1. No, but if you can satisfy a court that the daughter owes money to her mother, you could reach this money by garnishment.
2. Yes.

PROSECUTION NECESSARY.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—A building on South Irving avenue near us is totally wrecked and was condemned long ago. It will soon cave in, which may cause serious injury or loss of life to children playing near this condemned building. Will you kindly look into the matter? A. N.

The owner of the building referred to having failed to comply with notices to make safe or wreck the building, the matter has been placed in the law department for prosecution.

JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Deputy, Dept. of Buildings.

MORTGAGE PAYMENTS.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The bank through which we received our first mortgage is closed. The bondholder of this mortgage pleads with us to make payment directly to her. 1. Can this be done without the bank further interfering with it? 2. If not, what is the proper thing to do? To whom shall the payments be made? F. K.

1. Yes.
2. In general all mortgage payments should be made to the holder of the mortgage notes.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 15, 1916.

LONDON.—The chief point in dispute concerning Germany's peace proposals is whether the allies should, in rejecting them, state their own terms. The opinion seems to be growing here that this would be a good move. It is pointed out that the allies' reply is intended even more for enemy peoples than enemy governments, and a curt refusal of Germany's terms would give the militarist governments of the central powers a pretext for stating that the allies are out solely to crush their enemies and that, therefore, no terms of peace would be acceptable to them. If, on the other hand, the enemy peoples were made aware of what the allies consider just terms of peace, and that they are united in the determination to fight until those terms are attained, the question would resolve itself into whether the enemy peoples consider the sacrifices they have made, and will have to make, are worth while.

PARIS.—A German attack on Lassigny, that part of the front nearest to Paris, was made on Dec. 11 in great force, says La Liberte's correspondent with the French armies. It appears to have been concerted to coincide with Von Bethmann-Hollweg's peace note, probably with a view to impressing the French by a local success.

OTHER WAR NEWS.—On the fighting fronts everywhere, except in Rumania and along both banks of the Meuse, only bombardments and minor operations are being carried out. In Rumania the Danube army of the Teutonic allies has crossed the Jalomitza river. Berlin admits that the French have made advances on both banks of the Meuse river. Paris merely reports bombardments in these regions. The Teutons have bombarded Monastir.

WASHINGTON.—The presentation of a joint appeal to the allies to give serious thought to the German peace proposal is being considered by the governments of the United States, Switzerland, and Spain. These are the three neutral nations caring for the interests of the central powers in the entente capitals, and through which Germany and her allies are sending their peace suggestions to their enemies.

NEW YORK.—Under the insistent belief that peace in Europe is by no means impossible, holders of war stocks hurled into Wall street enormous holdings of their securities. As a result the market collapsed, and in the fiercest bear raid since 1907, far eclipsing that of Dec. 12, when the peace proposals first were voiced, almost every stock in the list slid down to the lowest levels some of them have seen in months. The "war brides" were dumped first; the copper stocks tumbled; steel products securities followed; oils went down point after point, and gradually the standard securities went plunging after them.

COPENHAGEN.—The plebiscite held on the question of the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States resulted in 283,000 votes being cast in favor of the sale and 157,000 against it. A treaty for the sale was concluded between the United States and Denmark in New York on Aug. 5 of this year, the purchase price being fixed at $25,000,000.

CHICAGO.—Kent S. Clow's $100,000 home at Lake Forest and practically all its contents were destroyed by flames last night, despite the hard fight put up by the "society volunteer fire department." Mr. and Mrs. Clow escaped in near zero weather in their bath robes. The children and servants also got clear of the house without mishap.

DETROIT, Mich.—The resignation of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, former superintendent of Chicago public schools, as chairman of the educational department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which is now holding sessions here, was announced. Miss M. E. Parker of Cleveland has been made chairman.

BEER AND THE SUPREME COURT.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The impression seems to prevail that in framing a beer measure congress must keep the alcoholic content low enough to meet the approval of the Supreme court. It is my opinion that this impression is erroneous.

A justiciable question, it is true, was raised by the one-half of one per cent limit fixed by the Volstead act. But this was for the reason that congress had power to prohibit only intoxicating beverages and therefore it would have been competent for the court to find as a fact that, say, one per cent beer was not intoxicating and hence a prohibition of traffic in beverages of more than one-half of one per cent was beyond the power of congress. Said the court in its 11th conclusion in the prohibition cases [253 U. S. 350]: "While recognizing that there are limits beyond which congress cannot go in treating beverages as within its power of enforcement we think those limits are not transcended" by the one-half of one per cent definition in the Volstead act.

Now, the converse of this proposition clearly would not be true. So far as judicial restraint is concerned congress is free to repeal the Volstead act tomorrow and abolish entirely any congressional prohibition of intoxicating beverages. As the greater power includes the less, congress is also free to write any definition it sees fit into any enforcement act, provided it does not include nonintoxicating beverages. The proposition accurately is not one of affirmatively authorizing traffic in beer and wine, but rather one of relaxing the strictness of a statutory prohibition of such traffic.

The Supreme court, of course, does not possess a supervisory or veto power over congress. It can pass on the validity of a law only where necessary to the decision of a legal controversy pending before it. Offhand I do not think of a controversy which would raise the question of excessive alcoholic content. Assume such a controversy and a decision adverse to the congressional definition of nonintoxicating beverages. What is the result? If the new law is in the form of a mere amendment to the Volstead act I presume a declaration of its invalidity would revive the Volstead definition. However, if the Volstead act or the section defining intoxicants is repealed and the new law replaces it as the enforcement act a declaration of its invalidity could have no other effect than to leave us without federal enforcement of prohibition for want of congressional definition of intoxicating beverages.

From practical considerations alone, should the question arise, the Supreme court would be forced to accept the congressional determination of what constitutes intoxicating beverages.

WAS GAAR IN ERROR?

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 11.—I am one of the millions who are old enough to appreciate Gaar Williams' series, "Among the Folks in History."

It seems to me he went modern—it was a terrible lapse—when he pictured the ancient auto in today's cartoon with balloon tires. He will recall that they were usually 34 by 4 inches, a high wheeled effect quite different from his drawing.

He omitted to show the gas generator or Prestolite tank on the running board.

The dialogue refers to spotlights and stoplights. These were the product of the battery equipped cars of a later date.

AN OLD STORY TO HIM.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—It was quite interesting to note that Dr. N. A. Borodin, biologist of Harvard university, has just discovered that you can freeze a fish and within a few minutes after dropping him into water he would come back to life.

I knew of this as a boy, for I lived on a farm and during the winter I fished for perch and pike through the ice. After I had carried them three miles to my home they would swim again when put in water. As the professor seems to be puzzled with the anabiotic state of a fish I would say he should have withheld his statement of the fact until he had learned more about a poor fish.

S. J. DEITCH.

LIFE RESTORED TO A CANARY.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—I note with interest today on the front page of your paper the experience of Dr. N. A. Borodin of Harvard university with a frozen fish brought back to life.

It may be of interest to your readers to learn of the most unusual experience my sister, Mrs. I. Genender, living right above me, had with her canary about three weeks ago.

She gave the canary a warm bath, carefully wrapped it in a large towel and put it on the bed in a cold bedroom. She busied herself with household duties and forgot about the canary for about two hours. When she went to the canary to put it back into its cage the bird was gone. It was bitter cold out, and after some frantic searching it was found on the floor between the bed and window, apparently frozen to death. It lay on its back with little legs up, eyes closed, stiff cold. My sister was heartbroken. She took it in her hands, talking to it and gently rubbing it. She continued that for about an hour and still the canary showed no sign of life. We all told her it was useless; the canary was dead and to dispose of it. But she wouldn't listen to us and continued her ministrations. Finally she wrapped it up again and put it on the radiator.

After about four hours the bird began to twitch. One of its eyes opened feebly. You can imagine our astonishment and surprise when it finally stood on its feet, groggy, but nevertheless alive and seemingly quite well.

The next morning the canary was as well as ever, chirping merrily away, none the worse for its experience.

THE AUDITORIUM.

Hinsdale, Ill., Dec. 12.—The article in yesterday's TRIBUNE about the Auditorium was fine. It dusted off many fond memories and was almost like bringing back prosperity, at least in the musical mind. The Auditorium has never relinquished its place as the finest music hall in the world. Late experience has only served to demonstrate the fact anew. The Wacker drive adventure was a costly lesson, but it has brought some compensations in community thought and appreciation, dear though it was.

CONAN DOYLE'S NATIONALITY.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Can any reader enlighten me as to the exact nationality of the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes? He is sometimes spoken of as having been an English author, but as his family name is of Irish origin and he was born and reared in Scotland, am I correct in assuming that he wasn't a full blooded Englishman? GOOD FELLOWS TO HAVE TIME FOR OWN REUNIONS

Only an Hour Needed to Deliver Basket.

The Good Fellows are not giving up other Christmas observances to deliver a basket to the poor. This kindness to the destitute takes but an hour or so on Christmas eve, leaving plenty of time for family reunions, church services, or eggnog parties.

But the Good Fellow will carry with him over the holiday a pleasant recollection of his gift to an unfortunate family. There is a wholesome satisfaction in having delivered toys, candy and foodstuff to a home where there would be no cheer without the Good Fellow.

Empty Stockings to be Filled.

For the Good Fellows who will spend Christmas eve decorating a tree for their own children there will be the joy of knowing that elsewhere in the city boys and girls were visited by a Santa Claus, although their parents had warned them that stockings might remain empty this year.

The Good Fellows who will attend church after delivering their baskets surely will be able to participate in the religious services with a lighter heart for having practiced the doctrine of good will toward fellow men.

Cash Gifts Will Buy Baskets.

Whatever your plans may be for Christmas, you'll enjoy them lots more by being a Good Fellow also. There's a coupon on this page for your convenience. Mail it to Good Fellows, in care of THE TRIBUNE, Chicago. You'll receive the name and address of a family in your neighborhood that needs an inexpensive basket to convert gloom into cheer on Christmas day. The families have been investigated by affiliates of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies.

If you can't make the delivery yourself you needn't lose all the pleasure of being a Good Fellow. You can make a cash contribution and every penny will be used in buying a basket or baskets for the poor. THE TRIBUNE pays administration expenses.

Held for Killing in Quarrel Over a Dog

Charles Irwin, 766 Lee street, Des Plaines, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday at an inquest into the death of William Fleming, 2561 Hessing street, River Grove, who was shot by Irwin on Nov. 30. The shooting, following a dispute over the pedigree of a dog bought by Fleming, occurred in the yards of the Milwaukee railroad in Franklin Park. The inquest was conducted by Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel at the county morgue.

URGE SHOPPERS TO SHARE CASH WITH HUNGRY

Going Christmas shopping today? Then, perhaps, you can spare a little of what you had intended to spend to make some poor child happy and comfortable.

Every dime sent to the Hungry School Children's fund means another meal for that portion of Chicago's younger generation who not only will receive no visit from Santa Claus, but who can hope for a Christmas dinner only through the generosity of some other child's parents.

Dollar Provides for Ten.

Under the system by which the fund operates a full meal, hot and invigorating on cold days such as we have been having, can be served to the needy boys and girls for the small sum of 10 cents. Ten children can be made comfortable and warm for a single dollar. No other welfare movement to which Chicago contributes can supply a greater amount of happiness than ten cents, or ten dollars, expended to aid the Hungry School Children's fund.

All that is necessary is to inclose the draft, personal check or money order in an envelope addressed to the fund, and mail it to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE at Tribune Tower.

FIVE SEIZED AS BANDITS AFTER GUNMAN IS SLAIN

Five men were arrested yesterday by Oak Park police as members of a gang that tried to rob the Norboard gasoline filling station, 6201 North avenue, Oak Park. One member of the gang was killed and a second wounded and captured.

The dead bandit was tentatively identified yesterday as Samuel Gatto, 20 years old, 1708 Warren boulevard. The wounded man, Chester Horton, 22 years old, 4339 Cortland street, gave information that led to the arrest of his companions.

Gatto was killed and Horton was shot early yesterday in the filling station by Arthur Snyder, 1158 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, a special policeman. The other members of the gang escaped. Also seized and held for questioning was Edward Reeves, a cripple, said to be the chauffeur for the gang, although he was not present at the attempted robbery of the filling station. Police said the gang had confessed nine robberies in Oak Park and Chicago.

WELFARE FUND IS GIVEN $20,055 BY LOOP STORE

The Emergency Welfare fund received one of itse largest gifts in several days yesterday. A total of $20,055.09 pledged by Mandel Brothers, their executives, and employés was added to the fund, which officials hope will reach the $7,500,000 total required to provide for Chicago's private charities other than relief of the idle.

Straus & Schram, a furniture organization, and its employés sent $1,500. Workers covering the mail order houses and employés reported that solicitation in that group is almost completed. This far a total of $166,350 has been received in that field, the gifts ranging from $100 up to $65,000, reported from Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs about one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

MISS BURROWS IS FINED $10 FOR FATAL COLLISION

Miss Louisa L. Burrows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William French Burrows of 550 College road, Lake Forest, yesterday was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace John J. Peters in Evanston on a charge of passing a stop sign.

The traffic violation charge grew out of an automobile accident on Nov. 9, when Miss Burrows' car struck the auto of Mrs. Helen Johns, 28 years old, 1228 Gregory avenue, Wilmette, at Central avenue and Main street, Wilmette. Mrs. Johns was fatally injured.

A coroner's jury soon after the accident found that Miss Burrows had not exercised sufficient caution, but, the jury stated, she should not be considered criminally negligent. A charge of reckless driving was then made by police and after several continuances this charge was reduced yesterday to "passing a stop sign." Miss Burrows pleaded guilty immediately and paid the fine.

Andrew Dancho, 33 years old, 404 East Randolph street, a fisherman, whose boat was frozen in the ice a mile off the Navy pier late Tuesday evening, was rescued yesterday morning by the tugboat Fred A. Britten. The tug's crew freed Dancho's boat when it made the morning trip with supplies to the two mile crib.

Lincoln park took on a festive holiday aspect yesterday with the placing of three great Christmas trees, the opening of a poinsettia flower show, and the skating of thousands of children in the lagoons, which officials say are the smoothest in years.

One of the trees, each of which is forty feet high, was placed near the administration building at Clark and Center streets, another at the foot of Grant's statue, and the third at Diversey parkway and Stockton drive. They were adorned with colored lights and each is topped with a brilliant star.

In the first showhouse in the conservatory 2,300 red, pink, and white poinsettias are on exhibit. They are bordered with linum-cherries, pepper begonias, and cyrtomium, a color scheme appropriate to the season. In the second house the poinsettias are entirely red and deep scarlet, bordered with araucarias and Norway spruce. The average height of the poinsettia plants is 96 inches and they are 16 to 18 inches in diameter. William Biesing is chief florist.

BEEF OR BONES WHICH?

TWO pieces of coal can come from the same mine—from the same vein—and be as different as a piece of steak and a piece of bone cut from the same side of beef. Just as a side of beef is made up of meat and "rack", so a coal vein is made up of coal and the "rack" to which coal is attached. When you go to a butcher, you can tell the difference between beef and bone. You can watch his scales to see that you are getting full weight.

Why Be Cheated?

But you can't tell coal by its color or its shape. You aren't there when it is weighed. You can't conveniently re-weigh it when it is delivered.

How can you be positive you're getting first quality coal, not stone and slate? How can you be sure the coal you buy is not mixed with cheaper grades? How can you be certain that every ton you pay for contains 2,000 pounds?

For remember you can't buy beef at bone yard prices, and many so called "bargains" are actually tremendous overcharges for grades of coal which no merchant with an established reputation would willingly sell even at a fraction of the price unscrupulous dealers ask.

You Can Protect Yourself

There is one sure way of protecting yourself. Make certain you are getting your coal from a merchant who knows his business, buys his own coal, maintains his own yard and siding, and who can be held accountable for the weight and grading of the fuel you order from him.

In Chicago and its suburbs there are 240 such reliable merchants. They are members of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association. Every one of them must deliver an honest dollar's worth of fuel or forfeit his Association membership.

Back of every order every one of them delivers stands the Chicago Coal Merchants Association's unconditional guaranty to which you can appeal if any question of weight or grading arises.

DUCE DENOUNCES HATRED-SLANDER ATTACK ON ITALY

"We're Best Customer," He Tells Jugo-Slavia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 14.—Replying to several interpellations before the senate tonight, Premier Mussolini denounced what he termed the propaganda of hatred and slander against Italy on the part of responsible elements of the Jugo-Slav state. He reminded Jugo-Slavia that Italy is her best customer.

But Il Duce said, a no lesser responsibility for such propaganda rests on other elements, which "I will call European, who vainly hope to make us lose our temper through a clamorous press campaign, in which a grotesque hypothesis is perfectly associated with the utter stupidity of the conclusions." It is believed he referred to France.

Charge Aggression Intended.

"Not later than yesterday, in fact, a great foreign newspaper announced once more that Italy is preparing for aggression against Jugo-Slavia, and then mentioned the time that such aggression would take place," Mussolini said. All this, he continued, is organized as pre-ordained plans, and the world must know whence these provocations come.

"Only an uncivilized backward people can be under the delusion that by destroying stones history is destroyed also," he added.

The Italian-Jugo-Slav quarrel was set off by the dynamiting of several statues in Trau which were reminders of former Venetian sovereignty. A protest was made to Belgrade.

Mussolini made his speech after Senator Corrado Ricci had spoken in the name also of other senators who were signatories to various interpellations. He mentioned the fact that even intellectual Croatians had deplored late events in Jugo-Slavia which have brought the relations between Italy and her neighbor to the verge of a serious crisis.

Troops and Police Out.

Except for student demonstrations which continued today Rome was calm, but unquestionably feelings ran high and all possible measures have been taken to protect both the Jugo-Slav and French embassies from irresponsible elements. Fascist authorities forbade the students' activities and set thousands of troops and police on guard.

HENRY B. FARGO ESTATE TO GO FOR MASONIC HOME

Ultimate establishment of a Masonic home in Geneva is provided for in the will of Henry B. Fargo, wealthy real estate operator, which was filed in the Kane county probate court yesterday. Mr. Fargo, former mayor of Geneva, died on Dec. 1 at the age of 90.

The petition for probate showed the estate to consist of $200,000 in real estate and $20,000 in personal property. It will be managed as a trust, with the income for ten years going to a son, Charles H. Fargo of Oak Park, and two grandchildren, Anne Fargo of DeKalb and Mrs. Bertha Samsone of Peoria.

At the expiration of the ten year period, it is ordered that the Fargo home in Geneva be changed into an institution for the care of aged and dependent Masons. Mrs. Kate E. Fargo, wife of the testator, died in 1930, leaving the income from her estate for the same purpose.

MRS. EMILY JAY, DESCENDANT OF ASTOR, IS DEAD

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Emily Kane Jay, descendant of John Jacob Astor and widow of Augustus Jay, American diplomat, died of pneumonia at her home on Long Island today. She was 78.

Mrs. Jay, who was descended from John Langford, a delegate to the convention which framed the constitution of the United States and an early governor of New Hampshire, formerly was active in New York and Newport society.

She is survived by two sons, one of whom, Peter Augustus Jay, was in the diplomatic service for 25 years, his last post being as ambusador to the Argentine Republic. The other son, Delancey Kane Jay, was a rough rider in the Spanish-American war and received Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in the world war.

Mrs. Jay's husband, to whom she was married in 1876, died in 1919. A direct descendant of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States, he served as secretary of legation in Paris from 1885 until 1893.

POLICE REPORT AUTOS CAUSING FEWER DEATHS

There were 129 fewer automobile deaths in Chicago during the first eleven months of this year than during the corresponding period of 1931, Capt. John P. Horan of the police traffic division and the accident prevention bureau told members of the Chicago safety council in a meeting at the Great Northern hotel yesterday.

Capt. Horan explained the methods used by the accident prevention bureau, organized last May by Police Commissioner James P. Allman. He urged coöperation on the part of companies which employ motor vehicle drivers in the police drive to reduce automobile accidents.

There was one automobile death in Cook county yesterday, increasing the toll for the year to 1,052. The victim:

Raymond Tormoehlen, 35 years old, 2604 West 65th street. Died in the Illinois Central hospital. His car skidded against a lamp post at 58th street and the outer drive on Dec. 9.

Surviving are the widow, Lillie A. McAllister, and two grown children, Abel Franklin and Mary Jane McAllister.

SEIZE SUSPECTS IN KILLING OF BAND LEADER

Stewart Obrest, 17 years old, 5119 Augusta street, was arrested last night as a suspect in the murder of Edwin O. Schildhauer, Austin High school bandmaster, who was shot and killed Saturday night.

Obrest's arrest followed that in the afternoon of William Wolf, 17 years old, 1053 North Central Park avenue, who was taken into custody by Sergt. Thomas Nolan as he was leaving the school. Lieut. Thomas Duffy of the Fillmore street station refused to make public the reason for the arrest of Wolf. The police kept the arrest secret until early this morning and surrounded it with much mystery.

Capt. Patrick Kelliher of the Fillmore street police station said that Obrest, when he was taken into custody, had possession of a stolen automobile similar to the one in which Schildhauer was kidnaped near his home at 3435 Fulton street and in which he was, presumably, slain.

Another suspect, David Saubert, 19 years old, 3139 Fulton street, arrested on Tuesday, was viewed at the station yesterday by Schildhauer's widow. She asserted he did not resemble the short, broad shouldered man who talked with her husband before he entered the car.

Funeral services for Schildhauer, held yesterday afternoon at 318 North Central avenue, were attended by about 1,000 high school students. Those unable to get into the chapel heard the services through amplifiers outside. Burial was in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Thorne Smith Finds Nudists Meat for Fun

And You Can't Be Shocked While Laughing.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Bishop's Jaegers," by Thorne Smith. [Doubleday-Doran.]
"The Roving Eye," by Humphrey Pakington. [Norton.]
"The Cautious Amorist," by Norman Lindsay. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

HOW long ago was it that ruffles were tied around piano legs and draperies were thrown strategically over nude statues? Within the memory of many a man and woman alive today. How times have changed in the matter of nudity and how rapidly the cult of nudism is spreading is evidenced by the fact that two factual accounts of conversion to the cult have been published by well known writers this year, "On Going Naked," by Jan Gay [Holborn House] and "Let's Go Naked," by Louis Charles Royer [Brentano's].

THORNE SMITH.

Nudist colonies were bound to become material for humorous story telling, and Thorne Smith, who has a long line of hilarious tales to his credit, leaps right into a nudist colony in his latest sidesplitter, "The Bishop's Jaegers," which itself on publication leaped right into the best seller class.

There is no denying the fact that Thorne Smith is surprising. He talks about anything—and most of the time—and he has no reservations of language. But there is a sort of cosmic comedy about his situations and his manner of relating them and his setting down of the conversations which offer the same reward that made little Jack Horner exclaim. The difference between Thorne Smith's exaggerated naughtinesses and those of less gifted writers is that a bishop couldn't help laughing at them, and a good many do.

The nudist colony is not the whole of "The Bishop's Jaegers," however. There are scenes in an office when a sedate scion of the old New York aristocracy has a little trouble with a pair of shorts, scenes at a pompous tea where a clothes closet unexpectedly offers the assemblage a pretty sight, scenes on a ferry boat which loses its way in a fog and puts to sea [while the passengers bandy words to and fro and a hungry group cook a stolen chicken in the stoker's furnace], and scenes in the court when the unwilling nudists are arrested after their escape. They are all so hilarious that the reader finds himself in a guffaw before his sensibilities proclaim that they are shocked.

And you can't really work up a good case of shock after you've laughed a stitch into your side. The jaegers in the title are a specially fashioned union suit belonging to the great Bishop Waller and they play a spectacular part in the proceedings.

A book just as nearly a masterpiece in its own type of humor as "The Bishop's Jaegers" is in its type is "The Roving Eye," by Humphrey Pakington. It belongs to the subtle school of humor, not the brandishing. "... Roving Eye" could shock no living human being. It is about little more than a handsome young man's roving—but very discreet—eye, and his family's home life and the affairs of the local lights.

Whole scenes are concerned with nothing more than the attempt of a "literary" aunt to tell a bedtime story to a group of children, or an attempt to take a family group picture, or a committee meeting of a local charity. And yet so subtly does Mr. Pakington write about nothing that the reader is tickled all inside himself with a sense of pleasant fun.

The thing that links the two books, so completely different in material, method of presentation and intent, is the fact that they are both the acme of their special brand of humor.

"The Cautious Amorist," written and illustrated by Norman Lindsay, which has achieved a sudden popularity among some readers, has, to me, none of the quality of either of the other two books. It is the story of a shipwrecked group, one woman and four men, and the method by which the woman succeeded in keeping peace among them. But it has a heavy touch. It is meant to be amusing and gay and it succeeds in being what "The Bishop's Jaegers" never is, just a trifle on the spoiled side.

"The Bishop's Jaegers" is American, "The Roving Eye" is English, and "The Cautious Amorist" is Australian.

A Reminder of Other Days at Reopening of Auditorium

Society Folk Are Proud of Tiny Authors

Judges Announce Winners in Book Contest.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SEVERAL prominent families are boasting these days of their children's literary talent as revealed in a contest conducted by Mrs. Frank Hibbard.

Early in the fall Mrs. Hibbard distributed to some of the clientèle of her shop, Conveniences, copies of that attractive Nura book which contains Nura drawings and blank pages on which children are asked to write their interpretations of the artist's work.

The books were returned to Mrs. Hibbard on Thanksgiving day and she has just sent them back to their owners with prize winning stars pasted on the covers.

The judges were so appreciative of the children's work that practically every child received a prize. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, and Mrs. Hibbard composed the committee that had the fun of judging the youthful masterpieces.

"My baby's in a bath tub
As happy as can be;
It seems to me my baby
She's in a mighty sea.
For out of the stillness
Up jumps a fish;
I'll cook it and I'll bake it
And I'll put it in my dish."

Rose Chatfield-Taylor, the Wayne Chatfield-Taylors' 10 year old, was awarded a first prize for her poem interpreting a fantastic picture of a baby in a cradle floating up toward the clouds:

"The angels sent him down to earth,
He stayed there for a year;
He was quite happy for a while;
He never cried a tear.
But then one morning he returned,
His lively friends has missed him.
And so the angels brought him back
And when he woke they kissed him."

Among the other children who won prizes for poems, titles, or stories are Edith Cowles, the 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Knight C. Cowles; Adrienne Ely, the Jay Morse Elys' 10

"THE BIG DRIVE."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The cinema's latest contribution to the cause of world peace—forever and forever—is being presented on the McVicker's screen.

"The Big Drive" is a warm film composed of actual scenes filmed during the world combat. It is unique in that the episodes were, so you are told, recorded by photographers native to the country where the former occurred. Because this is no Hollywood dream, favorably lighted for camera purposes, the photography is not always clear. But it is always effective, driving home anew realization of the anguish and waste of warfare.

We have seen so many films, shot on the scene of conflict—and otherwise—that "The Big Drive," while interesting from start to finish, has little to offer that we have not previously encountered at the movies. It does, however, show startling and informative bits, such as actual hand to hand bayonet fighting, the spot where the first American soldier—Private Gresham—was killed, etc., and leaves a panoramic impression of terror and desolation that will not soon be forgotten.

An explanatory voice is heard throughout. Sometimes you like it and sometimes you wish the producers had relied on subtitles. An hour and a half is a long time to have to listen to anybody.

Lingerie Can Solve Many Gift Problems

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If you are getting in the state of suspense as to what to present some of your charming but also very capricious sister shoppers, lingerie is the answer to your dilemma. And when you shop for lingerie this year you would be wise to carry a supply of smelling salts to see you through the excitement. The alluring price tags will tempt you into buying the affairs by the dozens. There are exquisite French hand made things from fetching nightgowns to very brief French panties for every female on your list.

Despite all previous information that prices are almost sprightly trifles this year, awed wonder still persists and the average shopper still stands a bit stunned and unbelieving when reading the tags.

You can buy the slickest, slimmest, most fitted combinations any fashion hound ever wrapped around her hips for practically give away prices. These sleek satin creations are made as ingeniously as a supersmooth evening gown. Some of the best fitting models have as many as nine or ten clever bias sections sewed together by the smallest stitches imaginable. And the laces used for contrast are lovely filmy cobweb in that flattering sun tan shade.

One shop is shouting about the prize collection of sleeping pajamas and they are certainly something to shout about—soft silk in tea rose, flesh, a new soft yellow, turquoise and seafoam green are tailored in a simple but classic manner and then piped with shadow lines of contrasting color.

This year you will notice a new pajama color combination—tea rose pink piped with apple green with a small monogram in the same shade and two covered apple green buttons to hold the V neckline in place.

Other tailored vanities are the very short and skin fitting panties of satin, clever flesh tinted satin models, tailored with precision and fitted with very small buttons that slip into hidden buttonholes over the hips. These are the panties the college girl will be thrilled to get, especially if the name of the gal has been embroidered close to the hem in a contrasting color.

If you insist upon lace and lace and still more lace you will find some extraordinary bargains in well made panties trimmed with wide lace bands and edgings. But trimmed or tailored, the newest fashions go in for expert fitting and suave smoothness over the hips.

Very nice nightgowns have an extra jacket, a brief bolero effect that covers the shoulders of the lazy person who breakfasts in bed, and these sets can be assembled in all pastel colors as well as tailored and lace trimmed styles. Longer jackets that are really three-quarter length coats are unusual extras that can be worn over matching nightgown and pajamas.

Fascinating new satin nightgowns have sash ties and intricate harness effect backlines with a loop of the satin over lace back strap. Other satin creations have very puffed short sleeves, shirred necklines and bias cut sections that make them as good looking and as interesting as gleaming French evening gowns.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE GEORGE AND DRAGON.

NOTES FROM PROF. FORDNEY'S CASEBOOK ON ABOVE AFFAIR:

Detective Inspector Water: of Scotland Yard invited me to assist at investigation of violent death at the George and Dragon public house in London.

"I was alone standing at cash register behind public bar counter when a masked man rounded the corner of the front bar, drew a pistol, and demanded I hand over contents of till. Upon my refusal he fired three shots point-blank. They missed and I reached into drawer where I kept revolver for just such emergencies and fired. Man fell to floor. I touched nothing and phoned police."

RESULT OF INVESTIGATIONS:

One shot tore off head of stuffed robin found standing on small shelf over cash register, bullet imbedded in wall behind; second shot went through top of cash register, and third hit mirror at side, ricocheted off, and by an odd chance landed in a large necked, half filled whisky jug.

Dead man shot through heart, bullet entering on direct angle, identified as Robert Morris. No police record. Morris lay stretched out full length on back, gun from which three shots had been fired near body. Fingerprints on gun smeared and unidentifiable. Waters discovered Chedewick had known Morris in Australia fifteen years before. Despite plea of self-defense, Chedewick was arrested for murder; convicted of manslaughter, and given twenty years' penal servitude.

HOW DID POLICE DISPROVE CHEDEWICK'S ACCOUNT OF THE TRAGEDY?

Tomorrow and Saturday Lorette will clown to his heart's content along with 20 other acts of circus professionals in a one ring circus in the Chicago Stadium, helping putting the show over for the sake of this city's needy.

The circus is sponsored by the women's division of the Salvation Army. The entire profits are to go to the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County. There will be afternoon and evening performances both days.

Society Holds a Homecoming at Reopening of Auditorium

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT was "homecoming" night at the Auditorium theater last night and I think that every one there agreed with Rudolph Ganz, president of the Bohemians of Chicago, when he said in an address at the end of the first half of the program, "Aren't we glad that we are back where we used to be?"

Every one WAS glad, and on all sides one heard such remarks as "It's so much more pleasant here than in the new opera house"—"Now I feel at home" (the dowager who said that settled herself in the chair in her box as if she really meant it)—"Why did we ever have to leave this comfortable, lovely old theater?"—"It's good to be back, isn't it?" and so on and so forth, but all meant the same thing; they were happy to be back in the Auditorium.

It was almost as if they never had been away, for, in spite of the talk about the redecoration the historic old theater has undergone, it really isn't changed. It's the same dignified old place, the gold paint newer and shinier than it was ten years ago, and buff curtains at the back of the boxes instead of the red ones that had been installed when the Auditorium was redecorated some years ago by the late Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, but otherwise just the same.

Back to Days of Stability.

It seemed to me as I sat in a box listening to the beautiful music that being back there was indicative of what is happening today—we all are returning to the things that we found good before those boom days of '28 and '29 and which we discarded then as being out of date and not grand enough, and we are finding in them now when we return to them the dignity and stability that we missed in the newer things in most cases.

There wasn't any display of jewels last night in spite of it's being as gala an audience as one could assemble in Chicago today. Pearls were almost the only jewels worn, and flowers added the "dressed up" touch to most costumes. The ermine coats were all out of moth balls and the wraps were as gorgeous as ever.

The diamond horseshoe is a thing of the past and tiaras are as out of date as horse cars. There were a few red gowns scattered among the boxes and on the main floor, but for the most part it was a black and white audience, which doesn't make for a brilliant one, smart as it may be. Trains are decidedly IN, if one may judge by the gowns seen last night, and so are long sleeves and high fronts with extremely low backs. In most cases a lady's slippers are the gayest part of her ensemble and bright colored sandals were worn with many of the black or white gowns.

Mrs. Meeker in Black Velvet.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who as general chairman of the social committees that assisted the Bohemians in arranging the concert was in a large part responsible for the great success of the concert—every seat was sold and occupied—was lovely in black velvet with a touch of ermine and a wrap to match her gown with a huge ermine collar. Her flowers were orchids of a

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Have you thought of giving your doorway, your grounds and shrubbery, your entire home exterior, perhaps, some outside Christmas lighting this year? Flood and spot lighting in gorgeous colors enhance the beauty of the simplest grounds, while outlining chimney and window frames with brilliant festoons extend a Yuletide greeting to passing stranger as well as friend. Install outside outlets for this purpose and use weatherproof cord. Floodlighting units are inexpensive and easily handled and may be used for garden lighting the year round. Sometimes wiring may be extended to the outdoors through a basement or living room window.

BARTER AND SAIL

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Hiram White sails his four-masted ship, the Abigail White, in search of a ship filled with pearl oysters, sunk by a French captain before the world war in a lagoon in a South Sea island. Arlette Mordecai, the French captain's granddaughter, has brought him complete instructions for finding the ship. Arlette is accompanied by an English woman of title known as Ladybird. In his crew are Adam Eden, an unemployed engineer; Roberta Mulbank, and Peter Cavan. Roberta's father died after his bank failed and Peter was his trusted employe. Benny, a cook, fires up for his keep. Henery Shepard, backer of the venture, fills the boat with a cargo of his own choosing, including a lot of used cars and launches and plans to stop at certain ports to trade cargoes. One owner of an unused car sends his French chauffeur, Raoul, along. Ladybird, who is a naval officer's daughter, is made mate. The ship is seized by four stowaways on the high seas. A warning comes in over the radio about four bank robbers being at large and the captain realizes he and his crew are in their hands. After several days the bandits are overpowered and set adrift. The ship reaches Cape Town, where Henery's cargo is traded, through Peter Muller, a banker friend of Roberta's father, at a large profit. Their next destination is Sydney, Australia.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

THE STANDARD BASIS.

Capt. Hiram said cheerfully: "Well, they say nothing lasts but love, maybe. This one never had much chance, but if she still manages to drag us all back onto our feet again she'll have paid her way. Mr. Mordecai would never have sent us on a fool errand."

"What about the Japs?" Ladybird asked. "He hadn't counted on the league of nations awarding those islands as mandates to Japan."

"We've got to take our chance on that. I don't believe this particular atoll is often visited. Looks like he was the only one knew it was paved with oysters so rich in pearls. He figured the secret was worth more than his cargo and this new outfit just a patrol boat and not a pearler; so he scuttled his lighter plum in the middle of the atoll where there were no oyster patches and let her sink in seven fathom water. Then he and his mates let on to be castaways."

"Then actually we'll be poaching," Ladybird said, "not that it matters a hang."

"It would matter a whole lot, if we were. But we won't be doing that.

"What about the girls you met on the voyages?"

I wouldn't expose you girls to any such risk for all the pearls in the Pacific. We'll be going there, maybe, to salvage a vessel that belonged to Arlette's grandfather and was sunk there before that island was ceded to Japan."

"How will you go about it?" she asked.

"The chart shows plenty of water to sail right in with all the draft we'll be having, light. Or warp in, maybe. The approach is clear. Eight fathom is child's play for a diver to work in."

"What about sharks?"

"I'll be fixed for them, if necessary. The oysters ought to be rotted out and gone by this time. All we'd have to do is to sift out what pearls there may be."

Ladybird changed the topic: "You said a little while ago that nothing lasts but love. Do you believe that?"

He smiled. "I was quotin' something I heard some where. But it sounds reasonable."

"Why?"

"Well, because takin' it full and by love seems about the best thing the world's got to offer, and if there's anything that lasts it's bound to be what's best."

"That's logical," she admitted. "Just as copper lasts longer than iron, and gold lasts longer than copper. Fact is, gold seems to last forever."

"If it's pure," the captain amended. "I s'ppose you might say the same about love. I never had any experience to speak of with either one or the other." He laughed in his silent way.

"Why not?" she asked.

"Because I've always been a sailor, maybe. Seemed like every time I got home from a voyage some girl I might have picked, had up and married."

"What about the girls you met on the voyages?"

"Speakin' generally, their gold was pretty much alloyed. Never struck me as just the sort to use as a standard basis."

"All the same," she persisted, "I suppose a little of it went through your hands?"

"I was a sailor," he said, simply.

"Of course. But you were never a common sailor. I'd say you could never be a common anything. You run your ship uncommonly. The way a Devon earl who was a chum of my father's managed somewhow to run his big auxiliary full rigged ship yacht. His crew was made up principally of his tenants down there on his Devon estate. They were his friends, also. This peer of the realm used to hold morning prayers, then put on shorts and join them in their exercise of washing down decks. Just as you've been doing."

The captain nodded. "His yacht was in Bermuda spring of 1905. I was mate of a three master went into Hamilton with coal. Well, he had a happy ship, too. Just plain, human reasonableness. It's false pride spoils all that. And greed. Skimping the hands that are doing all the hard work. No sense in it."

Ladybird studied him attentively. "To get back to love, haven't you ever wanted to marry?"

"Sometimes, like every other man. But these last years there's never been the two things needed for that."

"What about the earlier ones?"

"In our family," said Capt. Hiram, "it has always been a tradition for the oldest son to work the farm and the second or third one to go to sea. I had a pretty good schooling in Bowdoin and fished summers. Then I took a course in navigation school and got my master's papers and was working a three master some of us owned in when the war came. That was when I met Mr. Mordecai."

"And all this time you never fell in love with anybody?"

"Not very deep." He laughed. "When the girl looked right the conditions were wrong."

She nodded. "I'd say you were always too much in love with your ship."

She dropped the topic. "The horizon looks as if somebody had ruled it off in purple ink. The sun's nearly on it. I'm going to try a shot and see how it works out."

While this exchange of ideas was taking place on the quarterdeck, Roberta went to feed the baby pigs. She had a large bucket of yam peelings mixed with a number of other foodstuffs that pigs like. She loved to feed them for precisely the same reason that any right hearted person loves to feed any creatures that are whole heartedly appreciative, like growing boys. It confers on the donor a sense of benevolence.

These pigs were tidy; their pens, provender, and persons. Under the break of the high forecastle, Peter and Adams had rigged a big tank that was filled with sea water by a motor pump so that the pigs and their premises were hosed with brine each morning.

Peter was beating the sail with a belaying pin to fold it snugly. Roberta watched him a good deal as a pretty farm girl might watch covertly a handsome hired hand.

Peter had been rapidly learning a new craft and one that had its important mental features. He had learned to apply intelligently the mechanical handling of heavy gear and the principles of seamanship and the application of wind power to a great ponderous fabric. He had studied the cause and effect of every order issued in the handling of the schooner. More than that, all of his free time had been spent in studying the classic works on navigation; Bowditch, which is a marine library in itself.

Peter had expanded. And in this résumé of opportunity one must not forget the vast elemental instruction of the sea.

BY MARY MEADE.

What to serve with fish?

That is a question which seems to puzzle the best of us after we have executed just so many finny dinners and have reached the point of boredom and total inability to think up another piscatorial inspiration or accompaniment.

Yet it isn't the fish but the cooks who are to blame if the family goes on a fish strike. Fish is, as a rule, mildly flavored, and while it objects to being smothered or submerged, it feels distinctly flattered to have a little special attention paid to its accompaniments and its sauces. Something tart must turn the trick on "fish day."

The following meals are simply prepared and the whole dinner may be practically included in the center of attraction—the fish platter or plank.

And if the fish you wish isn't in season when you have the yen—remember that commercial freezing has made all fish always in season. Buy your bluefish, mackerel, or salmon in their protecting ice overcoats directly from your merchant's cold chest.

Dr. C. G. King to Lecture Before Chemical Society

Prof. C. G. King of the University of Pittsburgh will lecture on vitamin C at a meeting tomorrow night of the Chicago section of the American Chemical society at the Midland club. Vitamin C, a dynamic substance in the juice of lemons which has prevented scurvy for more than 100 years, has been isolated and identified by Dr. King as hexuronic acid, a compound of carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen.

Ancient Chinese Weapon Included in Exhibition

The bronze age of China, from 1500 B. C. to 220 A. D., is the subject of exhibits now displayed in George T. and Frances Gaylord Smith hall at Field museum. Among the objects in the collection is an example of caltrop, a four-spiked military instrument, so designed that however it fell one spike would point upward.

Society Holds a Homecoming at Auditorium

soft pink hue, very unusual and becoming.

Mrs. Francis Johnson, chairman of the box committee, was stunning in white satin with orchids; Mrs. Waller Borden, a member of that committee, wore gun-metal lamé with a long and wide train, a bright red chenille jacket, and slippers of the same bright hue. She had to hold her train up when she was flying around giving instructions to Miss Dorothy Schmidt and her corps of Junior leaguers and Service club members who distributed papers asking for members of the Chicago Friends of Music, Inc., and so only her white satin petticoat showed below her long wrap. But when she removed the wrap and let down her train, lo, she was dressed entirely differently from what this reporter thought she was at the first glance.

Miss Narcissa Swift wore one of the most striking costumes in the lower tier of boxes, dull black crêpe with shoulder straps of ermine from which dozens of tails hung over her shoulders and arms. Her mother, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, wore black satin with one shoulder strap of black and the other of flesh pink satin.

Mrs. Aldis Is Hostess for Father.

Mrs. Graham Aldis, hostess for her father, James Keeley, in box 5, which always was occupied by the late Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, was sitting in the corner chair in which Mrs. McCormick always sat, and just as every pair of opera glasses in the great theater used to be focused on the occupant of that chair at every performance of grand opera at least once during the evening, so they were last night, and young Mrs. Aldis, pretty in white with gardenias on one shoulder, was greatly admired.

Mrs. Joseph C. Coleman, one of Chicago society's few remaining "grande dames," was wearing pale flesh crêpe brocaded in silver and a black velvet wrap. Mrs. William J. Chalmers, another of the old school, was in a white gown which was hidden, however, by the lovely white, silver and black lamé coat she wore all evening.

Mrs. William O. Goodman, another of society's older women who remembers many similar nights at the Auditorium and who expressed her happiness at being in the theater again last night, was in cream satin with an ermine coat which she kept on during most of the performance. With her was Mrs. James M. Hopkins, stunning in a black gown with a black coq feather lei. Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson was another who wore one of the popular coq feather leis, but hers was of a purplish rose color.

Miss Buckingham in Old Seat.

All of society were not in the boxes, for many of our best known members of "the pretty world" were on the main floor. Miss Kate Buckingham, donor of the famous fountain to Chicago, was in her accustomed seat near the center of the theater. Mrs. Wentworth Field and Mrs. Everts Wrenn occupied Mrs. Field's customary seats close to the orchestra pit. Mrs. Maurice Casalis, the former Mrs. Mason Bross, was with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay had their usual group of seats near the center rail. Their daughter, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, wore a white crêpe gown with a large pearl buckle. With them were the Albert Madleners and the William M. Spencers.

Among others on the main floor were Mrs. Americus F. Callahan whose guests were Mrs. Francis Waller, Mrs. Sidney Worthy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Slade, and their son, Brayton Slade, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. William S. Jenks, Miss Nellie Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, Mrs. Henry Reuss, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Charles Counselman, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. William Sherman Hay, the Thomas W. Hindes, the Albert H. Wettens, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Royden Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Holabird, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Webber she is Marian Claire, the opera singer], the Misses Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. M. Paul Noyes, and Mrs. William K. Kenly.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"My dear audience," said Mr. Ganz, "it is a joy to be back at the old Auditorium, which tonight becomes new again."

Some 3,500 of the audience applauded the sentiment. It was almost as though the Auditorium had never been closed at all. In fact, such are the virtues of fresh paint, new gilding, redecorations, not to mention soap and water in liberal quantities, that it must have been almost as it was when the Auditorium was really new, five days more than forty-three years ago, the same glorious theater of music, now ready to enter upon a second existence.

The evening was something to gladden the heart. There was an attendance that filled every seat and overflowed into the extra seats in the orchestra pit. Many were there in their former seats that they used to hold during the old operatic days. The same doorman took your ticket with a smile of recognition. The same usher showed you to your seat.

There was little applause at the rise of the curtain, because Mr. Stock was already in his place with his arm lifted, ready to decree the inspiriting blare of the first notes of the "Meistersinger" prelude. But there was plenty afterwards, as soon as his arm fell on the final chord.

The orchestra, by the way, was a composite of several organizations. The Chicago Symphony was the basis, indeed serving as accompanying body for accompaniments and for Mr. Stock's transcriptions. Upon them were superimposed members of the Civic Opera, Woman's Symphony, Business Men's and Civic orchestras, and during the "1812" overture there was an additional brass band recruited from the Chicago Federation of Musicians.

This was inspiring, noble, the kind of music that you remember and take home with you. Even then there were extra climaxes of enthusiasm for the soloists. They, like every one else, were donating their services, not only to the reopening of the Auditorium, but to the charitable causes to which the club of the Bohemians is devoted, and they made a thorough job of it, sending out their finest performances and adding extra numbers for good measure.

Mme. Alsen, having helped to redecorate the theater with "Dich, theure Halle," followed the Love Death with Brunnhilde's war song from "Die Walkuere," and incidentally reached her Chicago peak for thrilling performance. Mr. Thomas sang twice again, another Massenet aria and Leoncavallo's "Mattinata." I am unable to say what, if anything, Mr. Hofmann contributed, for the hour grew late and the deadline approached.

Fabric Contrast Contributes Chic to Utility Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The wrapped effect of this pretty dress is smart and new, and the snugly fitted skirt widens into a slightly circular hemline, making it very becoming. Another good point is seen in the fabric contrast of a soft woolen with silk or satin.

The pattern, No. 2558, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch dark with 1¼ yards of 39 inch light material and ⅝ yard of ribbon for the bow.

Birthday of Cliff Dwellers.

There's going to be a birthday party in Chicago Saturday night that long will be discussed by those attending and over which there will be much speculation. For it promises to be something "extra special."

And whose birthday is it? The Cliff Dwellers. The club is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary, according to Thomas E. Tallmadge, the president, with a "feast, festival, or ceremony, as you will." It is understood that the former presidents of the club, the charter members, and the class of '07 will be especially honored.

Past presidents of the organization include Hamlin Garland, Karleton Hackett, William O. Goodman, Ralph Clarkson, the late Henry Kitchell Webster, Karl E. Harriman, Frederick O. Stock, Carter H. Harrison, and William A. Nitze. The Cliff Dwellers party will be in the club quarters, of course, which are in the loft of Orchestra hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Gardner of Winnetka are entertaining sixteen young people tonight at the "900" for Miss Susan Badgerow and Miss Rosamond Baker, two of this season's debutantes. The party is going on to the Stadium for the hockey game after dinner.

Many Parties for Visitors

Parties, parties and still more parties are on the program for the popular visitors from Italy, Count and Countess Ruggero Visconti di Madrone, who arrived last Saturday to be with the countess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Fairbanks, for the holidays. And the young Italian, Count Vittorio Emanuele Barromeo, who accompanied them from Italy, is finding a warm welcome from their Chicago friends.

Just a few of the parties for the popular trio are the cocktail parties given by David Leavitt in his studio Tuesday and yesterday by Parker Bryant and Tom Menafee, and the luncheon which Durand Smith and Leo Hogan are having Sunday.

Miss Emeline Bush is giving a small dinner for the Viscontis and Count Barromeo at her home tomorrow evening, taking her guests on to the Silver Screen ball afterwards. Sunday evening the Byron S. Harveys are entertaining very informally in their Lake Forest home for the count and countess.

Mr. and Mrs. Honore Palmer arrived in Chicago yesterday from New York. Mrs. Palmer has been in the east ever since she returned from abroad two weeks ago, although Mrs. d'Orsay Palmer and her sister, Mlle. Matilde Martinez de Hoz, who returned from France with the senior Mrs. Palmer, came right on to Chicago.

It is nice to know that the family is together in Chicago for a while, but it is such a short while, for they all leave for Sarasota, Fla., on the 20th for two months or more. In the meantime, Mrs. D'Orsay Palmer, together with her many friends, is doing her best to show Mlle. de Hoz the sights of Chicago and is succeeding in keeping her in a whirl of engagements.

Miss Mary Young arrives in town Saturday morning on vacation from Vassar with scarcely time to take her hat off before rushing to the Arts club for the luncheon which her mother, Mrs. Victor Young, and Mrs. Welch Dickinson are giving for her and for Caroline and Barbara Bullard. It was originally planned that Mary would make her formal bow to society at a tea around Thanksgiving time, but she decided her studies would not permit it then and that she would prefer the luncheon this Saturday.

Caroline and Barbara Bullard, who are the daughters of the Sellar Bullards of Highland Park, made their debuts early this fall. Mrs. Young is planning several small luncheon and dinner parties for her daughter during the holidays in addition to the large luncheon on Saturday.

Mrs. Robert W. Hyman left Tuesday for New York to spend the holidays with her daughter, Jean, who is attending the French School for Girls. She and Jean will do some "last minute" shopping and then go to Lake Placid on Saturday, where they will be until after New Year's. Mr. Hyman will join them at Lake Placid for two or three days.

Thorne Donnelley left yesterday to join Mrs. Donnelley, the former Mary Barnes, who is visiting her parents in Kentucky. They will be with the Barneses for a short time and then they will make—at least they are still planning to—their long contemplated trip to Mexico for the holidays.

Avoid That Business Girl Thickening of the Silhouette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The girl whose day is spent at a desk has, along with the desk spread [as the spread of hips is called] the thick diaphragm to battle. To say nothing of the curved spine!

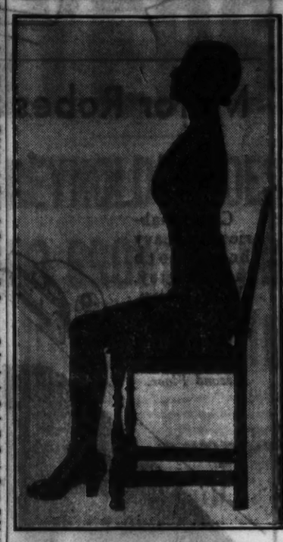
How can the stretching benefit her? The stretching exercises already recommended in this series will be of incalculable benefit. In addition she is urged to do the exercise illustrated here. She can do it a couple of times during the morning and a couple of times in the afternoon. The head of her department can't have any objections whatever to her performing this simple trick of warding off fat. All the girl has to do is to stretch herself up as tall as her head will go while she remains seated. She'll feel enough pull on abdomen, waist, and all torso muscles to know that she's making it uncomfortable for fat to lodge on the spots named.

She can do the trick without the need of putting her hands at her sides, if that will make the performance less noticeable. While Miss Business Girl is giving her silhouette the benefit of this stretch, what it is doing for her posture on all occasions of sitting is wonderful. I'll have more to say about sitting posture later, but if you get the habit of stretching once or twice during the morning and afternoon hours at your desk you'll be away ahead of the posture class. Of course, the woman at home can adopt this same ruie, herself. She does considerable sitting, too, in the course of a day.

An additional benefit of this corrective stretching exercise accrues to the chin line. When you pull up don't shove the chin out and up. Pull it up easily with the tall head stretch. That's all. This will prevent that oft-seen "business-girl-chin-thickening." It isn't a double chin, exactly—but it's on its way to be one. Take a long, long breath as you do this tall pull from the waist up.

If underweight, be sure to do this exercise. It improves the bust line and the hollows about the neck line.

STRETCHING



Stretch as high as you can, beginning at the waist, and pull the muscles up until your head is "up in the clouds."

ENGAGEMENTS

NEW KIND OF SOAP WASHES CLOTHES 4 SHADES WHITER

Makes washday easier, too

WOMEN everywhere are amazed to see how white the new kind of soap washes clothes. Some say linens come four to five shades whiter; and colored things come brighter, too.

According to women who have tried every type of suds, this new kind gives far more satisfactory results. For it puts new life and brightness into the wash. It gets things so white and clean-looking, it's a joy to hang them out on the line.

The whole secret seems to be in the suds. Rinso—the new kind of soap—gives lively suds that loosen dirt and make it float out. Clothes come white as snow—just by soaking. They last longer this gentle way.

This new kind of soap is very economical. A little gives a lot of rich, lasting suds. By actual test, Rinso gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Fine for dishes, too; makes grease go in a flash, yet is easy on the hands.

Try Rinso Free

If you don't use Rinso and want to try it, send a clipping of this offer with your name and address to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. T85, Cambridge, Mass. A full-sized package will be sent you without cost.

Writer Hails Perfect Show for Art Lovers

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Once in a blue moon the perfect exhibition comes along. It has arrived this month with the presentation in the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street, of a loan exhibition of twentieth century prints. This is a soul satisfying show. The finest examples of many of the men who have made their mark these last thirty years are offered for our delectation.

The honors are fairly divided between the English, French and American artists. If one wants to quibble, one might find reason for timid objections inasmuch as more etchers could have been included without hurt to the brilliant record set up by the prints already on hand. But this exhibit was probably not meant to be all inclusive; it was intended as a key to the golden gate of surety that something vital and real would endure out of our time.

The reputation of George Bellows might easily stand on the bedrock of his beautiful child portrait, "Jean"; that of Frank W. Benson could be as deeply rooted in his gorgeous "Blackbirds and Rushes." Sir D. Y. Cameron never executed a finer print than the ravishing "The Five Sisters, York Minster," a glowing and radiant conception of those most beautiful of windows.

Boost Music Temple Plans at Two Meetings

The plan to provide the public with a permanent temple of music on A Century of Progress grounds progressed yesterday at two places, a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Waller Borden, 1020 Lake Shore drive, and last night at the Bohemian benefit concert, the gala event which reopened the old Auditorium theater.

In an appeal during intermission at the Auditorium Charles H. Hamill spoke in behalf of the Friends of Music, Inc., the organization which is sponsoring the raising of 100,000 memberships of one dollar each. He announced that a meeting to discuss the plans further will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 in the foyer of Orchestra hall. Frederick Stock, honorary chairman of the group, will be the speaker.

It was explained that the name of every contributor of the one dollar gifts will be inscribed on the wall of the hall upon its completion. Schools of music and other music organizations will be organized, according to the plan, to help provide good music for the general public at low prices, and to keep Chicago's Symphony orchestra playing during the summer.

Mrs. Borden at her luncheon said the Friends of Music hope to have enough of a fund in hand to start work on the building on the island at the end of 23d street by Feb. 1. She warned against giving dollar contributions to unauthorized solicitors, explaining that the plan of receipting these gifts would be announced later.

AUTO DEALER MOVES TO CLEAR BABE DIDRIKSON

Shows Wire Backing Star's Claim.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Mildred Babe Didrickson, 19 year old Olympic star, today apparently was proved innocent of the charge that she indorsed an automobile for commercial purposes today when E. Gordon Perry, Dallas automobile owner, produced a carbon copy of what he said was the one document which the Amateur Athletic union yesterday had ruled was necessary to determine her amateur status.

Miss Didrikson, who won last year's women's national A. A. U. track and field meet singlehanded and later established two new records in the Olympic games, was suspended by the A. A. U. when her indorsement of a new automobile appeared in newspapers throughout the country. The Southern association of the A. A. U. upheld the suspension yesterday after several days' investigation.

Perry Produces Wire.

The telegram which Perry brought forth today was addressed to the advertising agency of Ruthrauff and Ryan, which represents the automobile firm. It read:

"Wish to advise we are handling enthusiastic opinion by Babe Didrikson in way which does not interfere with her amateur standing. O. K. to use ad as set up in proof."

The wire was not signed and confirmed Miss Didrikson's denial that she put her signature on the document. Miss Didrikson denied the charges when the A. A. U. suspended her.

In upholding Miss Didrickson's suspension yesterday the A. A. U. ruled she was "suspended until such time as she produces either the original or photostatic copy of the so-called release that Gordon Perry admits sending on to his factory so we can make our final decision."

Galveston, Tex., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mildred [Babe] Dridrikson says "half the trouble now" in her conflict with the National Amateur Athletic union is "the bunch of hooey that somebody is putting out about me."

Specifically she referred to a statement addressed to the press tonight which contained a summary of professional offers she was supposed to have received and what purportedly were her own statements about the A. A. U.

"I don't know where it came from," she said. "I think it's rotten to say things like that. If you will just say for me I don't want to turn professional you will do me a big favor. I have only played three years of basketball and I'm not ready to quit as an amateur. I'm having too much fun and I want to do things."

In reading the discredited statement tonight, Miss Didrikson gave a feminine snort when she encountered a paragraph declaring she had been offered $65,000 for a season of professional basketball.

Other purported offers verged on the comic. One paragraph told of a wire from Mexico City asking her to turn bull fighter and another from London offering her a job as a mannequin. She said she never heard of any of the described offers.

A. A. U. SUGGESTS SUIT.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Lawrence Di Benedetto, chairman of the Southern Amateur Athletic union's registration committee, said today the committee will not take final action on the suspension of Mildred Babe Didrikson, woman athlete, until the controversy over the purported release for a commercial product advertisement is settled.

He said that, although Miss Didrikson had denied authorizing an automobile advertisement, the committee had affidavit evidence that a representative of a New York advertising agency had declared the agency held the release signed by Miss Didrikson and her manager.

"We want Miss Didrikson to have every possible chance to clear up this matter," Di Benedetto said. "If the release is not produced we will then disqualify her and she may appeal to the National Amateur Athletic union. If she decides to bring suit against the agency, we should learn then whether or not the release exists."

WANTED: YOST'S VERSION OF THAT KANSAS FULL BACK

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—These dispatches seem to have turned up an old mystery in a recent story regarding the early football adventures of some of the old coaches and the ethical state of the game in the nineties when the rules of eligibility were slack, coaches were mischievous and ringers roamed the campuses.

There was reference in the piece to an old football legend which is repeated by alumni of the University of Kansas, often varying according to the memory and imagination of the narrators. The version given by Jerome Beatty, a Kansas graduate, did not, as I thought, purport to be that of an eyewitness. It had been handed down among the Jayhawks at Lawrence Kas., to his school generation and he told it to me as it had been told to him.

His version was substantially that when Fielding H. Yost was coaching at Lawrence under a one year agreement in 1899 a shaggy yokel appeared on the football field and amused the squad by asking comic questions about the strange game which they were playing. What was that funny balloon that the boys were kicking around? Why did they run into one another like that and why did they fall down and get up and yell arithmetic problems in a loud voice?

The shaggy stranger was induced to try out for the team and when the big game with Nebraska came along he developed into a great star to win the game for Kansas. When the students went to the locker room after the game to put him up on their shoulders and give him a cheer, he was gone and he never was seen again.

This prompting has brought some letters from old Jayhawks, but up to now no version of the mystery has been received from Mr. Yost, whose account of the strange affair would be very interesting. I hope Mr. Yost will contribute his story and, remembering that he is an inveterate journalist himself, I will be glad to pay him the regular coaches' literary rate for his piece, not to exceed a dime a word, however, and not in excess of 250 words either. In conversation Mr. Yost has a tendency to run on and on and he might run up a formidable bill on me at a dime a word unless some limit is set.

The tale stirred the memory of one Kansas old grad in Portland, Ore., signing himself W. H. Tobey, and of another in Chicago who gives his name in brackets and apparently prefers to be mentioned only by his initials, F. P.

Mr. Tobey writes:

"When I read your story a host of recollections came back to me and since you invite it I am going to let you have some.

"I entered Kansas in 1898. Yost came in 1899. By way of showing Nebraska what a good coach he was, Kansas beat Nebraska, 36 to 20. Nebraska didn't pass our 30 or 25 yard line. Benedict accounted for the 20 points with his four drop kicks.

"I roomed with the full back and I have often told the story of the big, shaggy yokel.

"The season had advanced when a big fellow, Floyd Krebs, so called, appeared and was at once surrounded by football fans and players who urged him to come out for practice. Krebs said he didn't know anything about the game, but one day he went out and booted a few punts, lined up with the scrub and made a few awkward tackles. In due course of time he was a regular. Remarkable how he improved.

"He played tackle and went to law school, a refuge for football players, with Uncle Jimmy Green, a rabid fan, for dean."

"Krebs played a good game, but he turned up missing after the season and the faithful were told that his mother was ill and he had been called home to Colorado.

"Later, a few of us on the inside were told that said Krebs had played tackle on Lafayette with Yost."

Mr. F. P.'s version is this:

"I was much interested in the yarn regarding collegiate ethics at the University of Kansas in the 90's. I happened to occupy an official position in connection with athletics at the time. Although it happened more than 30 years ago, so far as I know this is

HAWKS BATTLE BRUINS TONIGHT—OR VICE VERSA?

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Sports fans this season have been indicating more than ever before that they crave to have their hockey very rough and tough. In view of this trend it is felt that a pleasing dish is to be served at the Stadium tonight. The Boston Bruins, reported more impolite and boisterous than any outfit in memory, will engage the Blackhawks in the finale of the latter's current home stand.

Virtually every Boston game has been attended by at least one fist fight and a major penalty. Eddie Shore, boss of hockey's bad men, has had two fistic clashes and innumerable jousts on the ice which have caused him to be locked up in the penalty box. But Shore isn't all.

Joe Lamb, long Shore's main rival in the tough guy business, now is a member of the Bruins. And so is Nels Stewart who, many hockey observers claim, is so adept with a "high stick" that he can give an adversary a shave and a haircut with his blade without ever attracting the attention of the officials.

Hawks Protect Record.

All of the eight enemy teams in the National league have visited Chicago this season, excepting the Bruins, and not a one has achieved a win on Chicago ice. Naturally, the Hawks have the added incentive of wanting to round up the first series of visitations without suffering a reversal. They would feel this way even if some team other than the Bruins were the last to come to town.

The fact that it is the Bruins, however, adds a lot of other elements. On the rough and tumble side is the fact that Shore attacked Donnie McFadyen while the two were serving time in the penalty box in the Chicago-Boston game in Boston on Nov. 22. Another element is the fact that the Hawks last year knocked the Bruins out of the Stanley cup playoffs when Paul Thompson got a goal past his brother, Tiny, for a 1 to 0 victory in the last combat of the year.

No "Smoke Up" Needed.

Ballyhooers never have felt the necessity of a "grudge" smokeup for a Bruin-Hawk encounter for hockey fans generally are familiar with the feud that has existed between the two outfits for a half dozen years. In Chicago the Hawks have had decidedly the better of the duelling, even when the consensus proclaimed the Bostonians vastly more skilled than the Chicagoans.

Customers scarcely will recognize some of the combinations tonight as they perform in Boston regalia, what with the appearance of Lamb, Stewart, and Billy Burch, obtained from the New York Americans, and newcomers Obs Heximer and Frank Jerwa.

Red Beattie, out all last season with a broken leg, is reported back in form. This array of gents are all of the powerful type.

Ross Seeks Consolation.

Tuesday on their own ice the Bruins utilized their newly found strength by handing the world champion Toronto Maple Leafs a 5 to 1 blistering, which included, besides a major penalty and numerous minors, a fight between Manager Ross of the Bruins and King Clancy of the Toronto team. The Bruin skipper won place money in the added event and is said to be looking for a match to restore his prestige.

Coach Iverson of the Hawks intends to use Pudge Mackenzie in center, with Paul Thompson at left wing and Lolo Couture at right when the puck is dropped tonight. A couple of times throughout the evening's pastiming Johnny Gottselig will take Mackenzie's place. It will be Gottselig's first appearance in a game since he was injured in the Boston-Blackhawks game of Nov. 22, which went to the Bruins by a 5 to 1 score. The lineups:

Abel	Defense	Shore
Graham	Defense	Hitchman
Mackenzie	Center	Stewart
Couture	Right wing	Clapper
P. Thompson	Left wing	Barry

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Bears wouldn't find it necessary to get out in the cold and snow Sunday to play the Portsmouth Spartans for the professional football title if Tiny Engebretsen had kicked the extra point after the second touchdown in the Spartan game here last month. That game ended 13 to 13 when Tiny missed a try for point after kicking the first one he attempted that afternoon.

However, there's another side to the case. If Engebretsen hadn't place kicked 24 yards for three points against Green Bay last Sunday, it is doubtful if the Bears could have done better than a scoreless tie with the Packers. A tie would have eliminated the Bears from the race and Portsmouth today would be the champion.

Tiny Makes Good.

Engebretsen's kick Sunday seemingly was impossible. The ball was slippery and Tiny's kicking shoe was water soaked. But the ball sailed over the cross bar, providing the lever by which Nagurski later crashed through the disheartened Packers for a touchdown to make victory certain.

Engebretsen must be considered when discussion is opened relative to Sunday's championship game. If the Bears reach Portsmouth's 20 yard line Tiny may get another opportunity to bot the ball for a field goal. Three points, the Bears assert, will win the title, for the line believes it will stop all Portsmouth's threats.

Coming back to the the game with Portsmouth at Wrigley field, a review of the scoring clearly shows that the Bears passed up a splendid opportunity that afternoon. The Bears marched 62 yards for their first touchdown in the opening period. Portsmouth's six man line yielded before the steady hammering of Corbett, who was at left half because of an injury to Rod Grange and Bronko Nagurski. Dick Nesbitt also contributed a 19 yard dash through tackle which placed the ball on Portsmouth's 6 yard line.

Molesworth Goes Over.

From here Molesworth sneaked through center for the touchdown and Engebretsen kicked the goal. The ease with which the Bears crossed the Spartan goal line probably caused them to relax. At any rate they sat back and permitted Portsmouth to score twice in the next quarter to take a 13 to 7 lead at half time.

Clark missed the drop gick for the point after the first touchdown, so the Bears, still leading, 7 to 6, didn't shake off their lethargy. The second half was different. Gradually the Bears gained momentum. As proof of the Bears' reserve strength, it was the combination of Corbett and Carl Brumbaugh, substitute quarter back, which placed the team in position to tie the score.

Corbett passed to Brumbaugh, who took the ball at the side line for a gain of 10 yards and ran 35 yards more to reach Portsmouth's 7 yard strip. Here Nagurski took command. His first plunge gained 6 yards and o his second effort thereafter Bronko deve over the line for the score.

The Bears will have seven backs ready for the title game. Corbett is ready to replace Grange at left half; Nesbitt, Sisk, and Doehring are certain to play at right half; Molesworth and Brumbaugh will divide the quarter back's duties, and Nagurski probably will play the full time at full back.

Spartans Due Today.

The Spartons are due in Chicago this morning. They will stop at the Sherman hotel, according to Coach Potsy Clark. Practice will be held at Mills stadium the remainder of the week.

The Bears worked out yesterday at Wrigley field for an hour and a half. Unless the weather is near zero Sunday there is no doubt that the game will be played at Wrigley field. Weather forecasts now point to moderation of temperature by that time.

In event the game cannot be played at Wrigley field it will be scheduled Sunday night at the Chicago Stadium. The kickoff has been moved up to 1:30 p. m., so that darkness will not interfere. Joe Carr, president of the National league, is in charge of the post-season game and he has announced that season passes will not be honored. No decision has been reached concerning a radio broadcast.

U. S. C. CLASHES WITH U. C. L. A. OVER STADIUM

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Representatives from University of Southern California clashed with University of California at Los Angeles spokesmen today in a hearing before the Los Angeles county board of supervisors, when both schools demanded right to use the Olympic stadium for football games next fall.

U. S. C. based its demand on the amount of money—$750,000—paid to the civic commission out of its football receipts during the last nine games. The civic commission has been administering the stadium, which was built out of combined city and county funds in 1922. Southern California claimed a priority right to rent the stadium, asked the right to pick its dates, and demanded more dates than U. C. L. A.

Suspend Three Prep Players at Englewood

Three Englewood High school basketball players have been suspended from further athletic competition for violating a Chicago Public High School league rule, it was learned last night. Action on another player, Vincent Sharkey, was held up pending further investigation and Richard Gillenwater, another player accused of breaking the rule, left Englewood just before the investigation started.

The suspension of the three athletes followed reports that they had played on Catholic Youth organization teams last Sunday. According to Harry Staples, Englewood basketball coach, many other players on central section teams also participated in C. Y. O. games and an investigation is now under way to determine the number.

Suspend Capt. Lucht.

Sharkey and Gillenwater both were members of the lightweight squad. Gillenwater left Englewood immediately upon learning that school authorities had found out he had participated in C. Y. O. games, Staples said.

The boys received no money for playing, Staples pointed out, but broke a league rule which prohibits players from participating in outside games after their names have been placed on the league eligibility list.

Take Up Uniforms.

While league officials refused to give out any information other than that an investigation was being conducted, the uniforms of the three Englewood players have been taken up, Staples said, and he already has replaced the boys.

"The suits of the boys were taken up as soon as we found the charges were true," Staples said. "I learned that many other high school boys have played on Catholic Youth Organization teams. Charles Apking [Tilden Tech basketball coach], visited our gymnasium today and said six members of his squad also had participated in C. Y. O. contests."

C. Y. O. Affiliations Undetermined.

The names of the C. Y. O. teams which the boys played on were not determined. Jack Elder, Catholic Youth organization athletic director, last night said he had not heard of the suspension of the Englewood players. A rule in the C. Y. O. forbids the members of any high school team to join C. Y. O. squads, Elder said.

"The boys must have lied in getting places on C. Y. O. teams. They would be immediately stricken from our list of players if we found that they were members of a high school team," Elder said.

REYNOLDS GOES TO BROWNS FOR GOOSE GOSLIN

1932 Records

FOLLOWING are the 1932 records of the six players involved in the Washington Senators' deals with the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns yesterday:

Walter Stewart	14	19	4.61
Earl Whitehill	16	13	4.00
Fred Marberry	7	17	3.85

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Out of a day of intensive bargaining, which engrossed practically all of the managers of major league clubs while their employers were conducting their business meetings in the Hotel Commodore today, the Washington Senators, St. Louis Browns, Boston Braves, and Detroit Tigers tonight emerged with new players to show for their effort.

The Senators and Browns concluded a six player deal whereby Washington is to receive Goose Goslin, star outfielder; Walter Stewart, southpaw pitcher, and Fred Schulte, another outfielder, in exchange for Lloyd Brown, left handed pitcher, and Outfielders Carl Reynolds and Sam West. In addition to this the Senators also tossed in a considerable sum of cash, though the exact amount was not revealed.

Marberry for Whitehill.

Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the Braves, announced he had just laid $60,000 on the line, along with a young player, for two stars of the Mission club in the Pacific Coast league, Dick Gyselman, a third baseman, and Al Wright, a second baseman. William Walter, recruit infielder, was the infielder the Braves used in the deal.

Baseball observers expressed the opinion that the Browns got the better of the deal with the Senators, which, they said, would have been an even trade without the cash consideration.

Browns Add Youth.

Bill Killefer, manager of the Browns, said he had added youth to his team through the trade. Stewart is 34 years old; Goslin, 31, and Schulte, 30. On the other side of the deal, Brown is 28; West, 28, and Reynolds, 27.

Reynolds' best year was in 1930 when he batted .359 with the Chicago White Sox. He slipped in the last two seasons, but is still rated a good outfielder. Reynolds and Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, got into an altercation last July which resulted in Dickey breaking Reynolds' jaw. Reynolds was unable to play for seven weeks and Dickey was suspended a month.

Goslin will go back to Washington, where he gained his greatest fame in 1924 and 1925, the years that the Senators won the American league pennant.

Helps Senators' Staff.

The two trades gave Washington two of the outstanding southpaw pitchers in the league and enhances the Senators' chances of overhauling the world champion New York Yankees next season.

Marberry won 7 games and lost 17 for Washington last season, appearing chiefly as a relief pitcher until the closing weeks. Whitehill won 16 games last season and lost 13, leading the Detroit staff.

Magnates Favor New Ticket Plan for World Series

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—World's series tickets, heretofore distributed to the public only on application and in sets of three, are fairly certain to be sold for one game at a time next fall.

This was indicated today when magnates of the National and American leagues concluded their separate meetings prior to moving into joint session at noon tomorrow before Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The club owners declined to reveal later what attitude they would take on various matters to come up tomorrow other than that most of them seemed "to favor" revising the distribution of world's series tickets.

Radio again was said to have come up for informal discussion with indications still pointing to a decision at the joint meeting that will permit each club to continue to dispose of the matter as it pleases. Five clubs in the National league are opposed to broadcasting, while only the Cubs, Braves, and Cardinals favor it. The American league is evenly divided on the matter, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, and Boston being radio's sponsors.

QUATRE BRAS II. WINS FEATURE AT NEW ORLEANS

Gilbert and Mills Ride Two Winners.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Quatre Bras II., the French bred son of Teddy-Plucky Liege which races for the Three D's Stock farm, scored by a head over M. L. Johnson's Rip van Winkle in the 6 furlong Southern Bucaneer handicap at Jefferson Park today. Protractor, a half length behind Rip van Winkle, was third.

Only five accepted the issue in the race, with Gold Step fourth and the favorite, the Blue Star stable's Malolo, a badly outrun fifth. Quatre Bras II. was the extreme outsider in the wagering.

Gilbert Rides Winner.

Johnny Gilbert had the mount on Quatre Bras II. and his victory completed a double for Gilbert, who had previously won on Southland Lad in the opener. Hank Mills held his own in the duel for the honor of riding the most winners by scoring astride Bright Chestnut in the third race and By Gracious in the sixth. The count at the close of today's racing was 193 winners for Gilbert and 191 for Mills.

After a good start in the feature race Mills rushed into an early lead with Protractor, while Gold Step and Malolo were holding on gamely a length behind. Protractor drew away at once, increasing his margin to more than a length after the first half mile and appeared to have the race won.

Rip van Winkle trailed during the early stages and Quatre Bras II. was held off the pace. As the field rounded the stretch turn Malolo tired under his impost of 120 pounds and dropped back suddenly. Gilbert took advantage of this break in the ranks of the pacemakers to send the French horse up fast around the outside under a hard ride and take the lead.

Quatre Bras II. Pays $21.80.

Protractor held on with remarkable gameness until the closing strides, when he was forced to give way to the fast closing winner. Rip van Winkle, going in good form by this time, also closed well, but after passing Protractor he was unable to close ground on the winner.

Quatre Bras II. was the lightweight of the field, racing under an impost of 105 pounds. He paid $21.80 for $2 to win, $6 place, and $4.80 show. It was his first triumph in eight starts this year. His time was 1:13 for the 6 furlongs over a track that had become slow owing to a steady drizzle.

H. C. Rumage's consistent Starboard Light won his fourth victory of the meeting in the fourth race, which attracted a field of six good platers. Zenka, beaten a half length, was second, and El Puma was third. Hoops, after being made an almost even money favorite, finished fourth.

Burning Blaze! There's One Horse to Watch Next Year

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Nash brothers of Chicago—Dick and Pat—whose racing establishement is known as the Shandon Farm stable, have every confidence their colt, Burning Blaze, will be one of the great horses in America next year.

They endured one great disappointment over Burning Blaze when the son of Big Blaze was cut down in a race a few days before the series of rich 3 year old stakes started with the running of the Kentucky Derby last May. At the time Burning Blaze seemed to have most of these 3 year old specials, particularly the Derby, Arlington Classic, and American Derby, at his mercy.

That's a Lot of Dollars.

But for the injury he might have picked up $200,000 in stakes and purses, and $200,000 in 1932 is quite a large sum of money, regardless of how you figure it.

That the Nash brothers are confident Burning Blaze has recovered from the injuries and is to be a sound horse when he parades to the post next season is indicated by the engagements they are making for him. He already has been nominated for the Metropolitan handicap, Suburban handicap and Jockey Club Gold Cup in New York. He will be named for the series of rich stakes at Arlington Park, including the Stars and Stripes, Arlington handicap and Arlington cup, as well as the Hawthorne gold cup.

May Run in Fair Special.

"If there is an international race bringing the champions of several countries together in a World's Fair special, Burning Blaze more than likely will be the American representative if he is as good as we think he will be," Brother Pat of the Nash brothers firm has been telling his friends lately.

Some names that are new, even to the closest student of horse racing, have just been registered with the Jockey club and it might be well for everybody who expects to pick a winner every now and then next season to become familiar with them.

They are the names of the young horses which will represent Warren Wright, Chicago sportsman, in the rich 2 year old stake next year. The nom de course of Mr. Wright's turf interests is Calumet Farm stable, and if the Chicagoan gets a half way even break in the racing luck, horses which run in his silks are going to figure prominently in American racing. Calumet farm is one of the most noted horse places in Kentucky. Mr. Wright went to great expense to stock it with the most fashionable young thoroughbreds in the country.

One of his most stylish yearlings which will begin racing next season is a full sister to the 2 year old champion, Ladysman. Mucia is the name he has selected for the daughter of Pompey-Lady Belle. A daughter of Pompey-Some More has been named Some Pomp by Mr. Wright. This miss is a sister to the good 3 year old Osculator. A son of Reigh Count-Concession has been named Sun Rae and a son of Pompey-Bourbon Girl has been called Prince Pompey. Here are other names Mr. Wright has picked for his young horses:

Sir Ten, son of Sir Gallahad III-Ten Lee.
Dustina, daughter of Pompey-Elvina.
Hermie Roy, son of Brown Bud-Prodigy.
Unkie Tom, son of Hollister-Lady Sylvia.
Hug Again, daughter of Stimulus-Affection.

Mr. Wright is naming the youngsters for all the rich juvenile stakes that are to be run in Chicago, New York, Maryland, and Kentucky next season. They are the best looking yearlings that are wintering in Kentucky.

The struggle at Jefferson Park between Hank Mills and Johnny Gilbert for the jockey championship of the year is nearing the fisticuff stage, according to a report brought to Chicago yesterday.

"Mills and Gilbert were ready to start punching each other on the chin at the end of the race the other day when Gilbert on Donate beat Mills on Abe Furst by a neck," a Chicagoan who returned yesterday from the New Orleans racing scene said.

Mills accused Gilbert of carrying him wide into the stretch. "If you hadn't crowded my horse out I would have won," Mills shouted at Gilbert when they returned to the jockey quarters. "If you don't think so I'll knock your block off," he yelled. They had squared away and were ready to start punching when other jockeys dragged them apart.

Fighters Finish Drills Today for Coliseum Show

Eddie Shea finished boxing yesterday with four rounds, two each with Marty Fields and Tony Shea. Eddie clashes with Harry Blitman, Philadelphia southpaw lightweight. He showed his old punching ability during the drill and will seek a knockout over Blitman, who is making his Chicago debut.

Paul Dazzo, west side featherweight, apparently believes that he will have little difficulty disposing of Young Geno of La Salle, Ill., in a third 10 round contest at the Coliseum. He has signed to face Johnny Mitchell, Michigan 126 pound champion, at Detroit next Wednesday.

TABERSKI BEATS CARAS IN CUE TOURNEY, 125-58

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., a former titleholder, gave Young Jimmy Caras his first defeat in the national pocket billiards championship tonight. The score was 125 to 58, the match going nine innings. The defeat of Caras left Ralph Greenleaf, the defending champion, as undisputed holder of the tournament lead.

Greenleaf won his fifth straight match this afternoon by beating Bennie Allen of Kansas City, 125 to 15 in 13 innings. In the other afternoon match James F. Mills won from Walter Franklin, 125 to 71 in 18 innings.

GRAND RAPIDS SETS DATES FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Grand Rapids Press today announced its dates for the annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament. The preliminaries will be held in the Auditorium, Feb. 1, 2, and 3, while the finals will be Feb. 10. The eight champions will compete in the Tournament of Champions at Chicago.

Roper Seeks Vengeance in Everett Bout

Jack Roper, Chicago heavyweight, and Buck Everett of Gary, Ind., will meet in the last professional boxing show of the year at the Rainbo Fronton tomorrow night. It is considered the best match Grant Kromenaker has obtained as a promoter. It is the second bout between Roper and the Gary fighter, but both men have improved since the first.

Everett will be after his second victory over Roper and his sixth straight. Since beating Jack on the south side a year ago Everett has lost only five matches in 20. He finished boxing yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium with four rounds, two with Tom Jones and two with Rudy Schragel. In his most recent start Buck whipped Dick Daniels at Minneapolis, Minn. Everett knocked out Biff Bennett in his last previous appearance in Chicago.

Georgie Nichols, Buffalo, N. Y., whose light heavyweight championship may be declared vacant by the National Boxing association Jan. 1, will appear in one of three 10 round bouts at the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 29.

King Levinsky accepted terms last night to fight Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion, at Philadelphia on Jan. 3. King will start training Monday. He will go to Philadelphia late next week.

Prince Saunders, south side lightweight, signed yesterday to box Harry Dublinsky at the Cicero Stadium on Jan. 2. Dublinsky has agreed to the contest and will sign upon his return from Muncie, Ind., where he will battle Willard Brown, Indiana lightweight champion, tonight.

Seven bouts at St. Philip's gymnasium Monday between St. Philip High school boxers and a team from the Jewish People's institute have been arranged. They are:

PHILLIPS QUINTET STARTS DEFENSE OF TITLE TODAY

The championship Wendell Phillips lightweight basketball team, after playing a practice schedule of six games, steps out in defense of its Chicago Public High school league title this afternoon, meeting Tilden Tech at the latter's gymnasium. The champions won three of their preseason contests. Among their victims was Morton, Suburban league lightweight titleholder.

Among the veterans on the Phillips squad are Jones, left forward, and Cobb, right forward, who led the team to its three victories. The game will be the second central section contest of the season. Sectional play started yesterday, Lindblom defeating Hyde Park, 27 to 16.

Five other lightweight games are scheduled for today. Calumet will play Fenger on the latter's court and Morgan Park meets Parker at the Parker gymnasium in the opening south section games. Three games will start the race for the west division lightweight championship.

Austin, undefeated in four practice games and rated as one of the strongest in the west section, starts the league season against McKinley on the McKinley court. In the other contests Tuley will play at Harrison and Crane Tech will visit Marshall's gymnasium.

Waller and Schurz will meet at Schurz in the only heavyweight game scheduled. The contest will mark the opening of the heavyweight race in the north section.

Bird Fans! Don't Delay Building Lunch Counters

BY BOB BECKER.

The snowstorms which have been covering Chicagoland should be the final spur needed to get thousands of bird fans busy with their winter feeding stations. As a rule our winter birds can get along quite well during the early part of the winter, provided that we do not have a lot of snow, because natural food supplies in the fields and woods are abundant.

For example, the juncos never have to worry about cold weather with acre after acre of weeds exposed, because these weed patches provide many meals of seeds. Quail and other species also find these natural sources of food ample for their needs through most of a winter. Waste grain can be obtained on farmlands, weed seeds can be eaten in the patches of thick cover, and they do not have to worry as long as these supplies hold out.

However, snowstorms and sleet which cover up the free lunch counters may change the eating situation for birds over night. Cardinals, robins which have elected to stay with us all winter, and other species find the going harder during and after winter storms. It is then that they come around to a feeding station for a handout and they will continue to be boarders as long as the home owner gives them scraps and waste food items which could not be utilized in any other way. Bread crumbs, bits of suet, old meat bones, apple cores, dry biscuit crumbs, and similar food will be welcome to these birds.

Bird fans who haven't had much luck finding or seeing European starlings around their homes may have a flock of these "foreigners" any one of these days. There are quite a number of starlings in Chicagoland. Even though these birds are fairly well established in some communities and much has been written about their invasion of the central states, hardly a week goes by that we do not hear from some bird fan who is baffled trying to identify the species.

In many cases suburbanites or farmers have associated the birds with apple orchards, because the starling is fond of the fruit and will come into an orchard to feed on the culls which haven't been picked or have been left under the trees.

It's about 8½ inches long and about the same weight as a robin. A short, droopy tail gives it a sort of humpbacked appearance. From a distance it may resemble a speckled blackbird. At close range you can see hom irridescent its plumage is with reflections of purple, green and blue. The speckled effect comes from having most of its feathers tipped with white, thus giving it a mottled appearance when seen from a distance.

PURDUE STARTS ITS SEASON WITH 48 TO 24 VICTORY

Big Ten Champions Win Easily from Miami.

Harry Kellar, acting captain, had a big night at the basket during the comparatively short time that he worked and scored five field goals to take the high point honors of the evening.

The new rules had practically no effect on the game, Purdue's fast breaking attack taking the ball into the forward court consistently well under the time limit. Miami's scoring was well divided, Anthony leading with a field goal and four free throws.

Led by Taylor Hoffar, veteran center from Seymour, Indiana ran completely away from the Methodists and held a 19 to 7 lead at the half. Hoffar made most of his six goals by cashing in on shots his teammates missed.

George Eubank, rangy center, showed best for the Methodists. He directed De Pauw's attack and led its scoring with three free throws and one field goal.

Olympia Fields Country Club to Reduce Dues

Olympia Fields Country club will reduce its annual dues beginning May 1, according to an announcement made yesterday by William G. Wise, president of the club.

"The board of directors has been aware for some time of the growing sentiment among the members that something should be done to bring about a reduction in the annual dues," Mr. Wise said. "Because our current indebtedness had accumulated to a point where every possible source of revenue was necessary to meet it, the problem was a difficult one. However, based on the result of its policy of retrenchment, in effect during the last year, the board has now decided to recommend a reduction of annual dues to $144, beginning May 1, 1933."

In order to insure adequate income, Mr. Wise continued, it will be necessary to dispose of additional memberships and to that end the board has authorized the membership committee to effect a sales drive. The complete plan will be revealed within a few days. If a sufficient number is disposed of it will be possible to eliminate the monthly assessment and mean a considerable annual saving to each member of the club.

Olympia Fields, in an effort to popularize club trap shooting, has invited a number of leading Chicago marksmen to such an event, to be held at the club Sunday. A number of prizes will be given, and several of Olympia Fields' own shooters are organizing five man teams for the event.

Loyola Loses Opener, 35-30 to Davis-Elkins

Loyola university lost its opening game of the basketball season last night to the Davis and Elkins five of West Virginia, 35 to 30. It was the first defeat for Loyola on its home floor since February, 1931.

Davis and Elkins jumped off to a 20 to 11 lead in the first half. Loyola's play in this period was erratic. Capt. Don Cavanaugh scored four field goals and Harold Motz dropped in a basket and a free throw for Loyola's scoring. Capt. Ellis Vest was the star for the visitors, with five goals and two free throws in the first period. He added a pair of goals and two free throws in the second half to total 18 points.

Loyola Flashes Power.

The Loyola offense began to function in the first six minutes of the second period, with Connelly, Motz, Hogan, and Cavanaugh hitting the basket to tie the score at 22-all. The Davis and Elkins sharpshooters piled in eleven consecutive points before Motz counted again for Loyola. Hogan and Motz followed with goals to bring the score to 33 to 28 when Tinney, subbing for Martin, counted from the field. Motz ended the scoring.

Davis and Elkins made good on all seven of its chances at the free throw line, while Loyola sank only 4 of 14.

Motz Leads Scoring.

Harold Motz, sophomore center, took the scoring honors for Loyola with 12 points. Cavanaugh totaled 11.

The lineups:

ONTARIO BEATEN, 41-31.

The Victor Lawson Memorial Y. M. C. A. of Chicago staged a comeback in the last half last night and overcame an 11 point lead to beat out the Western Ontario university basketball team from London, Ont., 41 to 31. At the end of the first half the Chicagoans trailed, 22 to 11. Pete Stone led the Chicago rally and scored a total of 12 points. Whitwell led the Canadians with 11 points.

Trades Give Senators Four New Players

that the Reds had purchased Clarence [Footsie] Blair, a second baseman, from Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league. Blair was the Chicago Cubs' regular second baseman in 1931.

Dodgers, Giants Plan Deal.

Prospects of a trade between the Dodgers and the Giants took definite form when it became known that Del Bissonette, Brooklyn veteran first baseman and hospital patient, will undergo another operation on the injured leg which almost cost him his life last year. With Bissonette's condition problematical, Max Carey hopes to land Sam Leslie, substitute first baseman on the Giants, or Joe Judge, veteran Washington infielder. In return for Leslie, Manager Terry is reported as demanding Johnny Frederick, Gordon Slade, or Mickey Finn.

Max Carey and Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, were in conference again and it seems the sum of $3,000, which Griffith demands for Judge, is holding up the deal. Griffith paid $3,000 for Judge 18 years ago, when he bought him from Buffalo, and, although Joe has given valiant service to the Senators, Griffith will not part with him unless he gets his original investment back. Carey objects to buying the veteran, while Judge prefers not to be sold, but made a free agent so he can negotiate his own deal.

Meanwhile, James J. Tierney, secretary of the Giants, announced that the deal for Bill Shores, right handed pitcher from Portland of the Pacific Coast league, had been closed. The Giants will send Sam Gibson, pitcher, and cash to Portland for the former Athletics' hurler.

Jimmie Dykes, veteran third baseman sold to the White Sox by the Athletics, conferred with Chicago officials, presumably on a 1933 contract, and indicated they had failed to get together on details.

BACK FROM THE WARS—AND DEFEAT

In the WAKE of the NEWS

QUICK KICKS.

THERE has been considerable post-game comment on the quick kicks employed by Southern California against Notre Dame, on one of which Koken's fumble opened the way for a Trojan touchdown. For the uninitiated, a quick kick is a surprise punt, not from a punt formation, but from close behind the line of scrimmage.

It will be remembered, perhaps, that Notre Dame used those very same quick kicks to good advantage against Northwestern. When Coach Dick Hanley of the Purple was asked about it afterward, he said: "That was just one of the chances we had to take. Of course, we could have played a safety man deep, but our line needed our secondary to help stop the Notre Dame running attack. Besides, we needed our secondary fairly well up to guard against passes of medium length or over the line of scrimmage.

"So when we failed to anticipate a quick kick, not easy to anticipate, it was just too bad. I have no criticism of our defense on that account."

Perhaps there were reasons why Notre Dame could not guard against quick kicks, although their effects twice put it in the hole and once was indirectly responsible for a touchdown.

Michigan as Champion.

Southern California is reported incensed over the so-called Dickinson rating which places Michigan as the strongest eleven in the country and carries with this award a trophy. Prof. Dickinson, connected with the University of Illinois, has a mathematical method of figuring out the complicated problem.

It doesn't matter what the system is. It will be "fair and justified" to the team receiving first place. It will be otherwise to those thinking the honor should be theirs.

That's one trouble with all ratings or percentage systems. Michigan is conference champion by the accepted standard. Try, if you are of an argumentative turn of mind, to convince any Purdue undergraduate or alumnus that the Wolverines of 1932 were a better eleven than the undefeated although tied Boilermakers of 1932.

How could you know, little child of mine—
You laugh all day and play all the time—
How could you know that the road is long

You couldn't see in the corners dim
The beasts that are waiting to pull you in!

Years will play havoc with you and your dreams,
They lose themselves in the winding streams—
But you couldn't know, little child of mine,
So laugh all day, and play all the time!

The Hole-in-One list which obtains in this column in season was closed weeks ago. We open it for the day to admit J. A. Cameron, who scored an ace of 146 yards on hole 4 at Northwestern course, Evanston. Any one who can compile a hole-in-one in this weather deserves something—perhaps capital punishment.

3,000 Cheer Notre Dame on Return Home

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's football squad returned home today from its 13 to 0 defeat by Southern California to a welcoming crowd of 3,000, as noisy, if not as large, as any that has greeted the team this fall.

A delay of more than an hour and a half in the squad's arrival thinned out a larger gathering of fans who were on hand for the welcome. Heavy snows encountered in the middle west postponed the arrival from 12:30 until 2 o'clock.

The entire Notre Dame student body was on hand, however, making the trip from the campus to the station in a long caravan of chartered street cars. The eighty piece student band assembled in the lobby of the Union station to lead the demonstration.

No speeches were included in the celebration as the squad filed through the crowded station to cars which took them direct to the campus. Coach Hunk Anderson and Athletic Director Jesse C. Harper did not return with the party, Anderson remaining in California to see the Georgia Tech-California game at Berkeley Saturday.

Harper stopped off at his ranch at Hutchinson, Kas. He will return to Notre Dame shortly after the first of the year. Coach Anderson is expected back late next week.

Kansas Grads Hark Back to That Full Back

the first time that any reference to it has appeared in print.

"The account was not correct in stating that the phenom played only in the Thanksgiving game with Nebraska. He played more that half the season and one of the interesting features of the case was that his identity was so closely guarded that no one knew the real facts except Yost and the manager of the football team, who passed on the dope to some of us who were rather on the inside, after Yost had terminated his contract with Kansas.

"Early in the 1899 season, when Yost gave Kansas an "ever victorious" team, his regular full back was injured. He had to pull back a tackle and was having trouble plugging up the hole in the line. About this time a big, rawboned fellow appeared, registering from Trinidad, Col., and giving his name as Krebs. He went out for practice and said he had played on the Trinidad High school team. He didn't show any wonderful proficiency in practice, but was very soon given the regular tackle berth. He played a very steady, consistent game, nothing spectacular, but at the end of the season some of the other members commented on the fact that no tackle who played against him lasted out an entire game. That meant more than it would now. Then a man who went out could not return.

If Mr. Krebs still lives possibly he, too, will write a piece. He has become a historic mystery of football at Kansas.

There is also a contribution relating to sport at Notre Dame in the time when rules were less strict than they are today. A clipping from the "25 years ago today" column of the Laporte, Ind., Herald-Argus reads as follows:

"Ray Hook, one of the best athletes ever produced by Laporte High school, has been invited to enter Notre Dame and become a member of the athletic team. The offer includes the payment of all of Mr. Hook's expenses at the university."

MR. SKI JUMPER, HAVE YOU FILED YOUR ENTRY YET?

Tribune Meet New Year's Day Open to All.

Who will win the four championships in the third annual ski tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE? These ski contests will be held, with the cooperation of the commissioners of the Northwest park district, at Riis park, Fullerton and Meade avenue, on New Year's afternoon.

All boys in Chicagoland are eligible to compete. There are age classifications from the lowest of 12 years and under to the most advanced, that for boys 17 years of age and over.

13 and 14 years of age—Ed Petrick, Fox River Athletic club.

15 and 16 years of age—Harvey Nilsen, Norge Ski club.

17 years of age and over—Eddie Hansen, Norge Ski club.

These boys may compete in this year's tournament, but none is eligible to jump in the same age division. In other words, each of last year's winners must advance to the next age class regardless of their age at this time.

Winners Get Medals.

Gold medals await the four boys who prove their skill in the New Year's day tournament. The championships will be based on the length of jumps and the form with which the contestant negotiates the hill. The jump at Riis park is not too difficult for novices. If you've never tried skiing, this hill is not too steep for your first attempts. The worst that can happen is a spill, which, on the snow coated slope, will not cause an injury.

Jumps of more than 40 feet were made last year. The length of the slide produces sufficient momentum so that experienced jumpers frequently will rise 15 feet in the air as they take off from the wooden trough. Others, who lack the experience, need not jump. They can drop off the end of the slide and concentrate on remaining erect. The tournament, as it always has been intended, will furnish beginners with competition. For the more experienced, it offers opportunity to win gold medals.

Fill In Entry Blank.

Second places, in the four age divisions, will be rewarded with silver medals, while those who finish third will receive bronze medals.

An entry blank is printed daily which may be used to send in application to compete in the tournament. Check the proper age division and print your name and address plainly in pencil. If you wish to represent a club or other organization, fill in that part of the blank. The team which scores the most points will receive a silver trophy. The Norge Ski club won the team title last year.

Team entries, however, may be made in a group if the ages of all competitors are attested by an official of the club. The entries close at midnight, Dec. 27. None will be accepted if postmarkd later.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—Treasury issues led the bond market in a recovery today as traders anticipated the removal of the war debt problem as a market factor after tomorrow.

Some of the demand for United States government issues was attributed to anticipation that the discount bonds will yet be purchased by Britain to make the debt payment, despite the statement of the British treasury head that the installment would be met with gold.

Treasury 3s Take Lead.

In pointing the way upward for the general market, treasury bonds were in turn led by treasury 3s. Five government issues sold at new highs for the year. From the opening treasury numbers were firm, but real heavy demand did not develop until the afternoon. Large blocks of the 3s were taken from the market beginning around midday and more were bought in the outside market.

Foreign bonds did not suffer from the default action by France and Belgium. Bonds of those countries tapered slightly, but it is conceded that the ability of these countries—particularly France—to meet payments on their dollar loans has little relation to their willingness to make war debt payments.

Domestic Bonds Rally.

The rally in domestic bonds coincided with a sharp upturn in stock prices and marked the resumption of the uptrend which was interrupted temporarily yesterday.

Demand for high grade domestic bonds was particularly noticeable. Evidence of the rising demand for high grades was seen in the successful sale today of $30,400,000 New York state bonds at a record low interest cost. Recoveries in speculative domestic bonds, included such rail issues as Baltimore and Ohio stamped 4½s, due 1933; Cleveland Union Terminal 5s, New Haven debenture 3½s, and many others.

Improvement in high grade bond prices was largely responsible for many new high marks for the year. Many prime corporation bonds joined in the upswing which is taking government, state, and municipal bonds to new highs for the year.

West Penn Electric.

West Penn Electric company was incorporated in 1925 as a holding company to control the electric light and power, railway, and gas properties formerly controlled by American Water Works and Electric company, Inc. It is controlled by American Water Works.

Subsidiaries serve an area of 26,500 square miles extending from within 25 miles of Baltimore across Maryland and northern West Virginia to the Ohio river and northward through western Pennsylvania, excepting Pittsburgh, to the north central section of the state. Population of the territory is 2,350,000.

Operating revenues for the nine months to Sept. 30, 1932, were $22,117,000, and net income was $3,027,000. Preferred dividends were $1,701,000, and class A dividends were $311,000. For the corresponding 1931 period operating revenues were $26,276,000, and net income was $4,256,000. Preferred dividends were $1,701,000, and class A dividends were $311,000.

Gross for 1931 was $35,739,000, against $39,493,000 for 1930, $40,277,000 for 1929, and $38,175,000 for 1928. Net income in 1931 was $6,117,000, or $17.93 per preferred share and $64.96 per class A share, against $6,308,000, or $18.49 per preferred share and $68.13 per class A share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $7,626,000, and for 1928, $6,259,000.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $8,761,000 and current liabilities were $6,253,000. Notes payable were $710,000. Funded debt was $5,000,000 and funded debt of subsidiaries was $95,957,000. Subsidiary preferred stocks totaled $42,012,000.

There are outstanding 221,247 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred and 119,906 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred, both with $100 par value. There are 59,258 shares of $7 no par class A preferred outstanding. Both classes of preferred have equal first preference as to assets and dividends. The class A has second preference.

What is the meaning of "cumulative" when referring to preferred stocks?—P. G. D.

The cumulative provision, as applied to preferred stocks, signifies that if the full dividend is not paid on the regular date, the unpaid portion accumulates and must be paid before anything can be disbursed on junior classes of stock.

BUY AT HOME SCHEME IS SEEN AS BOOMERANG

Manufacturers Call Plan Uneconomical.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday attacked the Buy Illinois Products movement and "buy at home" schemes in general as a deterrent to business and a foolhardy experiment. The association's criticism was contained in a statement released last night.

Such a movement in one state, the association finds, only leads to reprisals in other states, with the result that interstate trade begins to decline and everybody suffers, especially the industries depending upon nation-wide marketing of goods.

See Possible Harm.

"While the home industry idea at first thought seems plausible," the association declares, "editors of leading publications throughout the country are almost a unit in declaring that it is economically unsound and more likely to harm than help a community or state which adopts it.

"They base their conclusions on the fact that each state is dependent for its prosperity on trade with other states; that this outside business often is much larger and more profitable than the business done within the state, in some cases reaching as high as 95 per cent of an industry's total business, and that retaliation by other states against a state which practices the buy at home policy may destroy or reduce these large and profitable markets."

Position of Illinois.

"While a state may increase the purchase of its own products by imposing restrictions on interstate business, it stands to lose more than it gains because of a possible boycott of its products by other states."

Attention is called to the fact that although Illinois has only 6.14 per cent of the nation's population it produces as much as 60 per cent of the nation's output in some industries.

Widespread application of the buy-at-home idea in Illinois, the report asserts, with consequent retaliation by other states, would bring disaster to more than one hundred Illinois industries which employ half a million Illinois workmen who receive wages and salaries totaling $850,000,000, or 80 per cent, of the state's entire industrial pay rolls.

"More Harm Than Good."

"In the long run, a Buy-Illinois-Products movement, if carried to its ultimate conclusion, would do more harm than good to the manufacturing industry in Illinois," the association declares.

"Any movement to shut out certain products from the state in order to help industries which employ only 20 per cent of the state's workers, have caused and will continue to cause reprisals that will injure the purchasing power of manufacturers who purchase other two-thirds of the raw materials used in the state, employ 80 per cent of its workers, and produce more than two-thirds of the state's manufactured products."

Holds Plan Will Not Work.

Throughout its report the Illinois Manufacturers' association seeks to make clear that its stand is based on the conviction, arrived at after careful study, that the attempt to set up artificial trade walls between states simply will not work, that one such move only leads to another, and that each is merely a boomerang.

The conclusion drawn is that the selfish interests of each state is best served by permitting the free flow of commerce across its borders."

The Paramount-Publix corporation over the last sixteen months has reduced its pay roll by approximately $120,000 a week in departments other than the studios, the company announced today.

BANK'S BUSINESS SO GOOD IT PAYS XMAS DIVIDEND

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The San Francisco bank today voted to pay a special Christmas dividend of $50 a share to stockholders. This is in addition to the regular dividend of $60 a share and the usual extra of $75 a share which the directors also authorized.

The directo also voted to distribute Christmas bonuses to employés and officers. George Tourny, president, said that the bank is closing the best year in its history.

Walgreen Co. Starts Paying on Common

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Walgreen company will pay a dividend of 25 cents a share to common stock holders Feb. 1, marking the first time in its history that the company has distributed any of its profits to its junior shareholders.

CHARLES R. WALGREEN.

Declaration of a quarterly dividend of 25 cents establishes an annual rate of $1 on the common stock. Announcement of the new dividend policy was made yesterday by President Charles R. Walgreen at the annual stockholders' meeting.

Walgreen Explains Action.

Mr. Walgreen said that while the action may appear unusual at this time the management feels that the company is in a proper financial position to begin payments on the common stock.

In recent years the company has plowed back most of its profits into the business. Its expansion program has brought it into the front ranks of the national drug store chains. The company now operates 464 units in 127 cities.

Mr. Walgreen indicated yesterday that the company will pursue a more conservative program in the future.

"We have adopted a conservative policy for the future," he said, "and our expansion will not be on a very large scale until business itself has become more stabilized. This is opposite to our policy of recent years, which has been one of rapid growth.

Earns $1.75 on Common.

The company recently reported earnings of $1,867,620 for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. After preferred dividends the profit was equivalent to $1.75 a share on the 773,859 shares of common stock outstanding. In the preceding year the company earned $2.05 a share on the common stock.

The present company was organized in 1909. It has 41,231 shares of preferred stock outstanding on which it pays dividend at the rate of 6½ per cent yearly.

The initial common dividend will be paid to stockholders of record Jan. 10.

Other Dividend Action.

Directors of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad company declared a dividend of $1.25 on the capital stock, payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Dec. 27. A similar payment was made six months ago. The Mahoning Coal Railroad company declared the regular quarterly dividend of $6.25 on the common stock, payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 16. Both companies are controlled by the New York Central system.

Directors of Air Reduction company declared a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, payable Jan. 16 to stock of record Dec. 31.

The board of directors of the New York Life Insurance company effected a 10 per cent cut in the 1933 annual dividend rate. The rate of interest on moneys left with the company on deposit under its policy contracts will be the same as in 1932, 4¼ per cent.

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of the Harris Trust and Savings bank the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent on the capital stock was declared, payable Jan. 3, 1933, to stockholders of record Dec. 18.

The Cream of Wheat corporation yesterday declared an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 50 cents. A similar extra was paid a year ago.

Credit Speed Tells Story of U.S. Trade

BY SCRUTATOR.

Isn't it about time to put sluggish dollars to work? Much has been written and said and something has been done to relieve unemployment, but less has been accomplished toward getting money and credit to work with their former vigor.

Proponents of currency inflation as a panacea for depression largely overlook two facts. One is that the amount of money in circulation is not nearly as important as the velocity at which it circulates. The other is that the bulk of the country's business is done with bank credit and without much relation to currency.

Trillion a Year.

In normal times the total business of the United States considerably exceeds a trillion dollars a year, according to estimates of the national industrial conference board. Yet this vast volume is accomplished by the use of some five billion dollars of currency and some fifty billions of bank credit. Moreover, the shrinkage in business volume during the current depression has had small relation to currency. It has a larger relation to shrinkage in bank credit and a vital relation to the dwindling turnover of such credit.

For example, total money in circulation now is around 5 2-3 billion dollars, which is not far from the high point in recent years. In fact, money in circulation was generally below the five billion dollar mark during the prosperous years of 1927, 1928, and 1929, and rose definitely above this mark after the middle of 1931. On the other hand, bank deposits have fallen from around 56¾ billion dollars at the end of 1928 to around 42 billions at the present time. Still, this shrinkage in bank credit has not been commensurate with the great decline in volume of the country's business.

Money and Credit.

Now we come to the vital factor, which is how money and credit have been used. In New York City, the financial center of the United States, bank deposits in October were being turned over at the rate of only 29.3 times a year, the lowest rate during the present depression. At the height of the 1929 boom such bank credit was being turned over 132.7 times a year, and even at the low point during the 1921 depression they were being used 42.9 times a year.

Naturally, the credit turnover in New York is influenced by the principal securities markets and the fact that the city is the center for large financial transactions. But the same situation applies, although in lesser degree, to the country as a whole. The turnover of credit for 140 cities outside of New York reached a low point with a rate of only 22.6 times a year in August and had improved to only 25.2 times by October. At the peak of the boom the rate of turnover was 46.6 times a year, while at the low point of the 1921 depression it was at the rate of 28 times a year.

Velocity of Credit.

Thus it appears that the velocity with which credit circulates primarily governs business. Naturally, not all bank deposits and currency are available for constant use. Reserves must be kept and there always is a certain amount of money in hoarding. There also is a considerable amount of slow moving business.

However, if our total volume of business again is to exceed a trillion dollars a year, it will be necessary for money and credit to be turned over much more rapidly. This would have the effect not only of expanding trade, but in increasing employment and lifting prices. To this end have been the "buy now" campaigns, which, however, have not been successful because confidence has been lacking.

NEW YORK SELLS BONDS AT LOWEST RATE YET OBTAINED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—New York state today obtained the lowest interest rate in the history of its borrowing. Controller Tremaine awarded the Chase-Harris-Forbes corporation and associates a total of $30,400,000 of bonds at a net interest cost of 3.02731 per cent.

Four syndicates, comprising sixty-six banking houses all over the country, participated in the bidding. The Chase-Harris Forbes syndicate comprised thirty-five banking houses. The award consisted of $15,400,000 of 3¼ per cent unemployment relief bonds, due 1933 to 1929; $10,000,000 of general state improvement bonds, due from 1933 to 1957, and $5,000,000 of grade crossing elimination bonds, due 1933 to 1982. The bonds were offered publicly immediately following the award, the 3¼ per cent bonds priced to yield from 0.75 to 3 per cent for maturities from 1933 to 1939, and the 3s priced to yield from 0.75 per cent to 3.15 per cent for maturities from 1933 to 1982.

Chicago Title & Trust Sets Up Reserves

A special reserve of $7,500,000 has been set aside by the directors of the Chicago Title and Trust company against possible loss and depreciation, according to announcement made yesterday.

The reserve was made available through the reduction in surplus from $16,000,000 to $10,000,000 and the appropriation of $1,500,000 from the undivided profits account and existing reserves. Undivided profits at the end of 1931 stood at $1,587,140. Capital is unchanged at $12,000,000.

It was announced that earnings for 1932 will approximate $2,000,000, according to officials. In 1931 the company earned net profit of $2,756,913.

At their meeting yesterday the directors authorized the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the capital stock. The dividend will be distributed Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 21. Last year at this time the directors voted an extra dividend of $3 a share in addition to the regular payment.

Bethlehem Steel Is Low Bidder on New U.S. Cruiser

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation of Quincy, Mass., with an estimate of $8,196,000, was the lowest of four bidders for construction of the only cruiser to be built this year when bids were opened today by the navy.

STOCK PRICES GAIN DESPITE PARIS DEFAULT

Market Advances Up to Two Points.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—So far from getting upset over the tidings, Wall street today signalized the news of the French war debt default vote and the fall of the Herriot government with a pretentious little rally on the stock exchange. Leading issues were marked up from a fraction to 2 points on generally higher turnover.

The prevailing view seemed to be that the French government's action was not to be construed as absolute repudiation, but rather as a difference with the Washington administration as to the method of procedure. The French believe that a conference must be held before the matter is finally settled and the government's attitude is that it is an injustice to demand payment of the current installment until some of the major differences at issue have been adjusted.

Washington insists that the French pay now and consider later. Moreover, the British payment is coming along on schedule and the street was inclined to emphasize the budgetary importance of that country's 65 or 95 million dollar contribution rather than the nonreceipt of France's 22 millions.

The market's reaction to the development was a surprise to many, however. In fact, some observers thought the failure of the news to bring out any large volume of liquidation at the opening was the main factor in the upward movement which got under way later.

Uplift in Prices.

Speculators received encouragement from the absence of expected selling and renewed their operations for the advance. Short covering by chagrined bears helped the movement and the result was a steady uplift in prices which carried straight through to the close.

Best gains were registered by specialties. International Business Machines ran up more than 3 points on brisk trading, credited mainly to the score of short covering. The issue has been finding the going rather difficult since its extra dividend was omitted some two weeks ago, and the report is that a considerable short interest had been built up. Allied Chemical and Dye jumped 3⅜ points and Auburn Auto rose 2. Coca Cola, another sometime favorite in the specialty department, however, had to contend with

French Franc at Lowest Since 1928

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—The reaction of the French franc in this market today to the refusal of the chamber of deputies to pay their debt installment, due tomorrow, was to decline to 3.90¼ cents, the lowest point since that currency was stabilized in June, 1928.

Paris dispatches announced consignments of gold on the Penniand of the Red Star line, sailing from Antwerp today and the channel ports tomorrow, the Manhattan of the U. S. lines, sailing today from Hamburg and tomorrow from the channel ports; the Europa of the North German Lloyd, sailing from Bremen Friday and the channel ports Saturday and the New York of the Hamburg American line, sailing from Hamburg tomorrow and the channel ports the next day.

A little less than $9,000,000 gold arrived in New York from Europe today, according to unofficial estimates. The Lafayette is believed to have brought about $8,250,000 from England and the Bremen about $620,000 of Belgian origin.

No further ships are due to arrive here from French and British ports during the remainder of this week except the Deutschland on Friday which so far as known is bringing no gold.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Industries of the eighth federal reserve district have invested more than $10,000,000 for modernization and expansion of plants to aid in business recovery, P. B. Postlethwaite, vice chairman of the industrial rehabilitation committee, announced today. The territory comprised in the eighth federal reserve district is eastern Missouri, southern Illinois, and parts of Arkansas, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

WARNER BROS.' SLATE WINS IN ELECTION; STOCK CHANGE VOTED

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 14.—(AP)—All five directors supported by the management of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., were elected tonight as a climax to the prolonged annual meeting of the company. The session began Monday morning.

Stockholders also approved an amendment changing the common stock from no par value to $5 a share.

A resolution presented by a group of opposing stockholders condemning the present management and demanding the return of common stock issued by the corporation in 1928 to Renraw, Inc., was defeated. The directors elected are Charles Guggenheimer, New York; John P. Laffey, Wilmington; Samuel Morris, New York, vice president of Warner Brothers; Morris Wolf, Philadelphia, and Stanleigh P. Friedman, New York.

TAX BURDEN RETARDS TRADE, WHITNEY SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—Governmental extravagance is very largely to blame for the present low rating of American corporation securities, according to Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange.

In his annual report to the governing committee Mr. Whitney said:

"The immediate result of government budgetary deficits has been increased taxation. This in turn naturally had an adverse influence on the price of many securities, since increased taxation tends to reduce the earnings of business and to make investors unwilling to risk their capital in business enterprises.

RICHARD WHITNEY.

Taxes Delay Recovery.

"Thus, although the attempts of our governmental authorities to balance budgets by increasing taxes are necessary and commendable, and although such efforts ultimately make for restored credit and confidence throughout business, during 1931-'32 the drastic taxes proposed or actually enacted have not assisted, but have even delayed the revival of business."

The question of taxation and governmental financing has been "an unusually important factor" in the business and economic situation in this country since 1931, Mr. Whitney added.

"During the years which followed the war," he declared, "many of us failed to notice the dangers inherent in the great growth of our total governmental debt. Despite reductions in rates, tax receipts frequently exceeded budget estimates, and permitted not only rapid retirement of the national debt, but also large and increasing expenditures for current purposes.

Funds Seem Limitless.

Many people in this country apparently gained the notion that the federal and state treasuries constituted a limitless reservoir of funds which could be tapped constantly and for any amounts. The drastic shrinkage of tax revenues during the depression definitely ended this state of affairs. Nevertheless, public opinion

WHEAT PRICES IN GOLD

	Wednesday.	Tuesday.
Chicago, May	.47⅞c	.47⅛c
Winnipeg, May	.38⅞c	.39⅛c
Liverpool, March	.45⅛c	.45⅝c
Do May	.48⅝c	.48⅝c
Do No. 2, Ma'ba	.52⅛c	.53⅛c
Rotterdam, Jan.	.44⅛c	.44⅜c
Buenos Aires, Feb.	.38c	.37⅝c

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market paused in the downward movement. It was firmer after an early dip, net gains in Chicago being ⅛@¼c. Liverpool was ⅛c higher to ¼c per bu lower. Winnipeg was off ⅝@½c in Canadian funds: that loss, however, was offset to some extent by a higher rate of exchange.

Wheat traders generally ignored the news, regardless of its character. Pit sentiment was bearish early due to a lack of aggressive support, but toward the last there was short covering on the strength in stocks which found offerings small, and the close was at the top. December finished at 44¾c in the local market, while May was 47⅝@47¾c, and July, 47⅞@48c.

Rallies After New Low.

March wheat in Liverpool dipped early to 45c per bu, gold basis, a new low for 344 years, but rallied fractionally as there was not the pressure of southern hemisphere grain so much in evidence on Tuesday. May wheat in the English market Wednesday was quoted around 48⅝c at the close, or 1c lower than a week ago, although the price in pence showed a drop of 2¼, the decline being largely offset by a higher rate of sterling exchange.

Current level of wheat prices, as indicated by sales in the Liverpool parcel market, are less than 50 per cent of the pre-war level as well as materially below the level which was obtained at this time of the year during the depression in 1896. Comparative prices for parcel lots of wheat in Liverpool converted into cents per bu at the rate of exchange prevailing at the various dates follow:

Argentine	$0.47	$1.03	$0.95
Australian	.50	1.09	1.07
No. 1 Manitoba	.52	1.02	1.00
Russian	.53	1.05	.82

Forced Selling in Canada.

Canadian farmers who took storage tickets for wheat delivered earlier in the season and got cash advances from elevator interests have been forced to liquidate in the last two days, and this class of selling is reported as largely responsible for the decline in Winnipeg prices. The storage tickets were used as collateral for loans. The decline in the market in the last few months is said to have brought the price down to around the level of the cash advanced. According to Winnipeg reports yesterday there was evidence of an excellent class of buying, presumably by semi-government agencies which tended to limit the decline.

Winnipeg at Bigger Discount.

As a result of Wednesday's trading Winnipeg May wheat dropped to 87⅛c under the same future in Chicago, figured on a gold basis, against 83⅝c on Tuesday. Foreign demand for Canadian grain, however, was slow and sales were estimated at only 400,000 bu in all positions. There was talk of a reduced acreage in the three prairie provinces for the crop of 1933, while Russian returns suggested a decrease of around 5,000,000 acres of all kinds of winter sown grain as compared with last year.

July corn dropped to a new low for the season yesterday, but the selling was scattered and quickly ran its course, while a rally came toward the close and the finish was ¼@⅜c higher. December was 22⅝c; May, 27⅛@27¼c, and July, 28⅝@28¾c. Buying against bids and by commission houses checked the decline. Country offerings to arrive continue light while the eastern demand is distinctly slow.

Stock Exchanges Suspend Mo.-Kan. Pipe Line Co.

The Chicago Stock exchange yesterday suspended trading in the common stock of Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, which has been in receivership for several months. The action was taken because the company has discontinued its Chicago transfer agency. The New York Curb also announced yesterday that the stock has been removed from unlisted trading privileges for the same reason.

LARD MARKET

There was said to be a good sized order in the market for cash and December lard and buyers had to bid up December 17½c and cash lard moved up to $4.05, with loose and leaf lard $3.50. Offerings for deferred futures were not large and readily picked up, with the close 5@7½c net higher. Liverpool lard was 5 points higher. Export clearances of lard, 295,310 lbs. Stocks of lard in cold storage Dec. 1 were 29,186,000 lbs, against 34,410,000 lbs Nov. 1, and 34,824,000 lbs Dec. 1 last year. Stocks appeared to be passing into consumption at a fair rate and there are good quantities being made by packers. Trade in bellies was light with January, 3.70c. Hog prices were a share higher with receipts fair, but materially less than last year. Prices follow:

WABASH AVENUE CORNER LEASED BY AL TEARNEY

Tax Question Dims His Canopy Lights.

BY AL CHASE.

With legalized beer on the horizon and following the example already set by several of our local night club impresarios, who have announced plans for new places of refreshment, comes the dean of them all — Al Tearney — with lease signed and workmen busy on what he claims will be the most elaborate of his many cabaret ventures. This will be called "The Playground" and will be on the second floor of the southwest corner of Wabash and 7th, only a short distance from his ill-fated Tearney's Town club which Uncle Sam padlocked.

AL TEARNEY.

Unfortunately the habit of running afoul of the powers that be seems to persist, and Mr. Tearney, through no fault of his own, has been refused a city permit for a canopy and electric lights for his latest venture. The taxes on the property have not been paid, and until the receiver pays them Mr. Tearney has been notified there'll be no bright lights over the entrance, and night clubbers will have to struggle in some way without a canopy over their heads.

Loop Bank Is Receiver.

The two story building in which The Playground is located is now being operated by J. J. Bickle Jr. of the Central Republic Trust company, as receiver. Mr. Tearney has leased the 60x100 space for a two year term, beginning today. The terms have not been disclosed. It is understood that, notwithstanding the little difficulties with the city over lights and canopy, the new night club will probably open some time next week. The new cabaret is being built from plans by Eugene and Max Fuhrer, architect and engineer.

Al Tearney has had a rather tempestuous career as politician, sportsman, and cabaret operator. His best known night life activities centered 'round the southeast corner of 35th street and Calumet avenue, which for many years he successfully kept from being known as the quietest spot on the south side.

Operated Garden of Allah.

Other night life ventures he was identified with were the Garden of Allah, de luxe roadhouse on the outskirts of Glen View; the Pershing Palace, at 64th and Cottage Grove, and his most elaborate city cabaret, the Town Club, at 619 South Wabash avenue. This, as stated, was closed by the federal government.

Mr. Tearney was president of the Three I Baseball league for several years and also was active in politics for a decade or more, being at one time alderman from the old Third ward. He lives at 5036 Drexel boulevard. His brother, Cy Tearney, will be identified with him in his new venture.

Tax Complaints.

TO THE EDITOR: I own a seven room frame residence, lot 100x150 feet, located on ——— boulevard, Chicago. I purchased the property in 1901 for $12,000. In 1928 I was offered $32,000. Today I could not sell the property for the price I paid thirty-one years ago. Nevertheless, my taxes have been increased each year since 1928.

1. I understand my property is taxed on one-third of the present actual value of the property. Is this correct? At that rate my property has a valuation in excess of $40,000.

2. Kindly advise me where I can file a complaint.

ANSWER: 1. Yes.

2. Complaints on valuations placed on real estate in the 1931 assessment should be made in writing to the county assessor before the completion of the assessment in the township where the property is located.

After tax bills have been issued complaint may be filed with the board of appeals, county building, Chicago. The board of appeals will give a decision prior to July 1, 1933, the date of payment of the second installment of the 1931 Cook county taxes.

Regarding personal property assessment for 1931, complaint must be filed in person with the board of appeals.

Tenant Refuses to Pay.

TO THE EDITOR: On May 1 I rented my home to party who paid the first month's rent and shortly thereafter lost his job. He has been working on a commission basis and has made numerous promises to pay but now owes $490 and I have requested him to move. Now he refuses to sign a note. Will I ever be able to collect the rent due me?—L. Q.

ANSWER: The lease in all probability contains a judgment clause which is just as good as a note. You cannot force the tenant to sign a note. Otherwise you might bring suit and obtain a judgment against the tenant. but as a general rule this is throwing away good money after bad.
